"Problem of Housing Homeless in Belgium and France Up to U. S."

William Allen White, Noted Kansas Editor, Finds on Visit to France That American Red Cross Is Doing Marvelous Work Along This Line.

By WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE,

Noted Kansas Editor Who Went to France as a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Nov. 1.

FOR 10 days after the British drive of October of this year persistent reports kept coming from French and British airmen and from Belgian sources that the Germans were preparing to evacuate Ostend. The outward and visible signs of a German evacuation of an enemy city are obvious to the airmen. Trains of plunder begin moving out of the place long before the guns are moved. Then fires begin to appear in the town and finally the guns and munitions pass out. The Ostend movement reported by the airmen seemed to be in its first stages.

It may interest Americans to know something of those first stages, for they are entirely German in their thoroughness. First, the population is assembled in some hall or some neighborhood under guard. That means everyone—men, women and children, rich and poor. Then the German officers go through the houses and pick out such things as they care for—perhaps pictures, jugs, objects of art, musical instruments and the like, and these things are carefully packed and sent back to Germany. Then the private soldiers are sent in to loot, and clothing, furniture, carpets and hangings are taken and sent back to Germany. Then the homes are striped of woodwork, rough furniture and any articles that may be of use in the trenches for fuel or other comfort and finally, as fast as a house is stripped a chunk of dynamite is placed in the center of the building and the place is wrecked.

IT took money—American money and American organizing talent—and it will take more. For during the Winter these families will have to be clad, fed, housed and warmed. Their men folk are either soldiers or are dead in soldiers' graves, and in either case America's debt to the refugees is plain. Yet the Red Cross is the only American organization which has the scope to handle that debt. And if it is not paid—if the men at the front, starving, shivering and fighting, find that their families are starving, shivering and dying, how long will those soldiers fight—and how well? And if these French soldiers weaken, if they do not fight well, what of our million Amrican boys who are to fight in France next Spring? Their work will be that much harder and bloodier.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE.

The bigger and more beautiful the house, the more completely it is wrecked. Often huts of the poor escape with a mere fire, but the chateaux, the factories, the big shops, the cathedrals, the places of public interest, about which loving civic traditions cluster—always they are wrecked as totally as a wise expenditure of dynamite will do its work. In some places one looking at the ruins feels that rather more dynamite was wasted than the value of the wreck required. But such wanton waste of German power is rare. They manage their wrecking with rare efficiency. And after a town is wrecked, after the guns are ready to move back, the population of the place is released from the pale and is permitted to view the ruins of its homes and shops and industries and places of public pride.

Reconstructed Problem.

After a town is wrecked, after the German troops withdraw and the troops of the allies move in, the problem of reconstruction begins. And one of the most important activities of the Red Cross is the reconstruction work in Belgium and Northern France.

The American Red Cross in Europe has two important bureaus in its organization. One bureau is under M. L. Chevrillon, a Frenchman, who has spent many years at Cripple Creek, Colo., and who was with Mr. Hoover in his work in Belgium. This bureau considers only the physical difficulties—the engineering part of the work. The other bureau, under Dr. E. E. Hunt, devotes itself to the human part of the job.

For example: When the American Red Cross decides to help in the restoration of a wrecked village, a group of engineers, under M. Chevrillon, goes to the town and picks out four or five of its houses that may be most easily restored to human habitation—not rebuilt as they were, but turned quickly and cheaply into abodes for human beings. Frequently the engineers find a two-story house. Its slate or tiled roof is shattered; its windows and casings are gone; its doors removed; its floors generally torn out. But often its walls are fairly strong, at least so far as the lower story goes. No attention is paid to the top story; nor to the roof. But plans are made to put a temporary roof where the first floor ceiling joins the walls. This roofing is either of corrugated iron or composition roofing. It furnishes shelter for the first floor. Doors, windows and a floor are put in the house, the simplest furniture is provided, and the engineering department turns that house and the four or five others like it in the village over to its companion bureau—the Bureau of Rehabiliament, the human end of the work.

No Farm Houses.

Then it becomes the business of the Bureau of Rehabiliament to find the original owner of the house, if he is alive. If he is alive and not in the army, he and his family are probably refugees in Paris or in England, or in some other city or village in Southern or Western France outside the war zone. The Red Cross brings the family back to the partially restored house; and with four or five other families, the work of rebuilding this community begins. In France the village is usually an agricultural village. All the farm workers within a five-mile radius live in the village.

There are no farmhouses in France. And the first work after restoring the village is to get ready to plant crops. That means providing farm implements, bringing in seed, restocking the barnyard and provisioning the family. When half a dozen families are reinstated in their homes, plans for restoring other houses are furnished and some materials also. Then other families are found and brought back as their homes are ready and their neighbors help the newcomers to begin life.

The Society of American Friens, the Quakers, are doing splendid work in the restoration of French villages, and they are connected with the American Red Cross organization is at the disposal of the Friends and the funds and workers which the Friends have sent are able to go forward more speedily and effectively with their plans.

Of course, all the tholsands of ruined French villages, towns and cities are not the type above described. But they do fall into four general types: Those evacuated by the Germans after the occupation since the summer of 1914; those on the line of defense which have been bombed to powder by the German guns (of this type Verdun is an example—a ruin as complete as that of Pompei, yet no German has entered the town); those places which have been the scene of fluctuating battle line, now held by one or the other of the opposing foes; and, finally, those villages not far from Paris forced after the Marne. These latter villages show fewer signs of the wreck of the war storm than others, though frequently the Germans even in their hasty retreat took time to burn and bomb and plunder as they hurried away.

With few exceptions the villages destroyed in 1914 have been restored, at least partially. But back of these villages are hundreds of desolate towns. Some are mere heaps of ruins. Restoration will be a waste of time and energy. But hundreds of villages may be rebuilt.

And the urgent need for the restoration of these villages—the need that has put the American Red Cross into the work with energy—is the fact that the former inhabitants of these villages, nearly 2,000,000 peiple, from Belgium and France, are living abnormal lives in other people's homes, unable to find work, and they are rapidly becoming used to the life of refugees. Aside from the economic burden they have become, they have created a serious social problem, and with their fathers and brothers and husbands in the war, the whole unnatural situation demands a wholesome change.

Probably never before in the world has humanity faced the problem which France is facing this winter with this refugee population. One-seventh of the area of France is invaded. And that one-seventh of geographical area pays one-third of the taxes and furnishes more than one-third of the annual increase in the wealth of France in normal times. These thrifty French people known as the Yankees of France, who do so much more than their share to create the wealth of France, now are creating the burden of France.

Huddled Together in Paris.

In addition to this population and the Belgians who flocked to Paris by the hundred thousands three years ago, France has also a great idle, poverty-stricken industrial population that has come from the industrial centers of Northern France, which the Germans destroyed in their retreat from the Marne. They are huddled in lofts and cellars and school buildings and hospitals in Paris and the larger cities of France, living on rations.

The dozen villages which the American Red Cross is trying to restore to be used as models of reconstruction methods, and the hundred other villages to whose reconstruction the American Red Cross is furnishing substantial aid, will hardly touch this miserable social and economic problem in France created by the refugees. For mostly the villages under construction are rural villages, and a considerable portion of the refugees are from industrial cities and towns. And most of these industrial refugees are in Paris.

So the American Red Cross has a Bureau of Refugees and Home Relief in Paris under the management of Miss Margaret Curtis. Here is one of her daily problems: She found in a school

Italy Still in Danger on the Northern Flank

Simonds Doubts Piave Line's Strength

Observer Believes Present Fighting Is for Delay and That Final Grand Effort Will Be Made on the Adige, Where the Conditions Are More Favorable for Launching a Counter-Offensive Against the Invaders.

By FRANK H. SIMONDS.

Author of "The Great War."

In the week since I closed my last article the Italian campaign has moved steadily along the lines foreshadowed. Delaying actions have been fought at the Tagliamento and the Livenza rivers, but on neither line have the Italians been able to make a sustained defensive. Nor have they attempted it.

A retirement as far as the Piave River was inevitable once the equilibrium of the line on the Isonzo had been destroyed. If you will look to the precedent of the Marne campaign you will see that once the French offensive had been broken in Alsace-Lorraine and between the Somme and Meuse in Belgium, there was a period, extending from Aug. 22 to Sept. 4, in which French armies steadily retired, during which time the regrouping of the whole French military force went forward.

Precisely this thing has been going on in Italy, with the added circumstance of the arrival of the French and British armies as reinforcements, and the even more important arrival of heavy artillery, in which the Italians were deficient at the beginning.

When Joffre's first offensive was destroyed by the Germans he discovered that the main mass of the German army was coming through Belgium and in France from the northwest, and that the Germans had successfully placed a greatly superior force upon his left flank between the Somme and the Oise, on the east, and the channel on the west. He had then to constitute two armies, to fight delaying engagements to hold up the German advance as much as possible. Two of these operations—one along the Meuse and the other at Guise—represented not inconsiderable local French victories, but they could not interfere with the general retizement necessary to regrouping the forces.

BETWEEN now and next Spring the decisive campaign of the war will be fought, but it will not be fought on the battlefield. Every German influence and agency in this world will be at work, are already at work, trying to convince the world first, that Germany is invincible, and second, that peace must be immediate. If Germany were invincible, no German or German agent would be talking peace. Italy has given Germany precisely the same opportunity to push a peace offensive that Rumania supplied last year. If this peace offensive can be repelled, the decision of the war will come with no long delay and it is with these facts in mind that President Wilson last week made his great speech, addressed alike to the American people and to their allies in Europe.

—FRANK H. SIMONDS.

But on Sunday, Nov. 11, the mass of the Italian army was behind the Piave. The new Italian front ran from the Adriatic behind this considerable river barrier as far as the point where the Piave breaks through the first ranks of the Alps, north of the Venetian Plain, thence the line bends northwest over the Asiago Plateau, making junction above the Piave on the Grappa mountain system with the old front. By this operation the Italian front had been shortened by upward of 200 miles—all the lines up the Dolomites east of Beltuna through Cortina across the Carnic Alps and along the Julian Alps and thence up the Isonzo to the sea had been abandoned. Three or four thousand square miles of Italian territory had been surrendered, but by this date, the Italians had reached a line easily defensible, and their northern flank rested upon the Alps on a part of their front still unbroken.

The problem that we have to consider is twofold. There are left to Austro-German invaders two lines of attack, one proceeding through the plain along the railroads from Ponte Bato to Venice, which would lead to a frontal attack along the Piave; the other a turning movement coming down out of the Trentino behind the lines of the Piave.

In my judgment the more danger to the Italians at the present comes from the north and not from the east. In their retreat the Italians have destroyed the railroads as they retired. They have, to some extent, laid waste the country, and the Germans and the Austrians are faced with the problem in their westward advance of restoring communications to enable them to bring up their artillery and their munitions from the old lines to their new front, over a distance varying from 50 to 60 miles. Such an operation requires time.

If the Italian resistance at the Piave is stiffened sufficiently to hold until such time as the British heavy artillery can arrive, the probabilities of a successful defense at the Piave are very great, because every day adds to the weight of allied support which is coming.

Rails to North Line

On the other hand, for an attack delivered from the north, the Austro-German forces are able to use railroad lines reaching straight up to the present front. For example, the thrust which broke the Italian lines along the Isonzo was delivered south of Tarvis, along the main Vienna-Venice railroad. It would now be possible for the Germans, once the Italian line has collapsed, to move their artillery by rail back through Villach and down to Trent over the double track line familiar to all Tyrolese travelers. From Trent it could be sent forward through the Valsugana to that section of the front facing the Asiago Plateau, well behind the Piave River line. Could the artillery, massed here, force the Italian lines at this point, Austrian and German armies could descend to the valleys of the Astico and of the Brenta, and the whole line of the Piave would collapse.

This operation was attempted by the Austrians single-handed in the spring of 1916, while the Germans were carrying out their great Verdun offensive. At that time the Austrians pushed through Asiago and up the north slopes of the last hills separating them from the Venetian Plain. They were checked only half a dozen miles from the plain, and it is possible that they would have succeeded them had not Brussiloff's great offensive in Galacia produced a collapse of the Austrian arms and necessitated the transfer of practically all the Tyrol troops to the eastern front.

For days, and possibly for several weeks, we have, then, to face the problem as to whether the Italians can protect their northern flank between the Adige and the Brenta, the weakest point of which lies along the Asiago Plateau. If they can do this, Venice probably will be saved, for enough allied troops and guns should arrive on the Piave front to hold that before the Austrians and Germans can bring up a necessary weight of artillery over the roads and railroads destroyed by the Italians in their retreat.

On the other hand, any material success of the Austro-Germans along the Asiago Plateau will necessitate a retreat to the line of the Adige. Not only would such a push outflank the Piave line, but it would also outflank the line of the Brenta, which is the only serious obstacle before the Austro-Germans reach the Adige River. Once the Italians are behind the Adige their northern flank will be secure, resting upon the Lago di Carda, north of Verona, and covered all the way to the sea by the Adige—a really considerable river, as a military obstacle indefinitely more considerable than the Piave, the Brenta, the Tagliamento or even the Isonzo.

The Piave Flank Weak

If there is any question as to the condition of the Italians at the present moment—if there is any doubt in the minds of the allied council as to the ability of the allied forces to hold the line of the Piave—there is not the smallest doubt that a retreat to the Adige will take place in a relatively short time. When the Italian army, with its reinforcements of French and British troops, elects to make a final stand, every reasonable chance of success must be with it, because the final fight will be decisive, so far as Italy is concerned in the war, and just as Joffre remorsefully surrendered French territory to the Germans until his armies arrived in a position and were in a condition where the chances of victory were with them, the allied council directing the Italian operations must continue to retire until the moment arrives when its power and the condition of its troops give it warrant to risk a decisive battle.

In this situation all forecast is useless. My own judgment is that the decisive battle will not be fought at the Piave. The Italian line along the Asiago Plateau has once been penetrated, and in this sector the Austrians continued to hold valuable ground after they were were forced to give over their offensive in the spring of 1916. From this valuable ground they have already made advances, taking the village of Asiago, which lies in the low ground facing the last range of hills separating it from the Venetian plain. To accept a battle with so dangerously exposed a flank seems a hazardous thing, because a successful Austro-German smash southward across the Asiago would place the victorious army well behind the Italian forces at the Piave, threatening them with envelopment and holding out the possibility either of an enormous Sedan, or, at least, of another prospective Italian retreat, which would very gravely undermine the morale of an army which has already been beaten

Such being the fact, I don't believe the Italians will run the risk of a decisive battle at the Piave, because it is very unlikely that the allies have been able yet to bring up large numbers of heavy guns, without which no defense against the Germans can hope to succeed. Large allied forces are arriving; the French have sent the whole of their Eleventh Army, commanded by Gen. Micheler, Petain's First Lieutenant in the field. The British have sent at least as many troops as, and probably more guns, than the French, but neither the French nor the British can afford to risk men or guns in a battle which carries as one of its possibilities a great envelopment and the capture of guns and men in large numbers.

In sum, all that has happened since the initial defeat of the Italians on the upper Isonzo has been a direct consequence of that disaster. On the morrow of this defeat the question was whether the Italians could save their armies. Despite very large losses—losses which exceeded those of the French in the first phases of the Marne campaign—the Italians, like the French, have saved their armies. The second question faced was whether a successful stand could be made after the armies had been reorganized and regrouped.

The magnitude of the defeat made it utterly impossible that such a stand could be made at the Tagliamento, and there was the additional weakness in the Tagliamento position due to the exposed northern flank. Accordingly, the Italians fought only delaying actions at the Tagliamento and thereafter at the Livenza. We are certain now that they never intended or hoped to be able to reorganize and regroup their armies for a successful defense at either of these two rivers.

From the very start Italian high command must have recognized that the retreat would have to go as far as the Piave. What we do not know now, although it may be clear before this article reaches my readers, is whether there was a resolution taken to stand at the Piave or fight a delaying action at this river also and ultimately continue the retreat until the Italian army was safely posted behind the Adige River, one flank securely resting upon the sea and the other

Training Camp Librarians Puzzled When Fifth of Books Called for Are Poetry

Large Demand for Kipling, Service and Riley Suggests Many Theories, Among Them That World Is Experiencing Revival of Emotionalism.

By CLAIR KENAMORE,

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAMP FUNSTON, Nov. 17.

ONE-FIFTH of the books asked for at the libraries at Camp Funston are books of poetry. In this respect, according to professional librarians, the demand for poetry is from two to five times as heavy as in cities or at universities.

In the 15 libraries which supply the literary wants of Funston, there are 10,000 volumes, of which about three-fourths are fiction. It was the opinion of the librarians that nine-tenths of the calls would be for fiction, but the first month's reports made it clear that not more than half were for that class of literature. Poetry is classed as non-fiction.

The poetical works most in demand are Kipling's. Next comes James Whitcomb Riley and next are the poems of Robert W. Service. Since the negro drafted men arrived, there has been a steady call for the poems of Paul Laurence Dunbar. There also have been steady calls for Whittier, The Rubiyat, Tennyson, Longfellow and others. Any work of a poetical nature will "go," as there are calls for "some poetry."

The library work here, which is fostered by the American Library Association, is in charge of Willis H. Kerr, Librarian of the Kansas State Normal School at Emporia, V. Clayton of the Kansas State Library. They have endeavored to find a reason for the poetical turn of the soldiers, but without conspicuous success.

Order of Demand for Various Kinds of Books by Camp Funston Men.

Encyclopedia.
Atlas,
Books on French language.
French geographical and travel literature,
Military hand books.
Books on entertainments and games. (Hoyle has been out constantly).
Books on the war.
Current newspapers.
Maps.
Books on mathematics.
Dictionary—religious works.
General history.

The library headquarters are in the Y. M. C. A. headquarters building waiting for the completion of the library building on the Zone. There is a branch library in each of the 10 Y. M. C. A. buildings, in the two K. of C. buildings, and in the Y. W. C. A. hospice. When the early returns on books wanted began to come in from the branches the librarians were amazed. Here were thousands of men from farms and hills and factories who were demanding the books which the librarians for years had been vainly trying to induce university students and other people presumably of education and culture to read.

High Grade Books Demanded.

The fiction sought was of a high standard, and the great majority of the fiction works here are of the better class. Either only that class of books were donated, or the libraries through which they were sent weeded out the very cheap.

"In my opinion," said Kerr, 'the unusual demand for poetry is a probably subconscious gratifying by the soldier of his yearning for home things. This would account for the popularity of Riley, whose poems are of the kind which voice that appeal most eloquently."

It was pointed out in contradiction to this, that Kipling is a poet of the open field or the open sea, with very little of home ties about his writings, and that Service never mentions or suggests home, and probably never thinks of it.

It was suggested that it might be a sort of literary epidemic, a national or international turning toward poetry. Librarian Dickerson at Camp Doniphan has had the same experience as the librarians here, and reports from the trench libraries established along the front held by the English show the same trend.

It is held in some quarters to indicate a sort of spiritual or emotional revival, not entirely apart from religious fervor.

Another explanation advanced was that the high proportion of the demands for poetry was due to the fact that only men patronized camp libraries. Women are the greatest patrons of city libraries, and they usually read fiction. The proponent of this theory held that women do not read poetry, except of certain soft; moist kinds, but that strong stuff like that of Kipling and Service had a powerful appeal for men between the ages of 21 and 31.

The librarians had determined to "push" serious works of nonfiction upon the soldiers, but they have found it not necessary. The difficulty has been in obtaining sufficient books to supply the demand.

The demand the first week, aside from fiction and poetry, was for:

Encyclopedia,
Atlas,
Books on French language.
French geographical and travel literature.
Military hand books.
Books on entertainments and games. (Hoyle has been out constantly.)
Books on the war.
Current newspapers.
Maps.
Books on mathematics.
Dictionary—religious works.
General history.

The librarians hoped to be able to help the men in the discharge of their present duties, and for their work after the war. For this reason the demands have been very gratfying. All books being bought are nonfiction.

The Young Men's Christian Association has undertaken a campaign of education among the drafted men at this camp which has for its purpose the explaining of our place in the war. It met with immediate success, and has had a good following from the start.

Its effect on the individual is expected to be great, in that it will give him a good sound knowledge of what he is fighting for and why it is necessary for him to fight.

The work is under the direction of G. C. Dotzour, educational director of Army Y. M. C. A. The course designs to explain geographical and commercial reasons for the beginning of the war, Germany's overweening ambitions and what she hoped to gain by the war. After the foundations are laid, the early history of the war is taught, and a later series is on "The Spirit of the Front." These lectures are by men who have been there.

French Classes Popular.

Another set of classes which are very popular, are in French and English. There are 1500 members enrolled in the French classes, which teach only preliminary conversational French. The English classes, which are for men who did not get beyond grammar schools, are not so readily taken up, but they are growing in size, while the French classes generally diminish.

Some of the French students appear to join, gather a few words, write home that they are studying French and then drop the class.

Many very capable French teachers were found in the ranks, and teachers from nearby towns volunteered their services. The classes are held three nights a week in the barracks, and each session lasts 45 minutes.

Among the negro soldiers the French classes prosper wonderfully, and four excellent teachers have been found among the men. The popularity of the classes, according to a negro officer, is due to the fact that many of the negro soldiers expect to remain in France after the war is over.

They have heard that the prejudice against their color which they find in the United States is not known in France, and consequently France appears to them to be a very good country to live in.

Knitting for the Khakies.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Kousin Katy's Knitting Knacks for Khakies. Knickknacks of every sort, kind and description and of all colors of the rainbow. Why, particularly? Does not the Government furnish the necessary amount of clothing? It seems to me that the same amount of money could be more properly spent for the things the Government does not supply, at the same time leaving the extra knitting for factory girls who need the wages more than the soldier needs the shirt. The time, money and energy spent on knitted things is appalling. It is far better to have spent all that on welfare work, establishing homes, rest rooms, Y. M. C. A., etc., so that the boys can come home morally clean and not a physical and spiritual menace to society. It is better that at least some of it should go to that neglected field, veterinary work abroad, so that mangled and suffering horses can be promptly aided or humanely put to death. The Missouri mule, suffering enough, is hardier and more philosophical, but the more highly organized nervous horse suffers not only from ghastly wounds, but often dies of lack of proper care, illness, loneliness and fright. Attend to these first and then send on your purple wristlets and other knickknacks for khakies. LULU MACCLURE CLARKE.

Brute Force Must Be Dethroned.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I was glad to read your valuable and instructive editorial of the 11th inst. entitled: "No cause for Depression." What you state is timely and to the point, and in my humble opinion is replete with truth. Such editorials help to make history in these United States of America at this time. Nobody knows how long this war may last. But one thing is certain, Germany is already "beaten." We can win this war without Russia and Italy. But I am not now willing to concede that Russia and Italy have been "conquered" by Germany permanently in this war. Premier Lloyd George of England says: "Brute force must be dethroned forever. We shall owe our triumph to America." In my humble opinion the Bataille de la Marne "saved democracy to the world."

Ministerial Camouflage.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

One of the popular St. Louis ministers preached a very good sermon last Sunday on the general theme of aid to the Y. M. C. A. in its work of morally safeguarding the camps. Along with the sermon, however, he made a number of misstatements that will bear correction. He gave his audience the impression that 73 cents of every dollar of Federal revenue before the war was spent for military preparation and that greed was the dominant factor in our entry into the war. As to the figures, as he well knows, they include the enormous bill for pensions for former wars, which has nothing to do with present military preparation or with the greed of the munition makers. As to this insinuation, it is no more patriotic because he had a grandfather born in this country, as he stated, than as though he were born on the other side. Finally our eloquent pastor, in mentioning the horrors and outrages in Europe and Armenia, neatly sidestepped any allusion to Germany's guilt in the matter, insinuating, if he did not say outright, that we were at war, not because Germany but because the United States had sinned.

By all means let us stamp out vice. But while doing so it is not permissible to throw a camouflage about the real causes of the conflict itself.

A. L. SPENCER.

Are We in the Millenium?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The evil spirit prophesied by Daniel and in Revelations as Apollyon, the destroyer, or anti-Christ, is already on the earth. The merchants of his kingdom are to weep and mourn "For no men shall buy their merchandise any more;" "And all fat and goodly things shall perish from his kingdom." "And it was given to him to make war with the saints (Belgium) and to overcome them." "And a third part of the ships was destroyed." "And there shall be great distress of nations."

Daniel, Chapter XI:

"And when he is come to his height his kingdom shall be broken; and it shall be divided toward the four winds of heaven; but not to his posterity, nor according to his power with which he ruled. For his kingdom shall be rent in pieces, even for strangers beside these."

The Americans are fighting for the lamb of God. A CONSTANT READER.

BLOOD OR TRADE?

The London Daily Mail's proposal of an interally agreement to boycott German commerce for 50 years after the war merely suggests a weapon to force an early end of the war. Such a plan viewed purely as a punishment for the German greed which forced this struggle upon the world would scarcely find favor in this country. But as a club to force an obstinate foe to its knees it cannot be disdained.

Other considerations aside, the complete destruction of German trade after the war would be a calamity to every nation. It would be such a calamity as England refused to permit when Bismarck, after the war of 1871, deliberately tried to ruin France forever by an indemnity of $1,000,000,000 to be paid in cash. Britain intervened to arrange for a shifting of bank credits so that in all only $200,000,000 in coin was actually turned over, and of this only $55,000,000 came from the coffers of France.

To drive Germany out of trade for the next 50 years would hurt the allies while it crushed their enemy. It would make it impossible for her to pay even a considerable part of her war expenses. It would mean such a wiping out of existing values as would demoralize business for generations.

Nevertheless, if the Germans knew it was determined upon and would be enforced unless they themselves came promptly to allied terms, it would be likely to hasten a just peace. It would be better trading material at a peace conference than all the captured colonies. Indeed, if the allies should resolve to maintain such a post-bellum boycott for four or five years for every month the war continues, German business interests would be relied upon to force an early cessation of hostilities. The only alternative would be a German victory sufficient to impose a conqueror's will upon the rest of the world, and the most optimistic Junkers no longer believe that remotely possible.

A continuation of the war for a year would mean a greater financial loss to the allies, not to speak of the life loss, than the profits we could make in many years of normal trade with Germany.

Assuming that the Germans refused altogether to listen to such an argument and compelled the war to go to a knockout, the imposition of the penalty would mean financial sacrifices to the whole world for half a century. But so long as it is reasonably certain to win, who shall say that the possibility of such sacrifices shall be permitted to outweigh the great loss of lives necessary to bring about an honorable peace in any other way? Shall we pay in blood or trade?

A CREMATORY MISUNDERSTANDING.

A woman reader complains that she was treated brusquely by a representative of the Missouri Crematory Association when she telephoned the question: "Would the crematory association receive a dog for cremation?" She adds that she fails to understand why the association should refuse "to do such a small service to the city as having my dead dog disposed of in what I consider a proper manner for public health."

But suppose she had telephoned the office of one of our cemeteries asking if she could have her dead dog buried there. Of course, she would never have thought of doing so.

Has she ever visited the crematory or been present at a funeral ceremony there? If not, she should do so. She would never again make the unspeakable blunder of offering a dog's carcass for disposal at this edifice sacred to human grief.

DOWN WITH THE PLOTTERS.

The announcement at Washington that there is to be a new and vigorous round-up of anti-war propagandists should surprise no one. While the necessity for such action is deplorable, involving as it probably will greater annoyances for harmless persons of German blood, it has long been inevitable.

Our enemies have tried to breed discontent by weaving a most amazing tissues of lies about every war activity. They have spread unfounded reports of disasters by land and sea. They have hinted at graft and scandal in high places. They have scattered false tales of hardships and indignities for the soldiers in training camps. They have tried to besmirch the names of honorable men and women working for the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. Nor have they withheld their hands from violent outrages through explosions in ammunition plants and such arson as the Kansas City stockyards fire and the Baltimore wharf fire.

Therefore there is no alternative left but to bring under surveillance every person whose words and actions lead to a reasonable suspicion of disloyalty and treason. The country cannot afford to be finicky about the feelings of suspected aliens when the lives of our own sons, if not our national existence itself, are at stake.

Such a crisis is not a time for paltering. The ordinary processes of peace will not suffice. Having found leniency a failure we must try something else. Summary trial and a firing squad for a few of the most flagrant offenders whose guilt is clear would be about the most salutary thing that could happen in this country at present.

NORWAY'S NEUTRALITY.

The Premier of Norway at the opening of parliament recently made the statement that if Norway were permitted to export goods to and import goods from America freely on condition that the Scandinavian country break with Germany it would have to refuse. And this too in spite of the fact that the sentiment of the land is almost unanimously pro-ally and in spite of the fact that the country has suffered grave injuries at the hands of Prussian ruthlessness.

While it is necessary for this country to maintain its embargo as to European neutrals there is none in America who will quarrel with the Norwegian attitude. With a weak army, a negligible navy and a jealous, pro-German neighbor in Sweden, it would be foolhardy for Christiana at this time to get into the war.

The Norwegians have been neutral in the best sense of the word. No German threats have been able to drive its merchantmen from the seas and no German bluffs have succeeded in frightening its people from a firm assertion of rights.

GEORGIA'S NEGRO WHIPPERS.

Georgia has a labor problem and has made the mistake of trying to settle it in the East St. Louis way. The problem, it happens, is exactly the opposite of that in East St. Louis. In the Illinois city the whites appeared to fear the negroes would do all of the work, while in Georgia the complaint is that the negroes will not do any of the work. The fact is that many fields of cotton are unpicked, and that neither whites nor blacks are trying to save the crop.

The result is that masked white men are riding abroad at night, stopping here and there to whip negroes who own automobiles. The charge is made that the high price for cotton has put so much money in the hands of the negroes that they will not complete the season's work, but have bought cars and are employing less fortunate negroes to drive them around. Any good cotton picker with a sizeable family has earned enough this season to buy a car and almost every tenant is out of debt and has money ahead.

The situation has become so threatening that Gov. Dorsey has taken steps to protect the negroes. So far, several white men have been arrested on charges of whipping and are shown to be guilty. It is said that none of these men are the kind who would be likely to pick cotton or do any other actual work as long as his crop was worth enough to enable him to hire labor. A proposal is made to dismiss the schools long enough for the children to save the cotton now in the fields.

The men who have studied the problem most closely see two basic reasons for the present condition. One is the lack of education of the negro in the past; the other is a failure to check the northward movement of negroes last year. Between East St. Louis and Georgia the negro is having a hard time. The Congressional Commission in East St. Louis might well go to Georgia and continue its work.

DON'T CRIPPLE AGRICULTURE.

The movement to organize and use schoolboys in farm work is necessary and commendable. Many city boys have some knowledge of farming and are strong enough to do farm work. They should volunteer for this patriotic service, and under skilled guidance may be of gerat help.

But the experience of France proves that a nation's food production must inevitably be crippled if enough able-bodied, skilled farmers are not kept at the work of food production. The United States Food Administration finds, on investigation, that in 1913, the year before the war, French farmers produced 87,830,000 hundredweights of wheat. Year by year since the war has taken the farm workers of France to the front, the wheat production, in spite of all the efforts of women and children working in the fields, has fallen off. The 1917 crop only amounted to 39,900,000 hundredweight, or 47,930,000 hundredweights less than in 1913.

This, in part, explains why France looks to us now for wheat. And a similar condition confronts the other allied nations. With tractors running day and night, and with all the aid that women and children can give, a people at war as now waged finds it impossible to keep up its food production if too many of its skilled farmers are taken from the fields.

If the United States makes the mistake of crippling agriculture here, it will prolong the war indefinitely, if it does not endanger its issue.

HEALTH OF COUNTRY CHILDREN.

What has become of the hardy farmer boy, he of the bronzed cheeks and sturdy muscles, who used to be the standard by which one measured the flabby city youth, much to the city youth's disadvantage? Or were people generally mistaken after all in selecting him as the type of robust young American manhood?

Of the millions examined for the new army a larger percentage of farmer boys has been rejected for physical disabilities than of boys from the big cities, according to Dr. J. A. Nyedegger of the United States Health Service in Baltimore. Other Government figures shows that the number of defective children and young men in country districts from 7 to 20 per cent higher than those from our thickest centers of population. Defective vision, defective teeth, spinal curvature, anemia, lung diseases, heart diseases and mental defects are relatively more common in the country than in the city.

It is curious to observe that among the reasons assigned is that city children have better food, better water and more fresh air! And these are the very advantages the country is supposed to possess!

It is said that although most of our food comes from the country, the farmer's children get a smaller variety than the city man's boys and girls and that in general it is much more poorly and inadequately prepared than even the food of the city's slums. It is said that the water from the farm cistern or well is much more likely to be impure than that from the city reservoir. It is said that while the farmer has fresh, pure air all around him, he is still so afraid of it that he sleeps behind tightly closed doors and windows in cool weather and retains the old superstitious terror of a draft.

The most plausible explanation, however, is the lack of sanitation and medical inspection in the schools. There are about 12,000,000 children in our rural schools and by far the larger part are never informed whether they have adenoids that ought to be removed or teeth that ought to be fixed or eyes that need an oculist's attention. Dr. Thomas D. Wood, professor of physical education at Columbia University, is quoted as saying that the country schoolhouse is the worst, the most insanitary and inadequate type of building in the whole country.

These are serious charges. Such a condition strikes at the vitality of the whole country. It must be ignored no longer.

WE GOTTA WIN.

Repaired to Clancey's bar-room, where they oft-times "rushed the can."
The troops marched by—ten thousand strong—the street sent up a cheer,
The pair inside the bar-room sighed and gravely sipped their beer.
The troops passed on, the cheers grew faint, and Dippy said, "My friend,
I hesitate to prophesy just how this war will end."
"Oh, can that stuff," said Kelley. "We will lick 'em sure as sin.
There's nothin' to it, Bo, but this—We gotta win."

The Reverend Mr. Bailey and the good old Deacon Cline
Sat in the pastor's study while they talked of things divine.
When, high above the traffic, came the newsboy's strident call,
"Joo-roo-salem, Joo-roo-salem, the city's doomed to fall!"
Then said Reverend Mr. Bailey to the good old Deacon Cline,
"Let us pray they stop the carnage in historic Palestine."
"Just wait," replied the Deacon, as he stroked his bearded chin,
"We've got 'em on the run down there.—We gotta win."

And on each face was just a trace of worry and of gloom.
The country's purse strings growing tight and money
Securities were shrinking fast, and none could say just why.
The president, with sickly smile, said "Well, we'll weather through,
Please tell us Brother Hiram, how does it look to you?"
And Brother Hiram scratched his ear with fingers worn and thin,
"They're gittin' all our money, boys; by gosh!—We gotta win."

Some women at the Red Cross rooms made "packs" with all their might;
Their faces lined with worry; their forms were robed in white.
The room was bare, no joy was there, the hours seemed to drag;
But each one labored grimly for her country and her flag.
Said the junior Mrs. Tompkins to the elder Mrs. Vance,
"They've surely got enough of these to bind the wounds in France."
Then the elder Mrs. Vance replied in sympathy akin,
"We haven't even started, Maude, work on—We gotta win."

The small, the great; Yea, all of us, in every walk of life,
Subconsciously at least declare we've got to win the strife.
Some doubt, some fear, some speculate, some work while others pray;
But one concrete fact is manifest—We're in the war to stay.
If we will do our duty here and "can" these cries of woe,
We will force a grim accounting when we rise to meet the foe.
So let us say together as our troops go marching in,
"There's nothin' to it, folks, but this—We gotta win." WILL FERRELL.

I HATE to leave this country, but I know where I ought to be: I ought to be among the boys who fight across the sea. I want to be an American, a member of the clan; and I want to dare the Kaiser out to fight me man to man.

I want to be a General, to plot the end of Krupp; and with the help of Yankee wits to shows the Boches up. I want to fill their stomachs full of war up to their ears, and make the Prussians pacifists for forty thousand years.

ONE DAY.

OH, just to live one day,
One day of life for me;
That day is worth the years,
If that one day is free.

Just free to live, to love
To hold, caress and know,
One day of unalloyed bliss;
One day to feel life so.
These cords are taut and hard,

That bind and hold each day;
They are the thoughts that others think,

The things that others say.
Oh, just to be one's self
And just to know one's free—
To live one day, to be one's self—
Would be enough for me.

GERMANY'S LOSSES.

From the New York Times.

IT was announced yesterday that anothe war credit for 15,000,000,000 mark would be introduced in the Reichstag o Nov. 22, although the seventh loan close only a few days before our own Liber Loan. That loan brought up the total German war loans to something over $1 000,000,000, without covering all that Germany has spent. Germany's war costs approach $30,000,000,000, the difference being represented by issues of paper. There are outstanding over $5,000,000,000 of Treasury bills. The issues of notes of th Reichsbank exceed $2,000,000,000. The i sues of the war loan banks are neithe known nor understood, but it is through them that the Government issues the currency which is subscribed for the imperial bond issues in an endless chain. There is no apparent reason why Germany shoul not issue "money" so long as the paper and presses hold out, but there is difficulty about gettings goods for the money.

The mark has so depreciated that Germany's nearest neighbors decline it, and such trade as remains is by barter of goods for goods. This depreciation of German paper proceeds within Germany itself. Some bonds of the German mortgage banks selling in Germany above the imperial income. It was a German financier who said that would mean bankruptcy and added that victory would come before Germany was in that condition. Victory is invisible, but the interest burden now exceeds $900,000,000, while the imperial income, according to the budget of last March, is $700,000,000. About one-sixth of the proceeds of the war loans is now necessary to pay the interest on the preceding issues.

Germany has expended about one-third of its national wealth, thus using up its capital by living beyond its income. It is using up its manhood even faster than prints marks. It was stated in the Reichstag last month that the war had cost Germany six million men, an item which causes a shudder to translate into mar or to calculate in terms of cost to the n tional vitality. It is even more horrifyin to think that Germany imposes upon other notions costs and losses larger than her own. The total war costs exceed one hundred and fifty billion of dollars and fifteen million casualties. It is a modern Golgotha, worse for Germany than for any other nation, it is true, but without German perception of the futility of the waste.

Col. House in Europe.

From the Boston Transcript.

AS the President's alter ego in Paris h (Col. House) will be greeted as th American "Premier without portfolio," high commissioner on special servic above and set apart from the Cabinet and the Congress, sole and supreme in the exercise of his authority there and subject only to the authority of the Presid here. He is not accompanied, as was Root, by other commissioners who shar his powers and had the right to exerc those powers by imposing advice and pa ticipating in conclusions. He is acco panied only by aides-de-camp who w take orders from him and serve him as staff assigned to the performance of su duties as he and he only may designa He will have at his beck and call not on the American Ambassadors to Franc Great Britain and Italy, but Gen. Pershin commanding the American expedition force, and Vice Admiral Sims, command ing the American destroyer force. To be the repository of powers of such sweep and supremacy is a unique experience for a American in this or any other day, and it will be interesting to see whether the example of the Presideit in this respect wil be followed by the President of France, the King of England, and the King of Italy in the composition of their missions at the conference.

Proofs of Hooverism.

From the New York Evening Post.

HE now see the need of revising criticism directed at the Food Controller. In every belligerent country the tas which has fallen to Mr. Hoover has proved a difficult and a thankless one. It is no only from the plain citizen that complain have come about the failure of flour and bread prices to decline immediately upon the fixing of a minimum wheat price. The professional and partisan Hoover baiters have cried out bitterly against the imposition of minimum prices on the farmer to the benefit only of the middleman. But the commercial price lists show that flour which was selling a month ago at $13.25 a barrel was selling yesterday at $11.50. This is still $1.75 above the price of a year ago, but already half the distance from last month's prices t olast year's prices has been covered. The decline in flour prices reinforced by the plan for the standardized loaf which is soon to be put into effect will bring back the five-cent loaf. It is not to be supposed that the efforts of a Food Controller can ever approach the ideal. But the evidences o progress are so unmistakable that onl the partisan to whom facts are a minor consideration will continue to sneer at Mr. Hoover's failure to get "results."

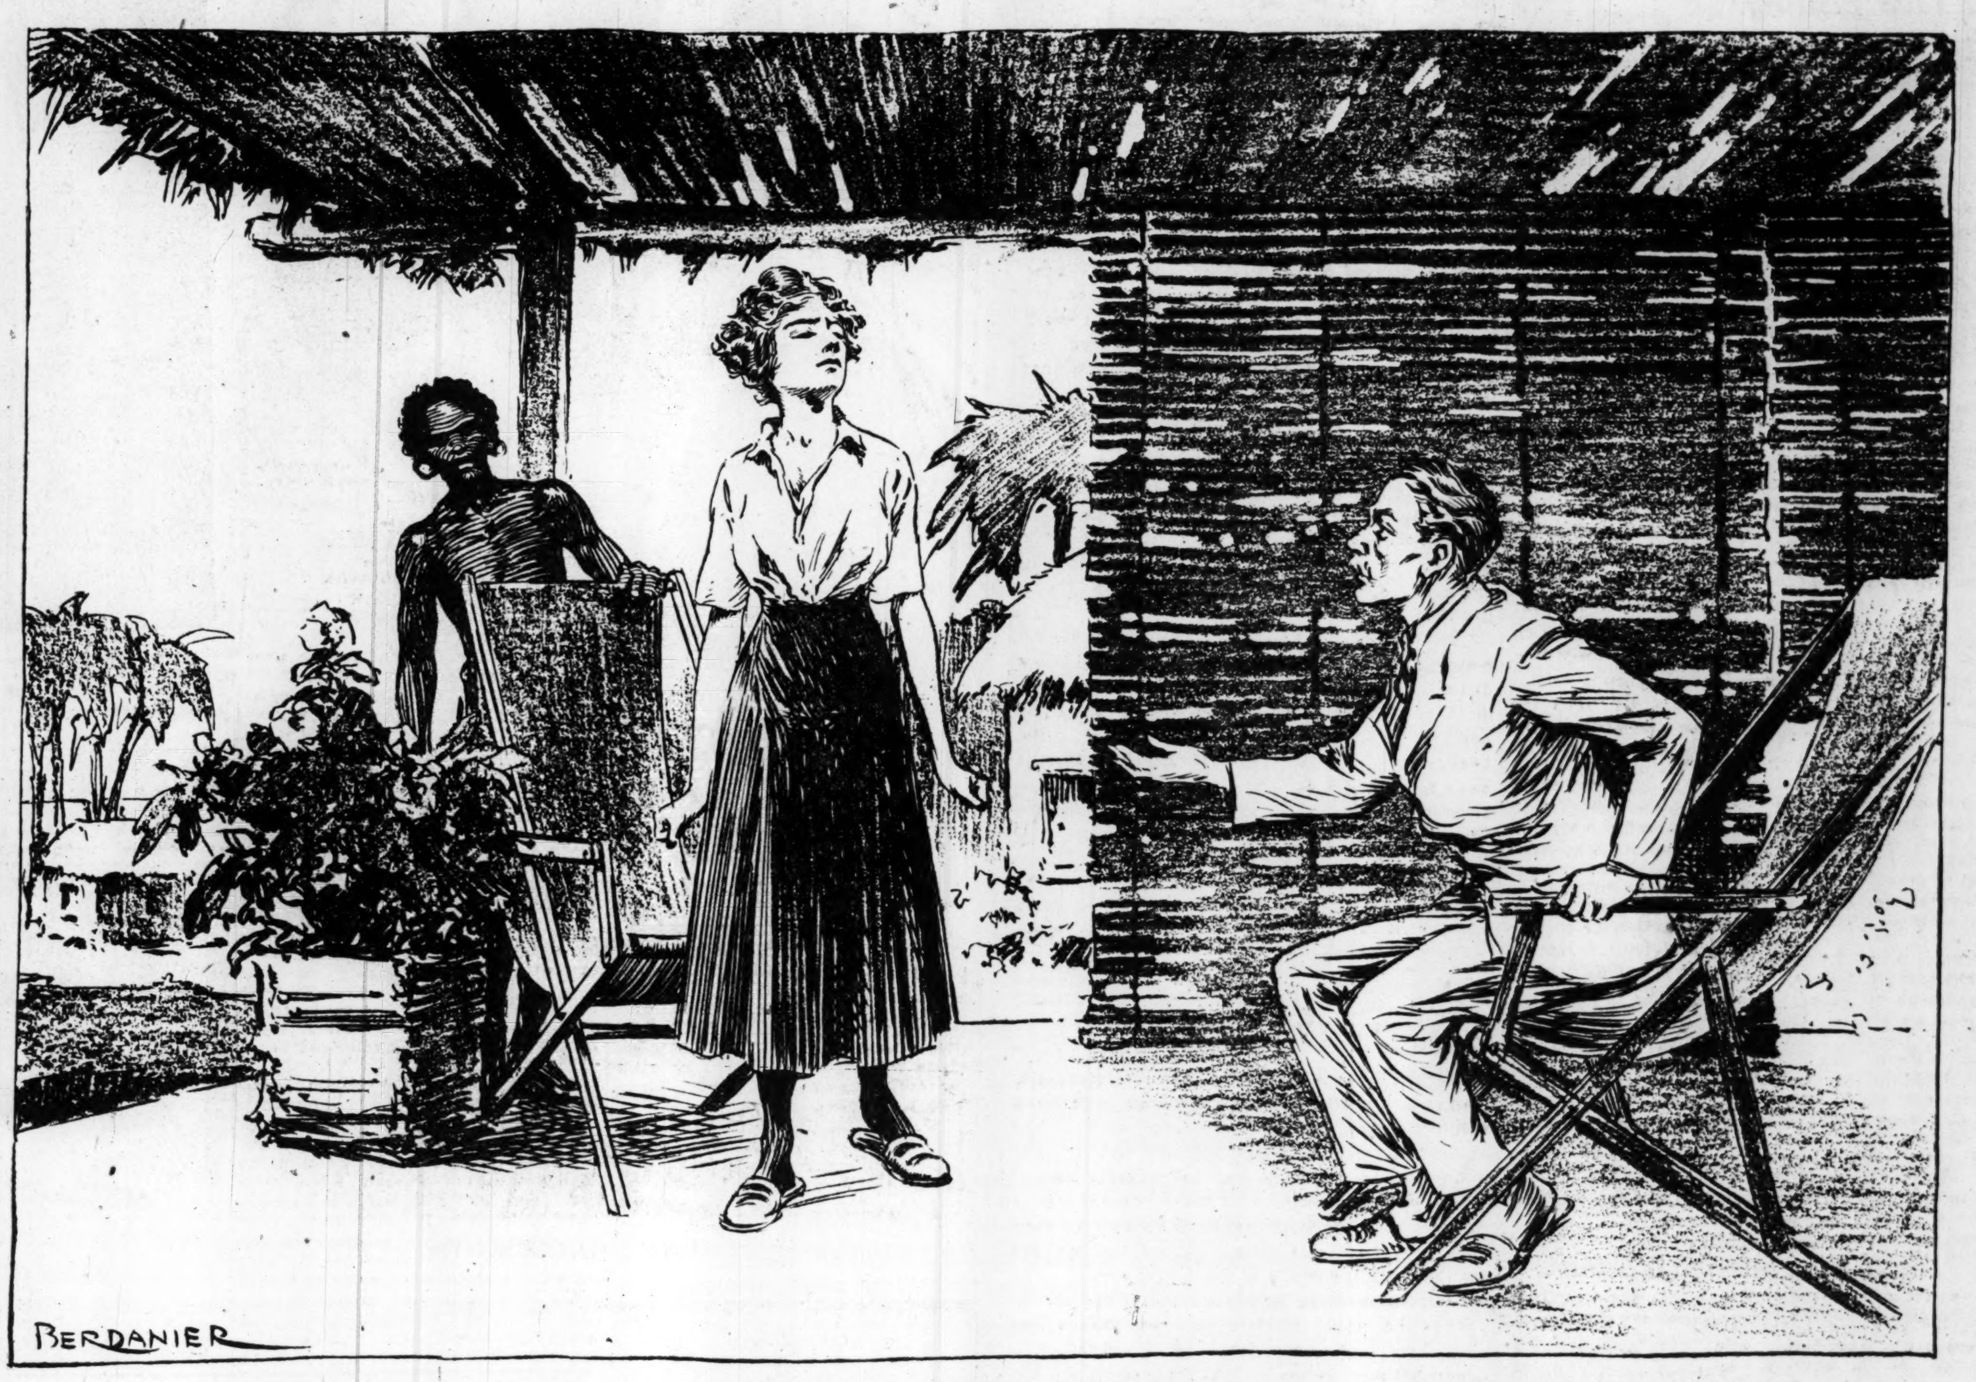
JACK LONDON'S

Gripping Story of the South Seas

Synopsis of Preceding Installments.

A SCOURGE has descended upon one of the Solomon Islands, where David Sheldon, in the absence of his partner, is conducting their plantation and keeping two hundred savages, workers on the place, under discipline. Desperately ill himself, Sheldon keeps alive and keeps the natives under his thumb solely by a display of will power. With a death rate of four men a day, things have come to a most serious pass, when the ship Jessie, which brings supplies to the Island, arrives in port. But Sheldon's joy at the sight of the vessel is changed to despair when he learns that illness has broken out aboard ship and when his partner is brought ashore in a dying condition. He wearily turns to the task of taking the plantation "into his fist" once more. Relief comes in the shape of a typhoon, which blows the pestilence from the island. Sheldon, however, is stricken with fever. Four days later a whaleboat fights its way to shore through huge waves and one of those who alights is a girl, Joan Lackland, who takes affairs into her own hands and nurses Sheldon through the fever. She is a young American, in search of adventure. He discovers in her some remarkable traits, including an ability to shoot.



"You have presumed, you have dared"——

But she bit her lip and fired again. The bullet emitted a sharp shriek as it ricochetted into space. The metal block rattled back and forth. Again and again she fired, till the clip was emptied of its eight cartridges. Six of them were hits. The block still swayed at the gaff end, but it was battered out of all usefulness. Sheldon was astonished. It was better than he or even Hughie Drummond could have done. The women he had known, when they sporadically fired a rifle or revolver, usually shrieked, shut their eyes and blazed away into space.

"That's really good shooting—for a woman," he said. "You only missed it twice, and it was a strange weapon."

"But I can't make out the two misses," she complained. "The gun worked beautifully, too. Give me another clip and I'll hit it eight times for anything you wish."

"I don't doubt it. Now I'll have to get a new block. Viaburi! Here you fella, catch one fella block along storeroom."

"I'll wager you can't do it eight out of eight—anything you wish," she challenged.

"No fear of my taking it on," was his answer. "Who taught you to shoot?"

"Oh, my father, at first, and then Von, and his cowboys. He was a shot—dad, I mean, though Von was splendid, too."

Sheldon wondered secretly who Von was, and he speculated as to whether it was Von who two years previously had led her to believe that nothing remained for her but matrimony.

"What part of the United States is your home?" he asked. "Chicago or Wyoming, or somewhere out there? You know you haven't told me a thing about yourself. All that I know is that you are Miss Joan Lackland from anywhere."

"You'd have to go farther west to find my stamping grounds."

"Ah, let me see—Nevada?"

She shook her head.

"California?"

"Still farther west."

"It can't be, or else I've forgotten my geography."

"It's your politics," she laughed. "Don't you remember 'annexation'?"

"The Philippines!" he cried, triumphantly.

"No, Hawaii. I was born there. It is a beautiful land. My, I'm almost homesick for it already. Not that I haven't been away. I was in New York when the crash came. But I do think it is the sweetest spot on earth—Hawaii, I mean."

"Then what under the sun are you doing down here in this God-forsaken place?" he asked. "Only fools come here," he added bitterly.

"Nielsen wasn't a fool, was he?" she queried. "As I understand, he made three millions here."

"Only too true, and that fact is responsible for my being here."

"And for me, too," she said. "Dad heard about him in the Marquesas, and so we started. Only poor dad didn't get here."

"He—your father—died?" he faltered.

She nodded, and her eyes grew soft and moist.

"I might as well begin at the beginning." She lifted her head with a proud air of dismissing sadness after the manner of a woman qualified to wear a Baden-Powell and a long-barreled Colt's. "I was born at Hilo. That's on the island of Hawaii—the biggest and best in the whole group. I was brought up the way most girls in Hawaii are brought up. They live in the open, and they know how to ride and swim before they know what six-times-six is. As for me, I can't remember when I first got on a horse nor when I learned to swim. That came before my A B C's. Dad owned cattle ranches on Hawaii and Maui—big ones, for the islands. Hokuna had 200,000 acres alone. It extended in between Mauna Kea and Mauna Loa, and it was there I learned to shoot goats and wild cattle. On Molokai they have big spotted deer. Von was the manager of Hokuna. He had two daughters about my own age, and I always spent the hot season there, and, once a whole year. The three of us were like Indians. Not that we ran wild, exactly, but that we were wild to run wild. There were always the governesses, you know, and lessons, and sewing, and housekeeping; but I'm afraid we were too often bribed to our tasks with promises of horses or of cattle drives.

"Von had been in the army, and Dad was an old sea dog, and they were both stern disciplinarians; only the two girls had no mother, and neither had I, and they were two men after all. They spoiled us terribly. You see, they didn't have any wives, and they made chums out of us—when our tasks were done. We had to learn to do everything about the house twice as well as the native servants did it—that was so that we should know how to manage some day. And we always made the cocktails, which was too holy a rite for any servant. Then, too, we were never allowed anything we could not take care of ourselves. Of course, the cowboys roped and saddled our horses, but we had to be able ourselves to go out in the paddock and rope our horses"——

"What do you mean by rope?" Sheldon asked.

"To lariat them, to lasso them. And dad and Von timed us in the saddling and made a most rigid examination of the result. It was the same way with our revolvers and rifles. The houseboys always cleaned them and greased them; but we had to learn how in order to see that they did it properly. More than once, at first, one or the other of us had our rifles taken away for a week just because of a tiny speck of rust. We had to know how to build fires in the driving rain, too, out of wet wood, when we camped out, which was the hardest thing of all—except grammar, I do believe. We learned more from dad and Von than from the governesses. Dad taught us French and Von German. We learned both languages passably well, and we learned them wholly in the saddle or in camp.

"In the cool season the girls used to come down and visit me in Hilo, where dad had two houses, one at the beach; or the three of us used to go down to our place in Puna, and that meant canoes and boats and fishing and swimming. Then, too, dad belonged to the Royal Hawaiian Yacht Club, and took us racing and cruising. Dad could never get away from the sea, you know. When I was 14 I was dad's actual housekeeper, with entire power over the servants, and I am very proud of that period of my life. And when I was 16 we three girls were all sent up to California to Mills Seminary, which was quite fashionable and stifling. How we used to long for home! We didn't chum with the other girls, who called us little cannibals, just because we came from the Sandwich Islands, and who made invidious remarks about our ancestors banqueting on Capt. Cook—which was historically untrue, and, besides, our ancestors hadn't lived in Hawaii.

"I was three years at Mills Seminary, with trips home, of course, and two years in New York; and then dad went smash in a sugar plantation on Maui. The report of the engineers had not been right. Then dad had built a railroad that was called 'Lackland's folly'—it will pay ultimately, though. But it contributed to the smash. The Pelaulau ditch was the finishing blow. And nothing would have happened anyway, if it hadn't been for that big money panic in Wall street. Dear, good dad! He never let me know. But I read about the crash in the newspapers and hurried home. It was before that, though, that people had been dinging into my ears that marriage was all any woman could get out of life, and good-by to romance. Instead of which, with dad's failure, I fell right into romance."

"How long ago was that?" Sheldon asked.

"Last year—the year of the panic."

"Let me see," Sheldon pondered with an air of gravity. 'Sixteen plus five, plus one, equals twenty-two. You were born in 1887?"

"Yes; but it is not nice of you."

"I am really sorry," he said, "but the problem was too obvious."

'Can't you ever say nice things? Or is it the way you English have?" There was a snap in her gray eyes, and her lips quivered suspiciously for a moment. "I should recommend, Mr. Sheldon, that you read Gertrude Atherton's American Wives and English Husbands."

"Thank you, I have. It's over there." He pointed at the generously filled bookshelves. "But I am afraid it is rather partisan."

"Anything un-English is bound to be," she retorted. 'I never have liked the English anyway. The last one I knew was an overseer. Dad was compelled to discharge him."

"One swallow doesn't make a summer."

"But that Englishman made lots of trouble—there! And now please don't make me any more absurd than I already am."

"I'm trying not to."

"Oh, for that matter"—— She tossed her head, opened her mouth to complete the retort, then changed her mind. "I shall go on with my history. Dad had practically nothing left, and he decided to return to the sea. He'd always loved it, and I half believe that he was glad things had happened as they did. He was like a boy again, busy with plans and preparations from morning till night. He used to sit up half the night talking things over with me. That was after I had shown him that I was really resolved to go along.

"He had made his start, you know, in the South Seas—pearls and pearl shell—and he was sure that more fortunes, in trove of one sort and another, were to be picked up. Cocoanut planting was his particular idea, with trading, and maybe pearling, along with other things, until the plantation should come into bearing. He traded off his yacht for a schooner, the Miele, and away we went. I took care of him and studied navigation. He was his own skipper. We had a Danish mate, Mr. Ericson, and a mixed crew of Japanese and Hawaiians. We went up and down the Line Islands, first, until dad was heartsick. Everything was changed. They had been annexed and divided by one Power or another, while big companies had stepped in and gobbled the land, trading rights, fishing rights, everything.

"Next we sailed for the Marquesas. They were beautiful, but the natives were nearly extinct. Dad was cut up when he learned that the French charged an export duty on copra—he called it medieval—but he liked the land. There was a valley of 15,000 acres on Nuka-hiva, half inclosing a perfect anchorage, which he fell in love with and bought for 1200 Chili dollars. But the French taxation was outrageous (that was why the land was so cheap), and, worst of all, we could obtain no labor. What kanakas there were wouldn't work, and the officials seemed to sit up nights thinking out new obstacles to put in our way.

"Six months was enough for dad. The situation was hopeless. 'We'll go to the Solomons,' he said, 'and get a whiff of English rule. And if there are no openings there, we'll go on to the Bismarck Archipelago. I'll wager the Admiralties are not yet civilized.' All preparations were made, things packed on board and a new crew of Marquesans and Tahitians shipped. We were just ready to start to Tahiti, where a lote of repairs and refitting for the Miele were necessary, when poor dad came down sick and died."

"And you were left all alone?"

Joan nodded.

"Very much alone. I had no brothers nor sisters, and all dad's people were drowned in a Kansas cloudburst. That happened when he was a little boy. Of course, I could go back to Von. But why should I go? Besides, there were dad's plans, and I felt that it devolved upon me to carry them out. It seemed a fine thing to do. Also, I wanted to carry them out. And—here I am.

"Take my advice and never go to Tahiti. It is a lovely place, and so are the natives, but the white people! Now Barabbas lived in Tahiti. Thieves, robbers and liars—that is what they are. The honest men wouldn't require the fingers of one hand to count. The fact that I was a woman only simplified matters with them. They robbed me on every pretext, and they lied without pretext or need. Poor Mr. Ericson was corrupted. He joined the robbers and o k'd all their demands even up to a thousand per cent. If they robbed me of 10 francs, his share was 3. One bill of 1500 francs I paid netted him 500 francs. All this, of course, I learned afterward. But the Miele was old, the repairs had to be made, and I was charged not three prices, but seven prices.

"I never shall know how much Ericson got out of it. He lived ashore in a nicely furnished house. The shipwrights were giving it to him rent free. Fruit and vegetables, fish, meat and ice came to his house every day and he paid for none of it. It was part of his graft from the various merchants. And all the while, with tears in his eyes, he bemoaned the vile treatment I was receiving from the gang. No, I did not fall among thieves. I went to Tahiti.

"But when the robbers fell to cheating one another, I got my first clews to the state of affairs. One of the robbed robbers came to me after dark with facts, figures and assertions. I knew I was ruined if I went to law. The Judges were corrupt like everything else. But I did do one thing. In the dead of night I went to Ericson's house. I had the same revolver I've got now, and I made him stay in bed while I overhauled things. Nineteen hundred and odd francs was what I carried away with me. He never complained to the police, and he never came back on board. As for the rest of the gang, they laughed and snapped their fingers at me. There were two Americans in the place, and they warned me to leave the law alone unless I wanted to leave the Miele behind as well.

"Then I sent to New Zealand and got a German mate. He had a master's certificate, and was on the ship's papers as captain, but I was a better navigator than he, and I was really captain myself. I lost her, too, but it's no reflection on my seamanship. We were drifting four days outside there in dead calms. Then the nor'wester caught on and drove us on the lee shore. We made sail and tried to claw off, when the rotten work of the Tahiti shipwrights became manifest. Our jib-boom and all our headstays carried away. Our only chance was to turn and run through the passage between Florida and Ysabel. And when we were safely through, in the twilight, where the chart shows 14 fathoms as the shoalest water, we smashed on a coral patch. The poor old Miele struck only once and then went clear; but it was too much for her, and we just had time to clear away in the boat when she went down. The German mate was drowned. We lay all night to a sea-drag, and next morning sighted your place here."

"I suppose you will go back to Von, now?" Sheldon queried.

"Nothing of the sort. Dad planned to go to the Solomons. I shall look about for some land and start a small plantation. Do you know of any good land around here? Cheap?"

"By George, you Yankees are remarkable, really remarkable," said Sheldon. "I should never have dreamed of such a venture."

"Adventure," Joan corrected him.

"That's right—adventure it is. And if you'd gone ashore on Malaita instead of Guadalcanar, you'd have been kai-kai'd long ago, along with your noble Tahitian sailors."

Joan shuddered.

"To tell the truth," she confessed, "we were very much afraid to land on Guadalcanar. I read in the Sailing Directions that the natives were treacherous and hostile. Some day I should like to go to Malaita. Are there any plantations there?"

"Not one. Not a white trader even."

"Then I shall go over on a recruiting vessel some time."

"Impossible!" Sheldon cried. "It is no place for a woman."

'I shall go just the same," she repeated.

"But no self-respecting woman"——

"Be careful," she warned him. "I shall go some day, and then you may be sorry for the names you have called me."

CHAPTER VI.

TEMPEST.

IT was the first time Sheldon had been at close quarters with an American girl, and he would have wondered if all American girls were like Joan Lackland had he not had wit enough to realize that she was not at all typical. Her quick mind and changing moods bewildered him, while her outlook on life was so different from what he conceived a woman's outlook should be that he was more often than not at sixes and sevens with her. He could never anticipate what she would say or not next. Of only one thing was he sure, and that was that whatever she said or did was bound to be unexpected and unsuspected. There seemed, too, something almost hysterical in her makeup. Her temper was quick and stormy, and she relied too much on herself and too little on him, which did not approximate at all to his ideal of woman's conduct when a man was around. Her assumption of equality with him was disconcerting, and at times he half-consciously resented the impudence and bizarreness of her intrusion upon him—rising out of the sea in a howling nor'wester, fresh from poking her revolver under Ericson's nose, protected by her gang of huge Polynesian sailors, and settling down in Berande like any shipwrecked sailor. It was all on a par with her Baden-Powell and the long 38 Colt's.

At any rate, she did not look the part. And that was what he could not forgive. Had she been short-haired, heavy-jawed, large-muscled, hard-bitten, and utterly unlovely in every way, all would have been well. Instead of which she was hopelessly and deliciously feminine. Her hair worried him, it was so generously beautiful. And she was so slenderly and prettily the woman—the girl, rather—that it cut him like a knife to see her, with quick, comprehensive eyes and sharply imperative voice, superintend the launching of the whaleboat through the surf. In imagination he could see her roping a horse and it always made him shudder. Then, too, she was so many-sided. Her knowledge of literature and art surprised him, while deep down was the feeling that a girl who knew such things had no right to know how to rig tackles, heave up anchors and sail schooners around the South Seas. Such things in her brain were like so many oaths on her lips. While for such a girl to insist that she was going on a recruiting cruise around Malaita was positive self-sacrilege.

He was perturbedly harked back to her femininess. She could play the piano far better than his sisters at home, and with far finer appreciation—the piano that poor Hughie had so heroically labored over to keep in condition. And when she strummed the guitar and sang liquid, velvety Hawaiian hulas, he sat entranced. Then she was all woman, and the magic of sex kidnaped the irritations of the day and made him forget the big revolver, the Baden-Powell and all the rest. But what right, the next thought in his brain would whisper, had such a girl to swagger around like a man and exult that adventure was not dead? Women that adventured were adventuresses, and the connotation was not nice. Besides, he was not enamored of adventure. Not since he was a boy had it appealed to him—though it would have driven him hard to explain what had brought him from England to the Solomons if it had not been adventure.

Sheldon certainly was not happy. The unconventional state of affairs was too much for his conservative disposition and training. Berande, inhabited by one lone white man, was no place for Joan Lackland. Yet he racked his brain for a way out, and even talked it over with her. In the first place, the steamer from Australia was not due for three weeks.

"One thing is evident; you don't want me here," she said. "I'll man the whaleboat tomorrow and go over to Tulagi."

"But as I told you before, that is impossible," he cried. "There is no one there. The Resident Commissioner is away in Australia. There is only one white man, a third assistant under strapper and ex-sailor—a common sailor. He is in charge of the Government of the Solomons, to say nothing of a hundred or so niggers—prisoners. Besides, he is such a fool that he would fine you five pounds sterling for not having entered at Tulagi, which is the port of entry, you know. He is not a nice man, and I repeat, it is impossible."

"There is Guvutu," she suggested.

He shook his head.

"There's nothing there but fever and five white men who are drinking themselves to death. I couldn't permit it."

"Oh, thank you," she said quietly. "I guess I'll start today. Viaburi! You go along Noah, speak 'm come along me."

"Where are you going?" Sheldon asked in surprise. "Viaburi! You stop."

"To Guvutu—immediately," was her reply.

"But I won't permit it."

"That is why I am going. You said it once before, and it is something I cannot brook."

"What?" He was bewildered by her sudden anger. "If I have offended in any way"——

"Viaburi, you fetch 'm one fella Noa Noah along me," she commanded.

The black boy started to obey.

"Viaburi! You no stop I break 'm head belong you. And now, Miss Lackland, I insist; you must explain. What have I said or done to merit this?"

"You have presumed, you have dared"——

She choked and swallowed and could not go on.

Sheldon looked the picture of despair.

"I confess my head is going around with it all," he said. "If you could only be explicit."

"As explicit as you were when you told me that you would not permit me to go to Guvutu?"

"But what's wrong with that?"

"But you have no right—no man has the right—to tell me what he will permit or not permit. I'm too old to have a guardian, nor did I sail all the way to the Solomons to find one."

"A gentleman is every woman's guardian."

"Well, I'm not every woman—that's all. Will you kindly allow me to send your boy for Noa Noah? I wish him to launch the whaleboat. Or shall I go myself for him?"

Both were now on their feet, she with flushed cheeks and angry eyes, he, puzzled, vexed, and alarmed. The black boy stood like a statue—a plum-black statue—taking no interest in the transactions of these incomprehensible whites, but dreaming with calm eyes of a certain bush village high on the jungle slopes of Malaita, with blue smoke curling up from the grass houses against the gray background of an oncoming mountain squall.

"But you won't do anything so foolish"——he began.

"There you go again," she cried.

"I didn't mean it that way, and you know I didn't." He was speaking slowly and gravely. "And that other thing, that not permitting—it is only a manner of speaking. Of course I am not your guardian. You know you can go to Guvutu if you want"—"or to the devil," he was almost tempted to add. "Only, I should deeply regret it, that is all. And I am very sorry that I should have said anything that hurt you. Remember, I am an Englishman."

Joan smiled and sat down again.

"Perhaps I have been hasty," she admitted. "You see, I am intolerant of restraint. If you only knew how I have been compelled to fight for my freedom. It is a sore point with me, this being told what I am to do or not do by you self-constituted lords of creation. Viaburi! You stop along kitchen. No bring 'm Noa Noah. And now, Mr. Sheldon, what am I to do? You don't want me here, and there doesn't seem to be any place for me to go."

"That is unfair. Your being wrecked here has been a godsend to me. I was very lonely and very sick. I really am not certain whether or not I should have pulled through had you not happened along. But that is not the point. Personally, purely selfishly personally, I should be sorry to see you go. But I am not considering myself. I am considering you. It—it is hardly the proper thing, you know. If I were married—if there were some woman of your own race here—but as it is"——

"I cannot follow you," she said. "In one breath you tell me I must go, and in the next breath you tell me there is no place to go and that you will not permit me to go. What is a poor girl to do?"

"That's the trouble," he said helplessly.

"And the situation annoys you."

"Only for your sake."

"Then let me save your feelings by telling you that it does not annoy me at all—except for the row you are making about it. I never allow what can't be changed to annoy me. There is no use in fighting the inevitable. Here is the situation. You are here. I am here. I can't go elsewhere, by your own count. You certainly can't go elsewhere and leave me here alone with a whole plantation and 200 woolly cannibals on my hands. Therefore, you stay, and I stay. It is very simple. Also, it is adventure. And furthermore, you needn't worry for yourself. I am not matrimonially inclined. I came to the Solomons for a plantation, not a husband."

Sheldon flushed, but remained silent.

"I know what you are thinking," she laughed gayly. "That if I were a man, you'd wring my neck for me. And I deserve it, too. I'm so sorry. I ought not to keep on hurting your feelings."

"I'm afraid I rather invite it," he said, relieved by the signs of the tempest subsiding.

"I have it," she announced. "Lend me a gang of your boys for today. I'll build a grass house for myself over in the far corner of the compound—on piles, of course. I can move in tonight. I'll be comfortable and safe. The Tahitians can keep an anchor watch just as aboard ship. And then I'll study cocoanut planting. In return, I'll run the kitchen end of your household and give you some decent food to eat. And finally, I won't listen to any of your protests. I know all that you are going to say and offer—your giving the bungalow up to me and building a grass house for yourself. And I won't have it. You may as well consider everything settled. On the other hand, if you don't agree, I will go across the river, beyond your jurisdiction, and build a village for myself and my sailors, whom I shall send in the whaleboat to Guvutu for provisions. And now I want you to teach me billiards."

Women Adjusting Themselves to War Conditions and Find Time for Minor Social Events—Series of Affairs for Two Visiting Girls and Two Weddings to Be Feature of Week.

NOW that the winter season is opened, women seem to be adjusting themselves more to the conditions which war has thrust upon them and seem to have their war work better regulated and systematized so that a little more thought can be given to social affairs. Of course, no one wants to entertain in an elaborate or lavish way at this time, but a certain amount of social contact is an essential part of every woman's life, and she needs such diversion as small teas, dinners, dances and the like. Then, too, the young girls must not be cheated entirely out of their right to a good time, and it behooves the mothers to see that they have at least a share of it.

There are two attractive visiting girls who are having a round of affairs given for them, all of course of an informal nature. Miss Olga Drexel Dahlgren, is the guest of Miss Delancey Floyd-Jones, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Robert H. Floyd-Jones of 5007 Waterman avenue. Miss Annette Washburn of Chicago, is the guest of Miss Doris Drummond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Drummond of 5339 Berlin avenue, and will also visit Miss Charlotte Reybourn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amadee Reyburn of 4634 Lindell boulevard. These young girls, with those who might be termed "war" debutantes, since they are not presented to society in the way that debutantes formerly were, are the inspiration for many delightful gatherings. On Thursday, Miss Louise Francis of 4915 Lindel boulevard, will give a skating party, followed by a tea at her home. Monday, Miss Drummond entertained with a bridge party, and on Wednesday, Miss Ruth O'Reilly of 27 Washington terrace, entertained with bridge. Mrs. Floyd-Jones will give a tea for them in the near future and many more affairs will be given.

THE first regular Symphony concert o fthe season was given on Friday afternoon and brought fourth a large and enthusiastic audience. Mme. Louise Homer opened the concert by singing the national anthem. All through the audience women were knitting. In the parquet, in the boxes and in the balcony the knitting needles were busy while the music was in progress. Among those in attendance were Mme. Frances G Eaton, C. C. Conner, Halsey C. Ives and Miss Caroline Ives, Mmes. H. N. Davis, R. McKittrick Jones, Franklin Ferris, Calvin Lightner, Frank Crunden, Eugene Pettus, D. R. Francis, John Towler, Mrs. Seth Cobb and Miss Josephine Cobb, Mmes. William Dee Becker, Herman Steinwender, Paul Tupper, Dwight Tredway, George Niedringhaus, Tom Wright, Arthur Stickney, W. K. Bixby, Lewis Rumsey, Walker Hill, J. D. Wooster Lambert, Stewart McDonald, William Bagnell and many others.

THERE is a charity benefit on Wednesday which is being anticipated with a great deal of interest and pleasure. Mrs. Elliot K. Ludington of 26 Washington terrace will throw open her home for the benefit of the Protestant Orphans' Home at Webster Groves, which is a most worthy institution and one in which a number of women socially prominent are interested. Mrs. Ludlington will have on display and for sale about 25 or 30 quilts which she herself has made. The proceeds will go to the Orphans' Home. Many women consider it almost an achievement of a lifetime to make one quilt or two, but to think of making 25 or 30 and then parting with them for a charitable purpose is certainly a commendable sacrifice for charity's sake. These quilts, by those who have seen them, are said to be of unusual beauty and workmanship and chances will be sold on at least two of them. On Tuesday the hours will be from 10 in the morning until 10 in the evening. Tea will be served by a number of young girls, among them Misses Jane Bemis, Queenie Deacon, Alice Ladd, Vesta Reed, Helen Watts and Louise Zelnicker. A small admission fee will be charged at the door and anyone is welcome to come. The ladies who will assist Mrs. Ludingtown are Mmes. George Steedman, Dwiht Dana, Judson Bemis, Herbert Parker, William R. Compton, Richard S. Hawes, Alden Little, B. F. Bush, A. C. Meier, Henry Boeckeler, A. Robertson and Miss May Schofield. It is expected that a large number will attend as it will be an opportunity to view a fine collection of quilts with a chance to purchase if one desires, as well as aiding a very deserving charity.

St. Louis women show their sensible economy by wearing tailor-made suits. This has been one of my most successful seasons regardless of strenuous times. M. M. Garoian. —ADV.

THIS week there are two weddings of importance on the social calendar. Tuesday Miss Margaret Wright will become the bride of Charles A. Falvey of Boston and on Saturday Miss Isabel Cabanne will wed Lieut. Sevier Rains Tupper, U. S. A. Miss Wright's wedding will take place at the home of her father, George M. Wright of 4457 Westminster place. Mrs. Andrew Jackson Lindsay and Mrs. Edward Limberg will be the matron of honor and the bridesmaids will be Misses Ellanore Scott, Mildren Orthwein, Nancy Bates and Mildred Maxwell. John Stewart McKaig of New York will be the best man.

Miss Cabanne's marriage will be quietly solemnized at the residence of her mother, Mrs. L. Dutilh Cabanne, 4515 Berlin avenue. All the arrangements will be very simple, owing to the recent death of the bride-elect's father. Miss Dorys Cabanne will be her sister's only attendant and Capt. Delphin Thebaud will be the best man.

A FEATURE of the wedding of Mrs. Maude Moon O'Neil to Edwin W. Lee, which was an event of Monday, was the knitting bag she carried in lieu of a bridal bouquet. It was made of white lace and filled with orchids, roses and lilies of the valley. Not being a "war" wedding it was the only way in which a touch of patriotism could be infused and it was well in keeping with the spirit of the times. Perhaps this innovation will be adopted by other brides, for how useful it would be in the future when a bride is domiciled in her own home serving tea and what could be daintier or more characteristic of a bride than to keep her knitting in a white lace bag? Bridal bouquets fade and wither, but a lace knitting bag would serve its usefulness for many a day.

THE wedding of Virgil Lewis and Miss Gladys Reid took place yesterday in Baltimore. It was to have been a fashionable event of last Thursday in that city, but due to the serious illness of the bride's mother all the plans were changed. The ceremony was quietly performed yesterday at 2 o'clock in the presence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Andrew Melville Reid, who is a patient at the Union Protestant Infirmary in Baltimore. The Rev. Dr. Edwin Barnes Niver, rector of Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, where it was originally intended to have the wedding, officiated. Only the two families and a few intimate friends attended.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. Harry Fielding Reid, wore a costume of black velvet with a hat to match, and a corsage bouquet of gardenias. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. Lewis and his bride left for a brief wedding trip, after which Mr. Lewis will report for duty at San Antonio, Tex., where he will be assigned to the balloon service of the aviation corps and where his bride will join him after her mother has sufficiently recovered from her illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Lewis and their daughter, Miss Roberta Lewis, departed Thursday for Baltimore to witness the ceremony and are at the Belvedere Hotel. Miss Reid and her mother recently returned from France after an absence of several years, where they took an active part in the war relief work, Miss Reid having been decorated by the French Government. She and her mother were guests of Marshall Joffre and Madame Joffre at their home in Paris, the latter being their cousin. The bride-elect is considered one of the most charming girls ever presented to society in Baltimore.

Dr. and Mrs. Reid and their daughter, Miss Doris Fielding Reid, entertained at luncheon before the wedding at their home for Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Miss Roberta Lewis and Mr. Virgil Lewis. Miss Doris Reid reached Baltimore from New York for the wedding.

Mr. Lewis served with the American ambulance corps in France and after the entry of the United States into the war he volunteered in the aviation corps and returned to America with Mrs. Reid and Miss Reid several weeks ago.

ON account of the recent death of Miss Anne Lumaghi's grandmother, Mrs. James E. Blythe who was Miss Adine Chauvin, the plans for her wedding to Henry Ames Cushman have been changed. The wedding was to have been a large and fashionable event of Nov. 28 with a number in the bridal party. However, it will still be on the same date but the bride-elect will have her young cousin, Mary Elizabeth Lumaghi as her only attendant and the bridegroom's brother, Robert Cushman, will be the best man. The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride's father, Joseph Lumaghi, at 4633 Berlin avenue at 8 o'clock in the evening and Father Spencer will officiate. Only the family and a very few intimate friends will be present.

Miss Hortense Smith, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Franklin Smith of 5535 Waterman avenue, and Amos Mansfield Kidder were married at 8:30 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's parents. Only the family and members of the bridal party were present. It was planned to have a large wedding in Centenary Church, of which the bride's father is pastor, but Mr. Kidder was able to obtain a 10 days' leave at this time and the wedding was advanced. Mr. Kidder Friday completed his course of training at Scott Aviation Field by a cross-country flight. He has been Cadet Seargeant since Scott Field was established.

The bride's sister, Miss Mildred Smith, was maid of honor and Miss Margaret Kidder, sister of the bridegroom, Misses Harriet Milliken, Maurine Barnes and Jess Ault of Kansas City were the bridemaids. The groom's only attendant was Brooks Bird of Baltimore.

The bride's grown was of white satin with a long court train and trimmed in seed pearls and orange blossoms. She wore her mother's lace wedding veil, which was fastened to her head with a wreath of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white orchids and lilies of the valley. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, in front of a bower of greens and white chrysanthemums.

Mr. Kidder and his bride departed for New York to spend their honeymoon, but will return to St. Louis at the expiration of his furlough. He is the son of Mrs. Edward Roberts of New York, who, with Mr. Roberts, arrived Thursday and attended the wedding. An aunt of the bridegroom, Mrs. L. Buckley, and her daughter from New York also were present.

The American Fund for French Wounded, of which Mrs. Edward J. Walsh Jr. is chairman, will open new workrooms at 3621 Washington boulevard, and be ready for workers Tuesday. The organization has charge of the restoration of the Aisne and Somme districts in France to relieve the people and restore the villages, and clothes and money are needed.

The biggest event of the week in a charity way was the card party at the Hotel Statler for the benefit of the Missouri Relief for the Children of France. More than 185 tables were arranged for the game and many women who did not care to play cards, took their knitting with them and grouped themselves for a knitting party, thus contributing to the fund.

A reception will be given Tuesday by the St. Louis Branch of the Needlework Guild of America, at the Second Baptist Church, from 3 until 5 o'clock. Mrs. John T. Davis Jr. is the president of the St. Louis branch and Mmes. A. B. Ewing, Charles Nagel and Louis Marion McCall are the vice presidents. Mrs John W. Day is the secretary and Mrs. Samuel Scott is the treasurer. There will be a number of speakers Tuesday. Mrs. Elias Michael will represent the Jewish institutions; Miss Van Sickles, the Children's Aid Society; Miss Mary Hoxey, the Catholic institutions, and Miss Grace Anderson the Municipal Visiting Nurses' Association.

This organization does much good among our needy sick and poor by supplying them with garments and necessities and many prominent women are connected with the St Louis branch.

Mrs. Milo B. Heinrichs arrived home Friday after a two weeks' visit with relatives in Washington. Mrs. Heinrichs has leased her home on Vernon avenue and will spend the winter with her father, Edward Devoy of 5837 Cates avenue.

To Make Hairs Vanish From Face, Neck or Arms

Keep a little powdered delatone handy and when hairy growths appear make a paste with some of the powder and a little water, then spread over hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be entirely free from hair or blemish. This simple treatment is unfailing, but care should be exercised to be sure and get genuine delatone, otherwise you may be disappointed.—ADV.

IMPERFECT NOSES and other facial deformities corrected by my painless, scarless method of treatment. 15 years of successful practice. Hundreds of satisfied patients. Call or write DR. PINKSTAFF, Face Specialist, 505 Jaccard Bldg., St. Louis. Hours, 10 to 5.

"The Right of Queens to Wear Such Gems as These"

These bar pins are beautiful, yes—but further than that—they are new, distinctive, different—

They are designed and made here, and they evidence that particular ability in the designing and making of fine platinum and diamond jewelry that has established the pre-eminence of this diamond store throughout the Middle West—

A reputation second only to that of the fine diamonds which have been sold here for over thirty-four years.

You may purchase by a special arrangement for payment, or—we will be pleased to open a charge account, whichever you prefer.

Garland's
MARK-DOWN SALE—Dresses & Suits
Monday—Tomorrow

We Are Meeting Garment Conditions
Are You?

HERE are values that will PROVE that we are best able to serve you with HIGHEST quality—at LOWER prices than those of a year ago. It costs us a lot of MONEY to take such radical action, but conditions must be met—and we prefer to meet them NOW than a month later—as is the custom of most stores.

Unsettled market conditions, prohibitive garment prices and an increasing general demand for popular-priced merchandise are the reasons for Garland's determination to reduce their stocks of fashionable Suits and Dresses of the better kind, as this is where we are overstocked.

Dresses and Gowns Reduced

And reduced so they'll sell without another reduction. Newspaper space costs too much to make more than one announcement of an occasion of this kind.

$25.00, $29.50 and $35.00 Dresses reduced to...... $18.95
$39.50, $45.00 and $49.50 Dresses reduced to...... $28.50
$50.00, $55.00 and $59.50 Dresses reduced to...... $45.00

The most comprehensive description we can give of this brilliant assemblage of Dame Fashion's latest creations (but few of them have been in the house over 2 weeks) is to say—

"Dresses and Gowns for All Occasions"

Dinner and Evening Gowns—Afternoon and Calling Dresses—Bridge and Matinee Frocks—Dance and Party Frocks—Street, Restaurant Dresses—Dresses for all formal and informal occasions, in all the fabrics of fashion, and nearly 100 styles.

Suits Reduced

THIS we believe to be the GREATEST Suit buying opportunity of the season. In FACT, there's no DOUBT about it. Our Suit stocks NOW are at the climax of value-giving, and for this sale we have taken from our lines, originally priced from $30.00 to $75.00 and grouped them in 2 sale lots—about an equal number of each—and still further reduced them.

Suits, Original Values to $35.00 $21.50
Suits, Original Values to $75.00 $38.75

These magnificent Suits are from the most exclusive Suit manufacturers, and they are the latest authentic types, many of the latest arrivals are included, distinguished by all the new features, such as ripple back or bustle effects.

Trimmings are beautiful furs, hand embroideries, velvets, buttons and braids. The assortment includes extra sizes for large women as well as regular sizes to 44 bust, and special sizes for misses and small women. Materials and colors to please every fancy.

PRIVATE WRITES IN PRAISE OF LIFE AT CAMP FUNSTON

Barnard Willis, in Letter to Friend, Tells of Treatment in National Army.

MEN INTERESTED IN WORK

Barracks Comfortable, Amusements Plentiful and Hospitals Adequate, He Declares.

Barnard Willis, a private in the 314th Engineers' Regiment, at Camp Funston, has written a letter descriptive of life at this camp to a friend in St. Louis, in which he praises the service and the treatment of the men. His letter follows:

"* * * I realize that all outsiders are interested in the organization and development of the national army. To begin with, allow me to predict that this army, when a finished product, if the Eighty-ninth Division at Camp Funston is representative of the whole, will be a fighting machine surpassed by none of the armies abroad. The weeding-out process is going on daily. The course of work is for men only, and was primarily outlined to be purely and simply a 'survival of the fittest,' tending throughout to build up the physique and harden the muscles. Those who cannot keep up are disposed of in channels requiring less arduous efforts.

Admires Government's System.

"An eyewitness at the present time could hardly refrain from admiring and marveling at the unquestionable system by means of which this Government has succeeded in converting an ungainly mass of men, representing every branch of industry, trades people, and in many cases nothing more than vagabonds, into well-drilled, trim-looking and obedient soldiers, and particularly, in consideration of the short time which has elapsed since this evolution began.

"The quarters are frame structures of sufficient permanency to house every eligible man selected for the national army, during his respective period of training. No man is subjected to discomforts which will not be of benefit to him later on. Of course, this life, as elsewhere, is what each individual makes it, and it is a known fact that all armies are institutions which automatically create experts at complaining, but with few exceptions complaints are unfounded, and can generally be traced to contagious cases of homesickness. Barracks are well heated and the interior is flawlessly clean. High ceilings and a wealth of windows supply both excellent ventilation and light."

Many Buy Liberty Bonds.

Regarding subscriptions to the second Liberty Loan, he said:

"Frequently whole companies would average three $50 bonds to the man. In many instances a company of 150 odd men averaged well over the $10,000 mark.

"Major-General Wood has laid special stress on certain of the primary duties of the soldier. The rigors of guard duty have demanded the attentive perseverance of every rookie. I imagine there are few camps in the country where the men have been made to realize at an early date the necessity and seriousness of interior guard.

Amusements Plentiful.

"Amusements are sufficient and more than the close applicant can enjoy. There is a Y. M. C. A. to practically every regiment. Separate buildings are erected out of the funds of the association, and not by the Government, which furnishes only the site. The equipment is of a variety, but in the majority of cuse there is a piano, always in evidence; a number of indoor games, footballs, rugby and soccer; basketballs, medicine balls and such things which may be borrowed at any time by any one. All forms of athletics are encouraged, and every company will have a team to represent it in each branch of sport.

"No man is ignorant of the rules which govern his status as a representative individual of this community. Minor indiscretions are punishable by such means as kitchen duty, window washing and numerous other unpleasant tasks on Sunday or Saturday afternoon. There is a general order against gambling, and in our language, that is law. This is only one of the many preventatives used to insure a high morale.

Adequate Hospital Facilities.

"Adequate facilities are provided to care for all sicknesses, ranging from minor body injuries such as sprains, cuts, etc., to the major operations. Infirmaries are located at regular intervals throughout the reservation. Everything is treated at these except the very serious and contagious cases, which are taken to the base hospital at Fort Riley.

"All of the existing conditions I have attempted to describe above are based on facts and observation, and I have tried to absent idealism as an element. If I have portrayed an under current of enthusiasm it is not artificial, but symbolic of the grip of sentiment which tightens more and more each day around every man.

"News is a welcome requisite. Papers are opened at once upon their arrival, and the headlines scanned for late war news and developments. This is invariably followed by discussions.

"In closing I have but one regret to express, and that is, that I did not get into the game sooner. I am proud to be a member of the national army, but I should like to feel at least that I had had a try at a commission. * * *"

12TH ENGINEERS FORCED TO MOVE BY TEUTON AIRMEN

SQUAD ABANDONS WORK

German Prisoners Say Men Had Been Told Americans Were Australians.

Dr. Harry S. Crossen of 5423 Bartmer avenue, who is a Captain in the Medical Reserve Corps and is now with the Twelfth Engineers behind the British lines in France, has written to his wife telling of how detachments of the regiment have been forced to abandon their work because of the bombardment of their position by the Germans, after it had been located by enemy airplanes.

The letter was written within a few miles of the German trenches in Northern France, where the St. Louis regiment is co-operating with the British forces, and says in part:

"Am writing by a dim lantern light in our little low sheet-iron hut. The thin sheet iron is laid over semicircular iron hoops, the top of the hut being about two feet above our heads. We will probably have to sod them over to keep warm during the winter.

Bombed by German Airmen.

"Things are livening up a bit the last few days. Many times a day the British or the Germans have a shooting match at hostile airplanes. Yesterday was perfectly clear—not a cloud in the sky except the small clouds formed by shrapnel shell bursting around airplanes. Day before yesterday a German plane was brought down near our camp. Yesterday there was much air activity and a couple of 'Fritzie' planes managed to sail over and take a good look at us. The British 'archies' (anti-aircraft guns) were booming away at them right along, but they got away safely with their information. With their planes and observation balloons they have located us, and are beginning to make things too interesting.

"Yesterday a detachment of our men were obliged to abandon their work temporarily on account of shells dropping around them. The Germans have located a light railroad line our men were extending and proceeded to make them a present of 10 or 12 heavy shells, but, fortunately, no one was hit. Yesterday morning, just before daylight the gas alarm was given. We were all aroused and got our respirators ready, but the gas did not reach us. Gas is being used a great deal but it is not likely to reach us in camp unless the wind is especially favorable.

"Another little push on our front early yesterday morning resulted in landing about 50 prisoners in the stockade near our camp. There was one German among them who had been in American and could speak English. He stated that they had been told in the German trenches that the Americans could not possibly get to France on account of the U-boats and that those that purported to be Americans were really Australians. (The Australians have hats similar to ours.)

"The country we are in is devastated beyond description. For miles and miles nothing is left but piles of broken brick and stone where the villages were. Trenches and dugouts and barbed wire entanglements are found at short intervals in all directions. The ground was all fought over, and before the Germans were driven out, they blew up all remaining houses and everything else that could be thus destroyed. No realization of this wholesale destruction is possible except by viewing it, and even then it seems like a horrible dream of sober facts.

Villages Searched for Stoves.

"The British are shipping some 'take-down huts' and we are getting a few of them. We have to furnish the heat and, to find stoves, we search the destroyed villages. There are many stoves in the debris, but most of them are not of any use. Besides, the British had searched the destroyed towns before we came and carried away about all the useful stoves for their dugouts. For the little hut occupied by four of us, someone located a cook stove and had it brought in. We patched it up and tried it, but it was not satisfactory.

"The other day I took a nice long hike to a distant destroyed village (I am having lots of fun exploring) and while there I discovered a stove that was almost whole. It was in an abandoned dugout. Today we went after it with a motor truck and brought back also a big load of kindling and wood from the wrecked houses. We have patched up the stove and stovepipe and put in a damper and are prepared to keep warm this winter. Fuel is going to be a serious problem when the roads get bad. Our men are busy constructing lines toward the firing line and operating them. One of our roads near the camp was shelled today and the men had to seek refuge for a time.

"The engineering regiments have the honor of being the first units of the American army to go to the front and work within shell range of the enemy, and the Twelfth Engineers were among the first of the regiments to get down to work. I think only two or three regiments reached the front before we did. The regular army will need a considerable period of training before they are ready for their work. Am short of writing paper and there is no Y. M. C. A. where we are."

KREYMBORG, A DIFFERENT POET, TO VISIT PLAYERS

Author of "Mushrooms" Will See His "Plays for Poem-Mimes" Rendered.

Alfred Kreymborg, free-versifier, known as the father of the "Others" school of poetry, will be guest of honor at the opening meeting of the Players' Club at the Artists' Guild Monday evening, Dec. 3.

He is the author of "Mushrooms," a book of free verse, and founder of the "Others" magazine. He has written a number of "Plays for Poem-Mimes," in which no lines are spoken by the actors, who express the poem in dance and action, while the poem is being read. Three of these will be given after the Players' dinner by members of the club.

Harriet Monroe, editor of the Poetry Magazine, will be a guest at the dinner, as will Mrs. Mary Aldis, who has established a little theater in Lake Forest, Ill.

FUEL COMMITTEE TAKES FIRST STEP TO CONTROL COAL

EFFECTIVE SATURDAY

Daily Reports of Receipts, Sales and Stock Must Be Made—Ordering in Advance Urged.

The St. Louis Fuel Committee, of which E. D. Nims is chairman, appointed recently to enforce the laws and regulations of the national and State fuel administrations, yesterday issued the first of a series of orders, by which it hopes to obtain accurate and scientific information about the local coal situation. The other members of the committee are Dan C. Nugent Jr. and Charles E. Morrow.

The order, made public yesterday, is effective next Saturday and directs all coal dealers to deliver a customer's ticket to the purchaser of each load of coal, with the name of the field from which the coal is received stamped or written on the face of the ticket. The purpose of the order is to eliminate any misunderstanding or misrepresentation about the grade or price of the coal that might develop.

The names of the Illinois fields from which St. Louis receives most of its suply of coal are given in the order of grade. They are: Big Muddy, Carterville Field, Middle Grade Field, Mount Olive Field and Standard Field. The public is asked to request a ticket beginning next Saturday and observe the name of the field on the icket. It is probable that a list containing the approximate price of coal from these fields will be issued by the committee.

Ordering in Advance Urged.

Plans are under way to prevent a serious shortage in the supply of coal this winter. Dealers have been ordered to make a daily report of their business, and the consumer has been requested to place his order for coal at least one week in advance. At a meeting Friday with the jobbers and mine operators, the committee was assured of their co-operation in a plan to insure an adequate amount of coal for the city for the next four or five months, by conserving the supply.

With the three big factors in the situation—the producers, the dealer and the consumer—working in harmeny, the committee is confident the coal problem here can be kept well in hand for an indefinite period. By keeping in touch with the demand through the daily reports of the dealers, the committee will arrange with the jobbers and the operators for the coal needed, and if the consumer places his order a week in advance, requirements can be anticipated.

Dealers Make First Report.

Details of the order issued to coal dealers, requiring a daily report, were made public. Blanks upon which the report must be made have been mailed to all dealers, and the first reports were made out yesterday. The following questions must be answered each day:

The amount of coal on hand at beginning of each day, receipts in tons, disbursements in tons, coal on hand at end of day, coal in transit, coal sold at yards, total amount delivered and unfilled orders.

The five grades of coal which have the largest sale in this city are written on the blanks, and the dealers must tell how much of each grade is sold. A daily check also is kept on the freight car situation by requesting the dealer to list on the back of the blank, the initials and numbers of all cars of coal received.

500 LAWYERS TO GIVE FREE ADVICE TO SECOND DRAFT MEN

Three Bar Associations to Direct Work of Advisory Board Suggested by Gov. Gardner.

Five hundred St. Louis lawyers will help second draft men fill out their questionnaires and give them free advice on all questions that arise in connection with the draft.

Judge Eugene McQuillin announced yesterday that, in accordance with the wishes of Gov. Gardner, a local advisory body had been formed with a membership of 500, which will work under the direction of the American Bar Association, the Missouri Bar Association and the St. Louis Bar Association.

At a meeting the following Executive Committee was selected: Judge Eugene McQuillin, chairman; Judge Vital W. Garesche, W. R. Sturtevant, Edward C. Eliot and Forrest C. Donnell. The committee will have its headquarters in the offices of the district board in the Boatmen's Bank Building.

Quarters will also be established adjacent to the war boards. Three lawyers will be assigned to each ward and they will have 15 assistants. All questions pertaining to the draft and questionnaire will be referred to these lawyers, who will serve without compensation.

Graham Chapel Organ Recital.

Charles Falloway's free organ recital at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University, will consist of the following program: Bach's Prelude and Fugue in D Minor; Mendelssohn's Sixth Conata for Organ; Dudley Buck's "On the Coast;" a scherzo by James H. Rogers; "Prayer and Cradle Song" by Alexander Guilmant, and a march by W. T. Best.

1094 VEHICLES HOURLY USE SECTION OF LOCUST STREET

Traffic Almost Equals That on Market, Chestnut, Pine, Olive and Washington Combined.

Vehicular traffic on Locust street between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets and at several other points is almost equal to the combined traffic of the same class in the relative blocks on Market, Chestnut, Pine and Olive streets and Washington avenue, according to figures compiled by Director of Streets and Sewers Talbert. The average number of vehicles passing to and fro on the Locust street section named was 1904 hourly, the count shows.

On Chestnut street, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, the average number of vehicles bound in both directions was found to be 646 hourly. On the same block on Pine street the number was 173, on Market street it was 172, and on Washington avenue 235. The largest number of vehicles using Locust street in any one hour was in the block between Jefferson avenue and Beaumont street. The total there was 1113.

It is disclosed by the count that the traffic on Washington avenue between Theresa and Grand avenues is considerably heavier than it is on Lindell between Theresa and Grand avenues. The average number of vehicles in the former block was 568 and in the latter 652. West of Grand avenue on Lindell boulevard the number of vehicles is much greater than on Washington avenue west of Grand avenue.

In the stretch from Grand avenue to Spring avenue the figures are 612 on Lindell and 468 on Washington. On Lindell between Euclid avenue and King's highway, the approach to Forest Park, the number of vehicles was less than on Washington avenue between Euclid and King's highway. There was a decrease of 9 per cent in the traffic on Lindell boulevard between Euclid avenue and King's highway, compared with last year, but there was no corresponding increase in traffic on Washington avenue in the same relative block.

Instant Hair Stain Better Than Slow "Restorers"

Some folks would have you believe that they have discovered some marvelous combination that will "restore" the color to gray, streaked or faded hair, without staining it. No such preparation has ever been discovered. There is only one preparation, so far as we know, that is entirely free from sulphur, lead, silver, mercury, zinc, aniline, coal tar products or their derivatives. That preparation is called "Brownatone." It is so easy and safe to apply that the wonder is that anyone ever uses anything else.

"Brownatone" instantly tints the hair to any shade of brown (or black) that may be desired. If the gray shows on your temples or is streaking your hair—if the ends of your hair are lighter than the balance, or if for any reason you wish to stain all or part of your hair—use "Brownatone."

A sample and a booklet will be sent you (from manufacturers only) upon receipt of 10c. Mention shade desired.

All of the leading drug stores sell "Brownatone." Two sizes, 35c and $1.15. Insist on "Brownatone" at your hairdresser's.

Sold and guaranteed in St. Louis by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Pauley Drug Co. and other leading dealers.

AMERICAN TROOPS TO PLAY SANTA TO FRENCH CHILDREN

Unit in Certain Villages Will Give Toys and Useful Presents to Boys and Girls.

SURPRISE IS PLANNED

Band Concerts Will Be Given; Soldiers to Share Their Day With Orphans.

By THOMAS MARVIN JOHNSON,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, Nov. 17.—It will be a merry Christmas for little French and Belgian boys and girls in black blouses and gingham skirts, living now in villages and hamlets, where a certain unit of American troops is quartered. The Americans are going to play Santa Claus to these children, refugees invalided back to France and Belgium, many of whose fathers died fighting for their lost homes.

There will be Christmas trees, presents and band concerts.

A fund has been started, with soldiers contributing a few francs each to buy each child one useful present, such as shoes, gloves or muffler, one toy and candy, nuts and fruits.

In each town the Americans will erect a Christmas tree, either in the barracks or in a church, where, on Christmas day, all homeless children will be remembered. Soldiers will distribute the gifts, on which will be written the name of the recipient and some Christmas message.

The bands will travel from place to place on motor trucks playing Christmas carols.

It has not been decided whether Santa Claus, the enemy's original Kriss Kringle, will be employed. Maybe the soldiers will dress as Uncle Sam and distribute the gifts.

They are not only going to give the children a merry Christmas, but they will share their own Christmas with the children at the various trees, where they will unwrap their own presents which have come thousands of miles over sea. They and their child guests will have their revel together.

The folks at home should do their Christmas shopping for the soldiers at the earliest possible moment. Indeed, they should do it immediately upon reading this, for transportation is slow and more than a month must be allowed to reach the soldier in France on Christmas day.

The children whom the soldiers are planning to make happy are mostly orphans living with kindly families on the French Government allowance aided by contributions from the villagers.

The whole affair is being kept a secret from the little ones, so it will be a real Christmas surprise. The French are greatly touched by the thoughtfulness of the Americans The Maire of one village thanked them with tears in his eyes.

"Monsieur," he said to the officer who told him of the plan, "you Americans have the good heart."

30 GERMAN AVIATORS OF NOTE DESTROYED BY ALLIES IN YEAR

Each Teuton Flyer, According to Berlin Count, Had Downed 4 or More Adversaries.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Thirty German military aviators, each of whom had brought down four or more of their adversaries, according to the German count, have been destroyed by the entente allies' airmen during the year, as established by information collected from the mortuary columns of German papers. The list includes:

Lieut. Werner Moss of Crefeld, with 47 machines to his credit; Capt. Boelke, with 40; Lieut. Wolf, 33; Lieut. Schafer, 30; Lieut. Almenroeder, 30; Lieut. Richthofen, 24; Lieuts. Wintgens and Baldamus, 18 each; Lieut. Frankel, 17; Lieut. Immelmann and Lieut. Dassembach, 14 each; Second Lieutenant Nathaniel, 14; Second Lieutenants Festner and Pfeiffer and Lieuts. Manschott, Hohndorf, Arigi and Tutschaat, 12 each; Lieuts. von Kendall, Kirmaier, Theiller and Serfert, 11 each; Lieut. Thulzer and Capt. Behr, 19 each. Lieuts. Leffers and Schulte, 9 each; Lieut. Parschan and Second Lieutenant Schilling, 8 each; Second Lieutenant Immelmann, 6; Lieut. Riesinger, 4.

The records of the airplanes shot down by these men are contested here, since the Germans are held to have counted every adversary machine that left the air during a fight, without assuring themselves that it had been destroyed.

GERMANS GET WHOLESOME DIET

Government Denies Extravagance at Prison Camps.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Reports that the Germans interned at Hot Springs, N. C., eat five meals a day and enjoy many extravagances of diet are denounced by the Department of Labor, which has them in charge.

Food Administrator Hoover has recommended that the prisoners be put on army or navy rations. The Labor Department says the prisoners are receiving an ordinary wholesome diet in the interest of showing Germany that her prisoners here are well treated and with the hope of inducing her to treat American captives the same way.

LINCOLN LEAGUE PLANS TO RESTORE NEW SALEM, ILL.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 17.—Restoration of the village of New Salem, in Menard County, where Lincoln read law, kept store and courted Ann Rutledge, may be undertaken by the Lincoln League of Petersburg as a part of the Illinois centennial celebration.

Sites of principal buildings have been located and a survey has been made of the roads running through the village. The structures include the Ofutt store, kept by Lincoln; the Rutledge tavern, where Lincoln lived five years and where he fell in love with the daughter of the tavern keeper; the Lincoln & Berry store in which Lincoln owned a half interest; the Cameron mill on the river bank; the blacksmith shop and the Herndon store.

If the plan is carried out actors dressed in the garb of Lincoln's time will pass through the old village strets to add to the realism.

The New Salem site is now private property, but the owner has volunteered to turn it over to the State

"KATINKA" AND ARAB SPECTACLE THIS WEEK

Musical Play Long on Way Here; "Garden of Allah" in Fifth Season.

"Katinka," which has been hovering hereabout for most of a year, and which is musically familiar to nearly everyone whose next door neighbor has a phonograph, will make its first St. Louis appearance tonight at the Shubert-Garrick Theater. The play is by the authors of "The Firefly" and "High Jinks."

"Katinka" was produced by Arthur Hammerstein in New York in Christmas week, 1915, and ran well into the following summer. It spent a good share of last season in Chicago, and the cast underwent changes which have continued until, in the third season, but two of the New York principals remain. However we have Baltimore's recent and emphatic word for it that "Katinka" is still a very good show. It is a musical play with Viennese, Turkish and Russian scenes, and with "Rackety Coo" as its lyric mainstay. Howard Langford has the chief comedy role, which T. Roy Barnes had in New York and Chicago, and Eve Lynn is Katinka.

"The Garden of Allah," spectacle play, now in its fifth season, will open a week's engagement at the Jefferson tonight. The play is from Robert Hichens' novel, in a far East setting, and nine scenes are displayed. The management thinks it needful to remind the public that this is not a moving picture.

"Letty" and "The Knife."

"So Long, Letty," a musical farce, will be at the Jefferson next week, and "The Knife," a Eugene Walter melodrama, at the Garrick. Both are New York attractions of last season, "So Long, Letty" having run 13 weeks there, and "The Knife" eight weeks.

A regular vaudeville bill, as contrasted with some recent digressions into so-called revue and equally so-called musical comedy, will open at the Orpheum tomorrow. Lew Dockstader, former premier of the realm of minstrelsy, the man who once set the nation to singing "Everybody Works but Father," will appear in a characterization of the political boss. Elizabeth Murray, playbilled in the same size type as Dockstader, is to sing and tell stories. She has been heard in musical comedy here frequently, and was the comedy star in the Castle production of "Watch Your Step." Other acts at the Orpheum will be a "Rubeville" number by Harry M. Watson and Jere Delahaney, and "Hit the Trail," by Austin Webb and company.

"After Office Hours" is this week's drama at the American. Its name is said to be taken from the declaration of "one of New York's most prominent social workers," that "Nearly everything that is wrong happens after office hours." This great discovery deserves to rank with Mark Twain's reassuring revelation, made in a time of peace, that most persons die in their beds. Roy Foster is the author of this play, and the chief character is a $15-a-week stenographer who has a "blind faith in her employer's integrity."

In the Two-a-Day.

Tom Brown's Minstrel Revue, presenting a minstrel first part, will be tomorrow's chief attraction at the Columbia. A playlet, "Veterans," by a company headed by Harry Shunk, delineator of negro types, is another item.

Menlo Moore's "1917 Winter Garden Revue," a Chicago product, with Billy and Edith Adams and the Belle sisters as stars, will head the Grand's bill tomorrow. Gus Thalero's animal circus, and Ed and Irene Lowry, are other entertainers.

The Imperial Theater has now reached the point of looking back on its performances to date, and making a "revue" of them, with other feature added. New songs, Chinese magic and comedy specialties are announced for today's bill, and tomorrow the war film, "Heroic France," will be added.

"Hello America," announced as a patriotic musical revue, sponsored by Joe Hurtig, comes to the Gayety today. Lewis and Dody are the chief comedians, and Primrose Semon is starred as a comedienne. Frank Wakefield, author of the play, and Arthur Conrad and Kitty Glasco, are kept busy.

"The Aviators" will be at the Standard, with Gladys Sears as chief fun maker, and with a chorus of 20 girls.

"The Whip," Big Screen Attraction, at Royal Tehater.

"The Whip," announced as "the world's biggest motion picture," will be shown at the Royal Theater on Sixth street between Olive and Pine streets, today and through this week. It is a romance of the racetrack, in which the incidental action includes a fox hunt, a view of a real hunt, by one of the most famous of hunting clubs; and a train wreck which is said to have cost the management $25,000. A fashion show of women's gowns is another feature of this film drama.

IRVING BACHELLER COMING DEC. 1

Author Not Notified of Original Date to Address Women.

The American University Society announced yesterday that the lecture by Irving Bacheller, author, which was to have been given Nov. 8 at the Wednesday Club, will be given Dec. 1 at that place. Bacheller failed to appear at the time first set, disappointing a large audience of women. He informed the society that he was not notified of the date here by the bureau which has his lecture tour in charge.

The regular lecture of the society's course for December will be given Dec. 11 by Mrs. Beatrice Forbes-Robertson Hale.

EUGENE RODEMICH ORDERED TO PAY FORMER WIFE $25 A MONTH

"Ragtime Paderewski" Says He Now Is Earning About $30 a Week.

Circuit Judge Calhoun yesterday ordered Eugene Rodemich, known as the "Ragtime Paderewski," to pay his former wife, Mrs. Stella Rodemich, $25 a month for the support of their 8-year-old boy. Rodemich has been paying $10 a month. Mrs. Rodemich alleged that Rodemich is earning $500 a month.

Rodemich told Judge Calhoun that until last October he was getting $70 a week for playing at Cicardi's cafe, but that his former wife made so much trouble there by demanding more money of him that Cicardi discharged him. His total salary now, he said, amounts to only $30 a week.

Rodemich, who has married again, said he pays $45 a month for an apartment at 5744 Berlin avenue. He admitted he recently bought an automobile.

RUSSIANS WILL SPEAK HERE

Members of Embassy at Washington to Address Chamber of Commerce.

A delegation composed of John F. Stevens, member of the Root Commission to Russia; Maj. Stanley Washburn, U. S. A., and several members of the Russian embassy at Washington, will be guests of the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon here Dec. 3.

Stevens and Washburn, the latter a military observer attached to the Russian armies for three years, will portray conditions existing in civil and military Russia. Among the Russian members of the party will be W. W. Soldatenkey of the Russian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and A. J. Saek, director of the Russian Information Bureau.

The Silver Tongued Orator of Minnesota, Charles A. Towne, Former United States Senator

Late Member of Congress From New York—Nominated for Vice-President

Recommends Nuxated Iron to All Who Feel the Need of Renewed Energy

Says That Henceforth He Shall Not Be Without It

Probably no remedy has ever met with such phenomenal success as has Nuxated Iron—over three million people anually are taking it in this country alone, to say nothing of the vast number who are using it in France, England, South America and other countries. It has been highly endorsed and used by Former United States Senators and Members of Congress; physicians who have been connected with well-known hospitals have prescribed and recommended it; Monseigneur Nannini, a prominent Catholic clergyman, recommends it to all members of the Catholic Church. Former Health Commissioner, Wm. R. Kerr, of Chicago, says it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician; Dr. N. H. Hornstine, for ten years connected with the Department of Public Health and Charities of Philadelphia, says the administration of Nuxated Iron in a number of stubborn cases—where other tonics had utterly failed, only served to convince him absolutely of its remarkable and unsual power; Former First Assistant Postmaster-General of the United States, C. P. Grandfield, strongly endorses and recomemnds it to the tens of thousands of civil service employees who know his name and signature. Sarah Barnhardt—"the Divine Sarah," the world's most noted actress, has ordered a large quantly sent to the French soldiers to help give them strength, power and endurance.

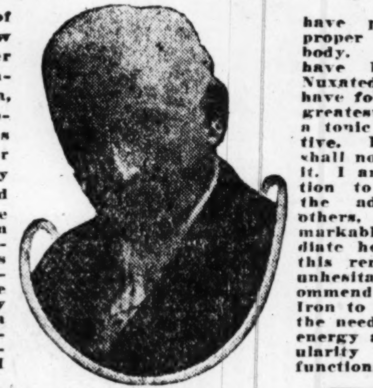
The famous "Cyclone" Davis, Member of the 64th United States Congress, says the effect of Nuxated Iron on him was almost magical, that after taking it, nothing seemed to tire him out no matter how strenuous it might be. Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says Nuxated Iron has proven through his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders.

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York, says he has never before recommended any remedy to the public, but that in the case of Nuxated Iron he would feel he were remiss in his duty not to mention it. Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author, says that in his recent talks to physicians on the grave and serious consequences of iron deficiency in the blood of American women he has strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their weak, run-down, nervous, haggard-looking patients. Ty Cobb, the greatest baseball batter of all time, took it to help give him renewed energy and great staying power. No matter what anybody says, you could not, at this day, get such prominent men to endorse a remedy that has no value—doctors, lawyers, politicians, athletes—a great array.

What Senator Towne Says:

"As a member of Congress from New York, as a member of Congress and Senator from Minnesota, as participant in political campaigns and candidate for Vice-President, my nervous energy and reserve force were tremendously drawn upon. That I survived these trials and came into advanced middle life with the elasticity and strength of a boy is unquestionably due to the rigorous attention I have paid to the proper care of my body. Recently I have been taking Nuxated Iron and have found it of the greatest benefit as a tonic and regulative. Henceforth I shall not be without it. I am in a position to testify for the advantage of others, to the remarkable and immediate helpfulness of this remedy, and I unhesitatingly recommend Nuxated Iron to all who feel the need of renewed energy and the regularity of bodily functions."

Chas. A. Towne



Minnesota's Man of Mark

Former United States Senator, Charles A. Towne, graduated from the University of Michigan, twice elected member of the United States Congress, served in the United States Senate, nominated for Vice-President, takes Nuxated Iron; now recommends it to all who feel the need of renewed energy.

Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston Physician who has studied both in this country and great European Medical Institutions, said: "Nuxated Iron is a wonderful remedy. Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy twenty, and as full of health, strength and endurance as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret, he said, was taking iron—Nuxated Iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 46 he was careworn and nearly all in—now at 50, after taking Nuxated Iron, a miracle of health and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. If people would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak and run-down instead of dosing themselves with habit-forming drugs, stimulants, and alcoholic beverages, I am convinced that in this way they could ward off disease, preventing it becoming organic in thousands of cases, and thereby the lives of thousands might be saved who now die every year from pheumonia, grippe, kidney, liver, heart trouble and other dangerous maladies. The real true cause which started their disease was nothing more or less than a weakened condition brought on by a lack of iron in the blood. Thousands of people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it."

If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which has been used by Former United States Senator Towne with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron, that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent, or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Pauley Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co. and all good druggists—ADVERTISEMENT.

PROBLEM OF THE HOMELESS LEFT BY EUROPE'S WAR

building in a suburb of Paris 110 refugees' families—not 110 persons, but over 500. The French cared for these families last winter and cared for them well, but this year French funds are running low.

It has become an American Red Cross problem. Gradually the refugees were moved from the schoolhouse and quartered in other places, some in the homes of other French people; some in little apartments, and the sick in hospitals.

It took money—American money and American organizing talent—and it will take more. For during the winter these families will have to be clad, fed, housed and warmed. Their men folk are either soldiers or are dead in soldiers' graves, and in either case America's debt to the refugees is plain. Yet the Red Cross is the only American organization which has the scope to handle that debt. And if it is not paid—if the men at the front, starving, shivering and fighting, find that their families are starving, shivering and dying, how long will those soldiers fight—and how well? And if these French soldiers weaken, if they do not fight well, what of our million American boys who are to fight in France next spring? Their work will be that much harder and bloodier.

ITALIAN POSITION ON PIAVE WEAK ON NORTHERN FLANK

upon the Lago di Garda, just above Verona. Conceivably, the Italian army has been sufficiently reoganized and enough allied reinforcements and guns have arrived to make possible the risk of a decisive battle at the Piave; but unless this happened we are likely to see a further retirement to the Adige before the German threat along the Adiago becomes too menacing.

Now as to the general question of Italy, it is essential to recognize that if the Italian armies and the allied reinforcements elect to fight at the Piave and are unable to make a successful stand, there is a grave possibility that Austro-German armies will be able to force their way westward across the Adige and the Mincio into the valley of the Po. If this happens, the invaders will be able to destroy practically all the industrial equipment of the Italian nation, which is situated in the great industrial cities of Northern Italy.

Such a blow would destroy Italian power in the war and would, in all human probability, compel Italy to make a separate peace. So far, then, the issue of the next great battle on the Austro-Italian front may be regarded as promising to be decisive.

If the Italians are successful in holding their lines at the Piave or the Adige, then the extent of the disaster will be measured by the loss of Venetia, the moral effect it has upon the Italian people and generally upon the allies, and finally the resurgence of German war spirit incident to this victory.

Italy will have lost temporarily a large province; cities like Padua, Vicenza, and above all, Venice, will pass into the hands of the invader; but Italy will not have lost her industrial regions. Her invaded districts will not have the same importance for her as the French invaded districts had for Frence. Her lines will have been shortened, and while the chance of her passing to the offensive during the war will be greatly reduced, this will be the extent of the disaster.

West Front Is Real Test.

Further than this, if the Germans are compelled to make great sacrifices of men and munitions vainly in attempting to force the line of the Piave or the Adige they will have weakened themselves materially in a subordinate field because it cannot be too often pointed out that the real decision of the war must come on the western front and that Germany's main enemies in the war are France and Great Britain, with the future menace of the United States when sufficient of our troops have arrived.

Sending troops away from the west front to Italy, or sending troops to Italy which might ultimately be used on the west front necessitates a reduction in the man-power of Germany. On the west front the Germans are outnumbered and outgunned and have been steadily losing ground and battles for 15 months. The time is approaching, as a result of British successes, particularly in the recent taking of Passchendale, when there must be a general retirement of the Germans in Northern France. Such a retirement will be a confession of defeat, which cannot be concealed and will not be mistaken.

We see, then, very clearly how great was the gamble of the Germans in going to Italy. They had to go to Italy because their Austrian ally was slowly but surely sinking under the weight of the Italian attack. In going to Italy they not only undertook to save Austria, but they planned a blow of sufficient weight to produce a great Italian disaster, and their hope was, first, that the extent of this disaster would put Italy out of the war and, second, that the moral effect of this defeat upon the allies would be such that a negotiated peace could be obtained during the winter.

Too Early to Measure Defeat.

We are not in a position yet to measure the extent of the German successes. They have defeated Italy as completely as they defeated Russia at the Dunajec. They are still going forward, and it is too soon to say that Italy has been able to reorganize her armies sufficiently or has received sufficient allied reinforcements to restore the equilibrium on the Piave. It is still possible that domestic disorders within Italy, together with the effect of a great disaster, may produce a condition of anarchy within the Italian kingdom which will destroy Italian military power as Russian military power has been destroyed. No man can prophesy about this.

On the other hand, it is essential to recognize that the immediate effect of the Italian disaster is to bring about a co-ordination of allied military operation such as had not existed during the war. We are seeing the knitting together of French, British, American and Italian high commands, and provided that Italy escapes ultimate disaster, the net effect of this latest allied defeat may be beneficial. In our own Civil War it was not until Grant rose to supreme command and became the director of all the armies of the North that there was a systematic or scientific treatment of the military problem. This co-ordination, when it came, enabled the belligerent possessing greater resources and greater numbers to use them effectively and to wear out the weaker party. The allies now possess infinitely greater immediate resources, while with the United States in reserve they possess greater ultimate resources. If they are now able to use them effectively, the issue of the war is assured.

There is a natural tendency at this time to exaggerate the strength of Germany and to multiply by 10 or a hundred both the numbers and the weapons left to the Kaiser. Inevitably, as your enemy grows weaker, such success as he happens to win give him a magnified value in your eyes; but it is well to remember that the Germans have been fighting now for three years and a quarter against the Russians, the French, the British, and that in addition some of their numbers and guns have been used against Belgium, against Servia, against Rumania. They have won many local victories; they have practically succeeded in putting Russia out of the war. Their losses have been colossal, and while the French and the British have made their main losses against the Germans, Germans have fallen to the Russians, to the French and to the British, and today, while the French are more or less quietly holding their front, the British have taken over the work of hammering the Germans.

The Peace Propaganda.

There is a limit even to the capacity of the German to endure losses. France wearied of Napoleon while he was still victorious and after Wagram, all his advisers urged him to make peace while the French people were still with him. No one can mistake the fact those who control German policy are aware that peace is all that can save them from exhaustion. Even a victory so considerable as that recently won along the Isonzo has little permanent value to the German people if it does not bring peace.

The great crisis of the war will come when the Italian operation is over and on the strength of her success Germany makes a final effort to persuade the nations that are fighting her to lay down their arms and leave her in possession of portions of what she has won. Unless she succeeds, the campaign of 1918 will disclose her weakness and her approach to exhaustion. Between now and next spring the moral element is far more important than the military.

Between now and next spring the decisive campaign of the war will be fought, but it will not be fought on the battlefield. Every German influence and agency in this world will be at work, are already at work, trying to convince the world first, that Germany is invincible, and second, that peace must be immediate. If Germany were invincible, no German or German agent would be talking peace.

Italy has given Germany precisely the same opportunity to push a peace offensive that Rumania supplied last year. If this peace offensive can be repelled, the decision of the war will come with no long delay and it is with these facts in mind that President Wilson last week made his great speech, addressed alike to the American people and to their allies in Europe.

$200,000 FOR GOMEZ STATUE

HAVANA, Nov. 17.—Sculptors throughout the world are preparing to submit designs for the bronze equestrian statue to be built here in memory of Major-General Maxime Gomez, "the Cuban liberator." Requests for particulars of the competition, which carries with it prizes totaling $17,000, have been received from the foremost artists of the United States and Europe. The statue will cost in the neighborhood of $200,000.

The death-mask of Gomez, his machete-shaped swords which he bore in action, his saddle and bridle, uniforms and a wealth of other personal relics of the liberator have been assembled through the efforts of the Monument Commission and are to be perpetuated. The winner's prize will be $10,000 and the competition will not close until next April.

INDICTMENTS STILL IN FORCE

Trial of News Print Manufacturer Has Been Postponed to Nov. 26.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Published reports that indictments against news print manufacturers now on trial in New York for alleged violations of the anti-trust laws would be dismissed were denied today by Attorney-General Gregory. The reports probably grew out of the postponement of the trial until Nov. 26.

There were intimations today in other Government quarters that before the trial is resumed negotiations for a reduction in the price of print paper will be opened.

Bible Study Classes Open Thursday.

The Y. M. C. A. Bible Study classes will open at the Central department on Thursday evening, with a supper and address by Seldon P. Spencer. The committee is offering seven courses, including Old Testament History, Life of Christ, Biblical Pedagogy for Sunday School Teachers, courses in Fosdick's popular books, Meaning of Prayer, the Manhood of the Master, and a personal Workers' class. Training classes for those interested in entering Y. M. C. A. work will meet Wednesday morning.

JAPANESE SHIPYARDS RUSHING WORK ON MERCHANT VESSELS

Steamship Company Plans New Service Between Australia and Pacific Coast of America.

TOKIO, Nov. 17.—Japanese shipyards are doing an increasingly big business as shown by the fact that during the first nine months of 1917 48 merchant ships with a total of 208,000 tons were launched at the six principal yards. These figures do not include craft of less than 1000 tons.

The Japan Steamship Co. (Nippon Yusen Kaisha) has placed contracts with the Yokahoma Dock Co. for the construction of two ships yearly for 10 consecutive years. Each vessel is to be 6000 tons and the total amount provided for all the construction is more than 84,000,000 yen. This figures has been necessitated by the expanding trade of the company and the demand made upon its management by the shareholders that its captial be largely increased in order to operate on lines now practically abandoned by other miritime Powers.

Among the projected routes are those connecting Australia with the Pacific coast of America, and Bombay with Liverpool via South Africa. On the other side of the account stand 20 Japanese vessels destroyed by German submarines. They aggregate 86,975 tons.

VIRGIN ISLANDERS ARE HONEST

Importers Have Paid U. S. Customs Duties After Selling Goods.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 17.—A tribute to the honesty of the importers and merchants of Charlotte Amelie, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, was paid by Thomas G. Gorman, special agent of the Treasury Department, who left the Virgin Islands this week, after studying for several months the customs service there. Under Danish rule the merchants of St. Thomas were permitted to bring in their importations and pay the duty after the goods had been sold. They were not required to produce invoices showing the value of their imports.

"A strange thing about this custom," said Gorman, "was the face that I do not believe the Danish officials lost one penny, and I do not believe since the purchase of the islands by the United States the custom officials have lost one cent. I do not know of any place in the world where there was such latitude shown the importers as in St. Thomas, and certain I am that a similar policy if adopted in the United States would be disastrous." Gorman has discontinued this credit system.

Why do druggists recommend PLUTO water
America's Physic

THE druggist is frequently called upon to "prescribe" for his customers' minor ills. There is nothing that your druggist is quicker to recommend for constipation—either occasional or chronic—than PLUTO Water, because he knows it is held in high esteem by the medical profession and used by thousands of intelligent Americans who realize the seriousness of irregular and incomplete bowel movements.

Frequently when you feel "out of sorts," constipation is to blame. The next time you have the "blues," take a dose of PLUTO Water and see how soon the sun will shine again.

PLUTO Water is more than a physic—it is a wonderfully helpful curative agent in the treatment of kidney, liver and stomach troubles, rheumatism and nervous disorders. Look for the little red devil on every bottle. It is there for your protection.

PATRIOTIC MASS MEETING AT CHURCH TUESDAY NIGHT

Gathering to Be in Interest of National Service Commission of Presbyterian Denomination.

The Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman of Philadelphia, moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, will be the chief speaker at a patriotic mass meeting, to be held Tuesday night at the Washington and Compton Avenues Presbyterian Church, in the interest of the National Service Commission of the Presbyterian Church. The program will begin at 7:30, with Robert Johnston presiding.

Besides Dr. Chapman, who is a noted pulpit orator and evangelist, the speakers will be the Rev. Dr. John F. Carson, chairman of the commission, and the Rev. Dr. William H. Foulkes. The combined choirs of the Second and West Presbyterian Churches will furnish music.

The commission's work is to hold patriotic gatherings, to co-operate with the Y. M. C. A. and the Red Cross, and with the work for cleaning up of camp environments, and the distribution of pocket Testaments to soldiers.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA CONCERTS THIS WEEK

First Performance Here of the D'Indy "Symphony on a French Mountain Air."

The first performance in St. Louis of the D'Indy "Symphony on a French Mountain Air" will be given this week at the two concerts of the Symphony Orchestra, Friday afternoon and Saturday night, at the Odeon.

Harold Bauer will have the piano part in the symphony. He also will play a piano concerto in the same two programs, having chosen the Schumann concerto in A minor.

Bauer will come to St. Louis a day earlier than usual so he will have opportunity for more than one rehearsal with the orchestra. He expects to arrive Wednesday morning, and will rehearse both Wednesday and Thursday. Bauer is an Englishman, and intended at the outset of his musical career to make the violin his instrument. He fell under the influence of Paderewski, whose pupil he afterward became, and was persuaded to desert the violin for the piano.

Following is the program for the two concerts:

Beethoven......Overture "Leonore," No. 111
Schumann...Concerto in A minor, opus 54
For piano or orchestra.
D'Indy..Symphony for orchestra and piano
"On a French Mountain Air," opus 25.

Walter Chapman, an American pianist, will be the soloist at the "Pop" concert this afternoon. He will play the MacDowell concerto for piano and orchestra. The program in full follows:

March—Pomp and Circumstance ......Elgar
Overture—Zanetta ....Auber
Concerto for Piano and Orchestra.MacDowell
Spanish Serenade ....Albeniz
Suite—In Holland ....Kriens
Andante Cantabile for String Orchestra—
Tschaikowsky

The management has installed a second box office in the Odeon to facilitate the sale of tickets for today's concert, with the war tax collection, and avoid the congestion of last Sunday.

"Every effort will be made to serve patrons in the quickest time possible," said Manager A. J. Gaines, "and we hope the public will aid us in this effort by bringing the exact change as far as possible. The war tax is 3 cents on balcony seats, 5 cents on parquet seats and 10 cents on box seats."

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY COMPLETES WAR WORK PLANS

Its Efforts Will Be in Three Directions, Classed as Defensive, Reclamatory and Preventive.

"There are 500,000 young men between the ages of 21 and 31 in the United States today, according to figures just given out, who are afflicted with tuberculosis," said Dr. George T. Palmer, head of the Department of Public Health of Illinois, who is in St. Louis at the invitation of the war committee of the St. Louis Tuberculosis Soceity to confer with that committee on its newly formulated war program.

"Five per cent of the men drafted in Illinois had tuberculosis," Dr. Palmer said. "Figures compiled by the National Association for the Study of Tuberculosis show that of the first million men drafted 25,000 were rejected for tuberculosis."

The St. Louis committee has figures to show that 2 per cent of the men drafted in this city had tuberculosis. These figures are not complete, but final estimates probably will be in hand this week, A. W. Jones Jr., secretary of the Tuberculosis Society, said yesterday. Some St. Louis wards had practically no rejections for this cause, he said, while in others the medical examiners rejected many under the head of "suspicious cases," to be held under observation for symptoms of active or incipient tuberculosis.

According to the program of the local tuberculosis war committee, three lines of work will be conducted—defensive, reclamatory and preventive. The defensive work will be in the way of instructing soldiers how to protect themselves against tuberculosis. In its reclamatory work the committee will co-operate with the Government in aiding to build up the men rejected for curable physical disability, and make them fit for military service. The prevention work will be among the families and friends of the men as well as the men themselves, and will be largely educational in its character. The Rev. Dr. John W. Day, acting president of the Tuberculosis Society, is chairman of the war committee.

TO UNVEIL MONUMENT MODELS

Work of Victor S. Holm Will Be Shown at Jefferson Memorial.

The sculptor's models for the Missouri-Vicksburg monument will be unveiled this afternoon at Jefferson Memorial by the St. Louis Art League and placed with the Missouri Historical Society's collection. The models are the work of Victor S. Holm, instructor in sculpture modeling at Washington University Art School, and comprise two battle panels, "The Attack" and "The Defense." The central symbolic figure represents "The Republic."

There will be music and addresses by W. K. Bixby, vice president of the Missouri Historical Society; Leo Rassieur, president of the Missouri-Vicksburg Monument Commission; Capt. Frank Gaiennie, secretary, and Dr. M. A. Goldstein, vice president of the St. Louis Art League.

FRANCE TO BUILD SHIPS IN U. S.

America Waives Ruling to Allow Work on Non-sinkable Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The Shipping Board has approved the building of 20 4000-ton non-sinkable ships by the French Government in the United States. By so doing it has waived the rule that no foreign construction should be permitted at this time.

The non-sinkable ship, developed by French experts, is said to have withstood torpedo attack in a test in which four shots were fired into the hull and the only effect was to destroy the cargo immediately surrounding the point of attack.

SIMPLE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—ADV.

"Hamlet" in Jewish Tongue.

Shakspeare's "Hamlet" will be performed in Jewish at the Victoria Theater tomorrow night by a company headed by Joseph Kessler, a noted Jewish actor, and Mme. Bella Gudinsky. Kessler has played the role of Hamlet in London, New York, Chicago and Philadelphia and has won high praise. The supporting cast has been carefully chosen by Edwin A. Relkin, director.

Stands for Mentho Laxene
Cold, Cough and Catarrh Medicine for Young and Old.

You buy it of any well stocked druggist in 2½-oz. bottles and take it in ten-drop doses, or better yet, mix it with simple sugar syrup, made by dissolving ¾ of a pound of granulated sugar in a half-pint of boiling water. It is so easy to make a whole pint of cold and cough syrup that tens of thousands of mothers make it every year for their loved ones.

All agree that this home-made cough syrup is free from harmful drugs, and that only a few doses are required for each case, so that a pint may last a family throughout the winter season.

For colds, catarrh, cough, and bronchitis, there is nothing superior for prompt, lasting relief. Guaranteed by the Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio, to please or money back.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Neōlin Soles Protect Health and Purse

MUDDIED crossings and the thin but dangerous film of water on pavements after thaws and showers cause many a cold. Against such colds Neōlin Soles protect you because they are waterproof.

The ordinary leather sole is not waterproof. After it has once been thoroughly wetted, it becomes spongy and porous, so that it soaks up—literally breathes in—the water and moisture underfoot.

Waterproof Neōlin Soles protect your health and purse by protecting you from such moisture, from the colds it causes, and from the damage it does to uppers.

Shoes soled with waterproof Neōlin keep their shape, look well, and last longer.

And Neōlin Soles themselves wear from two to six times as long as ordinary leather and cost no more. They are more comfortable because they are more flexible. New shoes soled with them need no breaking in.

When you do your fall and winter buying be sure to do what eight million Americans have already done—get shoes with Neōlin Soles.

And if you have a pair of shoes in need of re-soling, have it done with Neōlin Soles. You can get them on men's, women's and children's shoes—in black, white, or tan—and the genuine always bears the brand Neōlin.

Mark that mark—stamp it on your memory—Neōlin

322,061 SIGNED HOOVER PLEDGE HERE IN 3 WEEKS

Enrollment Represents One-Third of Entire Population of City.

MANY LISTS NOT YET IN

Biggest Part of Signatures Obtained by School Children With 133,352.

The Hoover Family Food Pledge has been signed by 322,061 St. Louisans, who by this are enrolled as members of the United States Food Administration, according to figures announced yesterday by M. L. Wilkinson, chairman of the St. Louis registration, and Mrs. George A. Bass, in charge of the women's enrollment.

This result was accomplished in a three weeks' campaign extended two weeks beyond the original week, ended Nov. 4. It far surpasses the expectations of the committee members and in their opinion will place St. Louis ahead of all cities in the proportion of signers to population. The number of pledges represents more than one-third of the population of the city. Many enrollment blanks distributed among the parochial schools have not yet been turned in and these are expected to increase the total.

Police Add 23,570 Names.

During the week the Police Department aided with a house-to-house canvass and obtained 23,570 signatures. The largest number of signatures from any one source was the 133,352 turned in through the public schools.

The women's committee had charge of the registration in the department stores. The workers using the private street car "Kinloch" obtained 7020 signatures to the pledge.

The force of volunteer workers who tabulated the enrollment pledges will this week start making duplicate lists of the signers, which will be kept by the Missouri Council of National Defense.

16,000 Enrolled in County.

Mrs. J. Hal Lynch, in charge of the campaign in St. Louis County, reported 16,000 names, with a few of the more remote parts of the county yet to be heard from. Of the suburban towns included in Mrs. Lynch's report, Webster Groves gave 2500 signers, Maplewood 1363, Kirkwood 1241, Normandy 1032, University City 834, with a part not yet in, and Wellston 958.

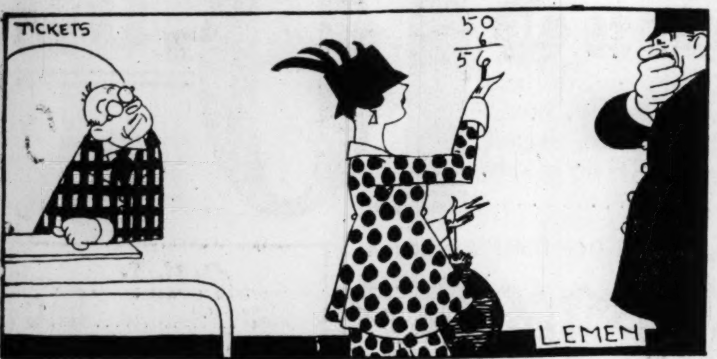
ARABELLA AND THE WAR TAX.



TICKETS

LEMEN

MISS ARABELLA SIMPKINS BROWN thinks vaudeville is too funny
And so you'll see her planking down a portion of her money,
Most any early winter day when time is long and draggy
For tickets to the matinee to hear that music raggy.
But now this best of all delights if full of complications.
And keeps her sitting up of nights and making calculations.
The war tax is a problem deep in higher mathematics
Which makes her lose her beauty sleep for mental acrobatics.
For thirty-five is thirty-nine and fifty-six is fifty,
Which makes the bank account decline when one is really thrifty.
But Arabella has a plan which calls for admiration,
And any woman, girl or man should give it approbation.
The pennies in her change she'll nurse from Tuesday until Monday
And when enough are in her purse she'll buy a chocolate sundae.
So thus for luxuries will go the cents that she's collected
For dollars can't be saved, you know, if pennies are neglected.
For necessary things alone she'll break her coin and paper
Since conservation, as is known, is now the proper caper,
And so Miss Arabella Brown for vaudeville blithe and funny,
Will plank her solid shekels down—the change is sundae money.

CALL A POLICEMAN.

"HELLO, Binks."

"Howdy, Jinks. Did you hear about my brother?"

"No, what did he do?"

"He tried to be a police sergeant."

"Did he get the job?"

"I should say not. He didn't have brains enough to pass the examination."

"That's too bad."

"Yes, had to look for something else."

"What's he doing now?"

"He's a college professor."

"O, he can hold that, all right."

"Easy."

"What's he teaching?"

"Higher mathematics."

"Much simpler than the city ordinances."

"I should say."

"My brother was a sergeant, once."

"You don't say."

"Yes, but the examination was much easier then."

"Is that so?"

"Sure, they only asked him one question."

"Just one?"

"Yes: 'What ticket do you vote?' "

"And he knew the answer?"

"No, but he guessed right."

"This police business isn't what it used to be."

"I should say not. They actually expect a policeman to work at his trade and let politics go to thunder.'

"It's a hard life."

AT THE FRONT.

German Captain: Well, did you make observations in Venice?

Scout: Yes, but we can't march in there now.

Captain: How's that?

Scout: The streets are all full of water.

German Commissary Sergeant (at the telephone): I have to report the receipt of a shipment of Swedish provisions.

Lieutenant: Very well. Carefully scrape off the Russian labels and send them to Grand Headquarters.

New Overseas Recruit: What kind of an animal is that?

Sergeant: A horse.

Recruit: Come out of it. You can't fool me. I was trained at Camp Funston and I know horses when I see 'em. They're made of wood.

German Lieutenant: Corporal, what would you do if you captured a prisoner?

Corporal: I'd bring him in.

Lieutenant: Alive?

Corporal: Sure.

Lieutenant: Sergeant, take off this man's stripes and send him back of the lines.

Sergeant: Has he lost his nerve?

Lieutenant: No. Worse yet! He's lost his HATE.

BAD TO WORSE.

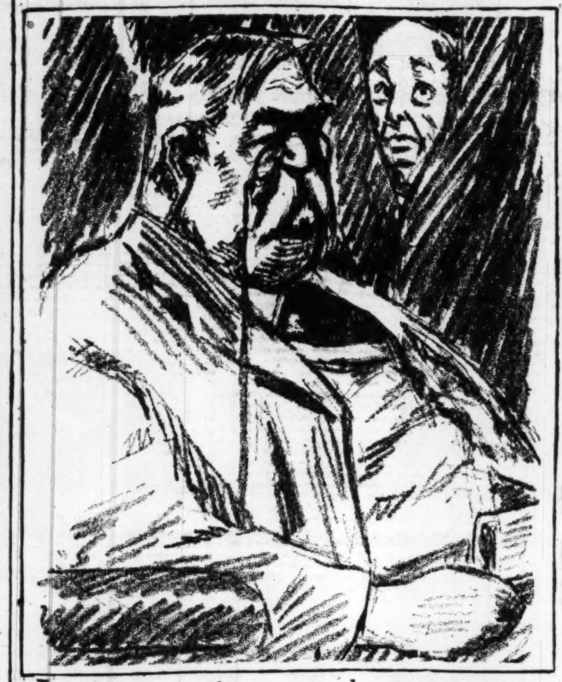
O, BOLSHEVIKI, whatever you are,
We fear you are worse than any Czar.
You're harder to catch and harder to lick
Than that sawed-off, yanked-off, Romanoff, Nick.

You won't stay put and you won't stay cowed
And you chase around in a motley crowd.
In the head we are sure you are quite as thick
As that pushed-off, chased-off, Romanoff, Nick.

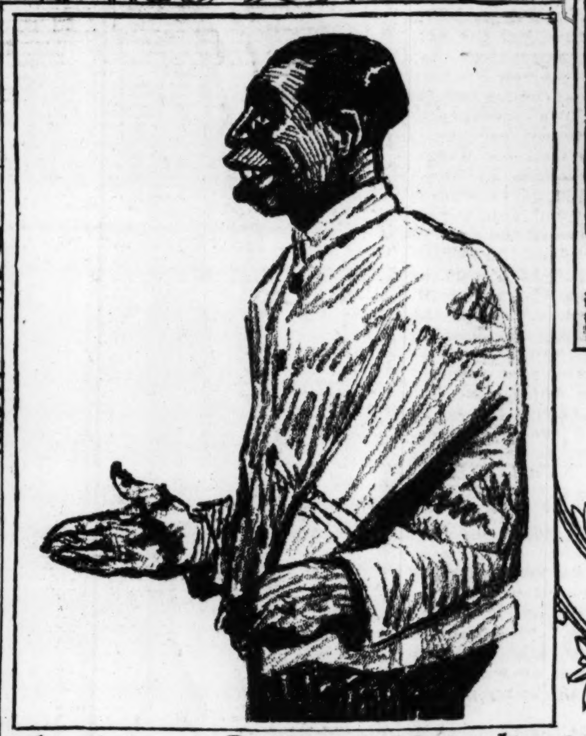
You want the earth and all its wealth
Regardless of other peoples' health,
And you're sure to be landed on with a stick
Like that run-off, gone-off, Romanoff Nick.

Types We Meet in Sleeping Cars

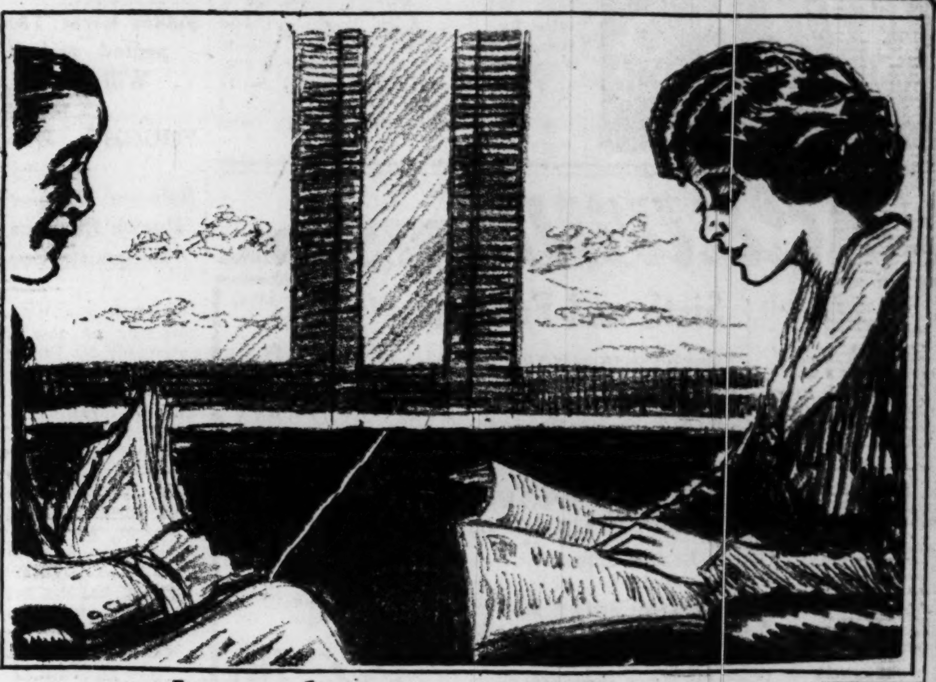
Sketched From Life by Westerman for the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH



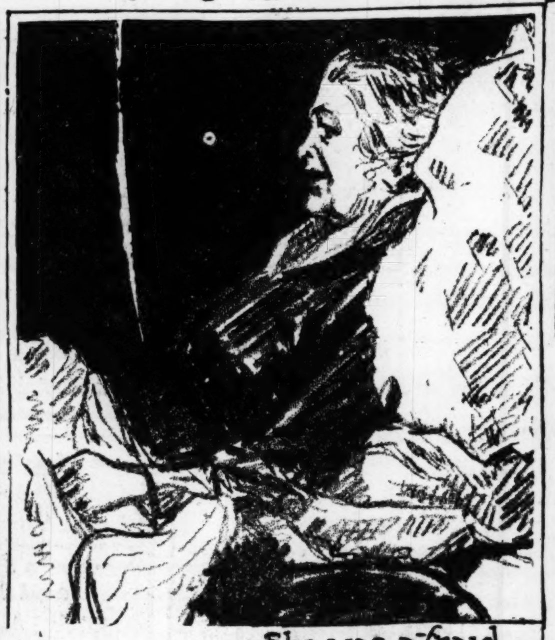
In the morning you look across the way and see the man who snored an imitation of a jazz-band all night.



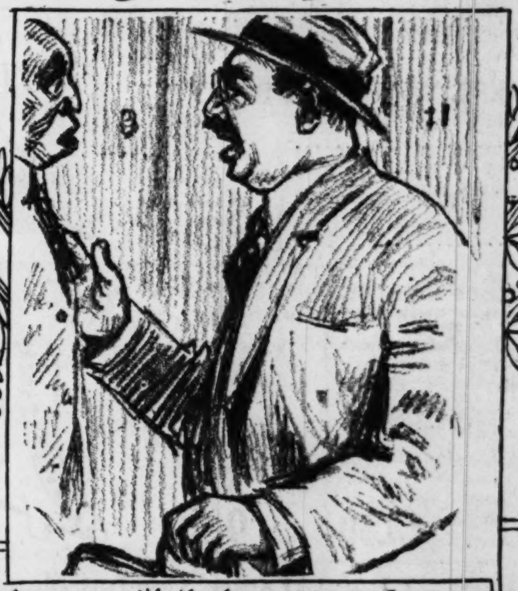
The King of Pullman Sleepyland



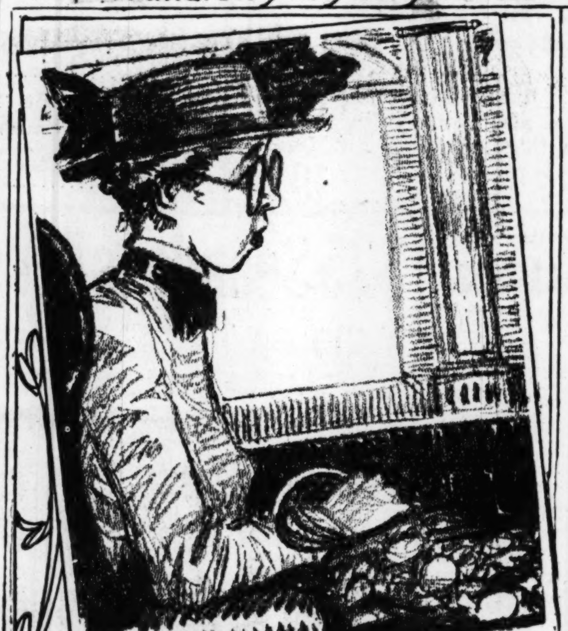
It never happens—
The charming occupant of the lower.



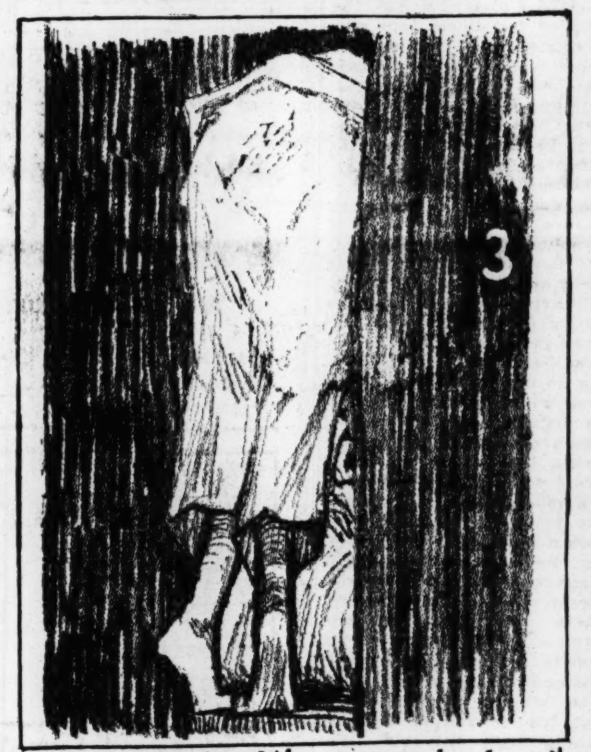
She was afraid to undress for fear of a wreck.



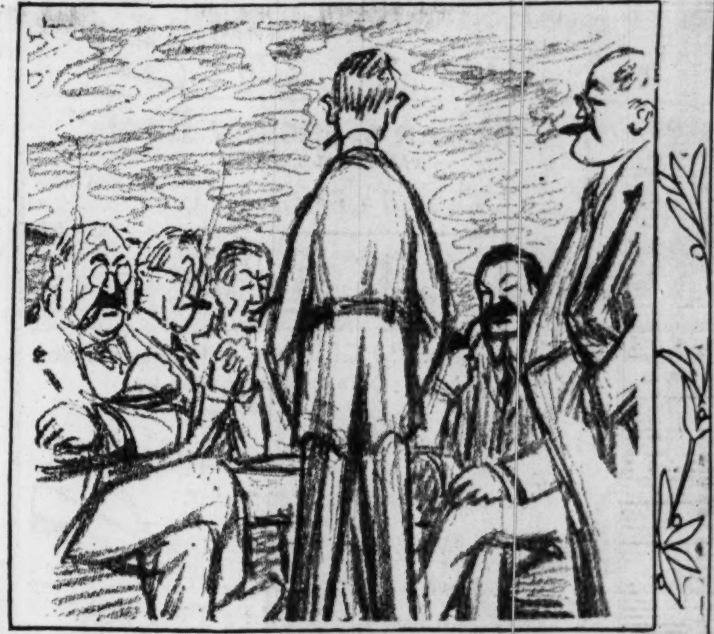
The man with the bass voice who comes on late and argues with the King and who puts murder in the hearts of thirty people.



Vera Modest
She was the last one to bed and the first one up.



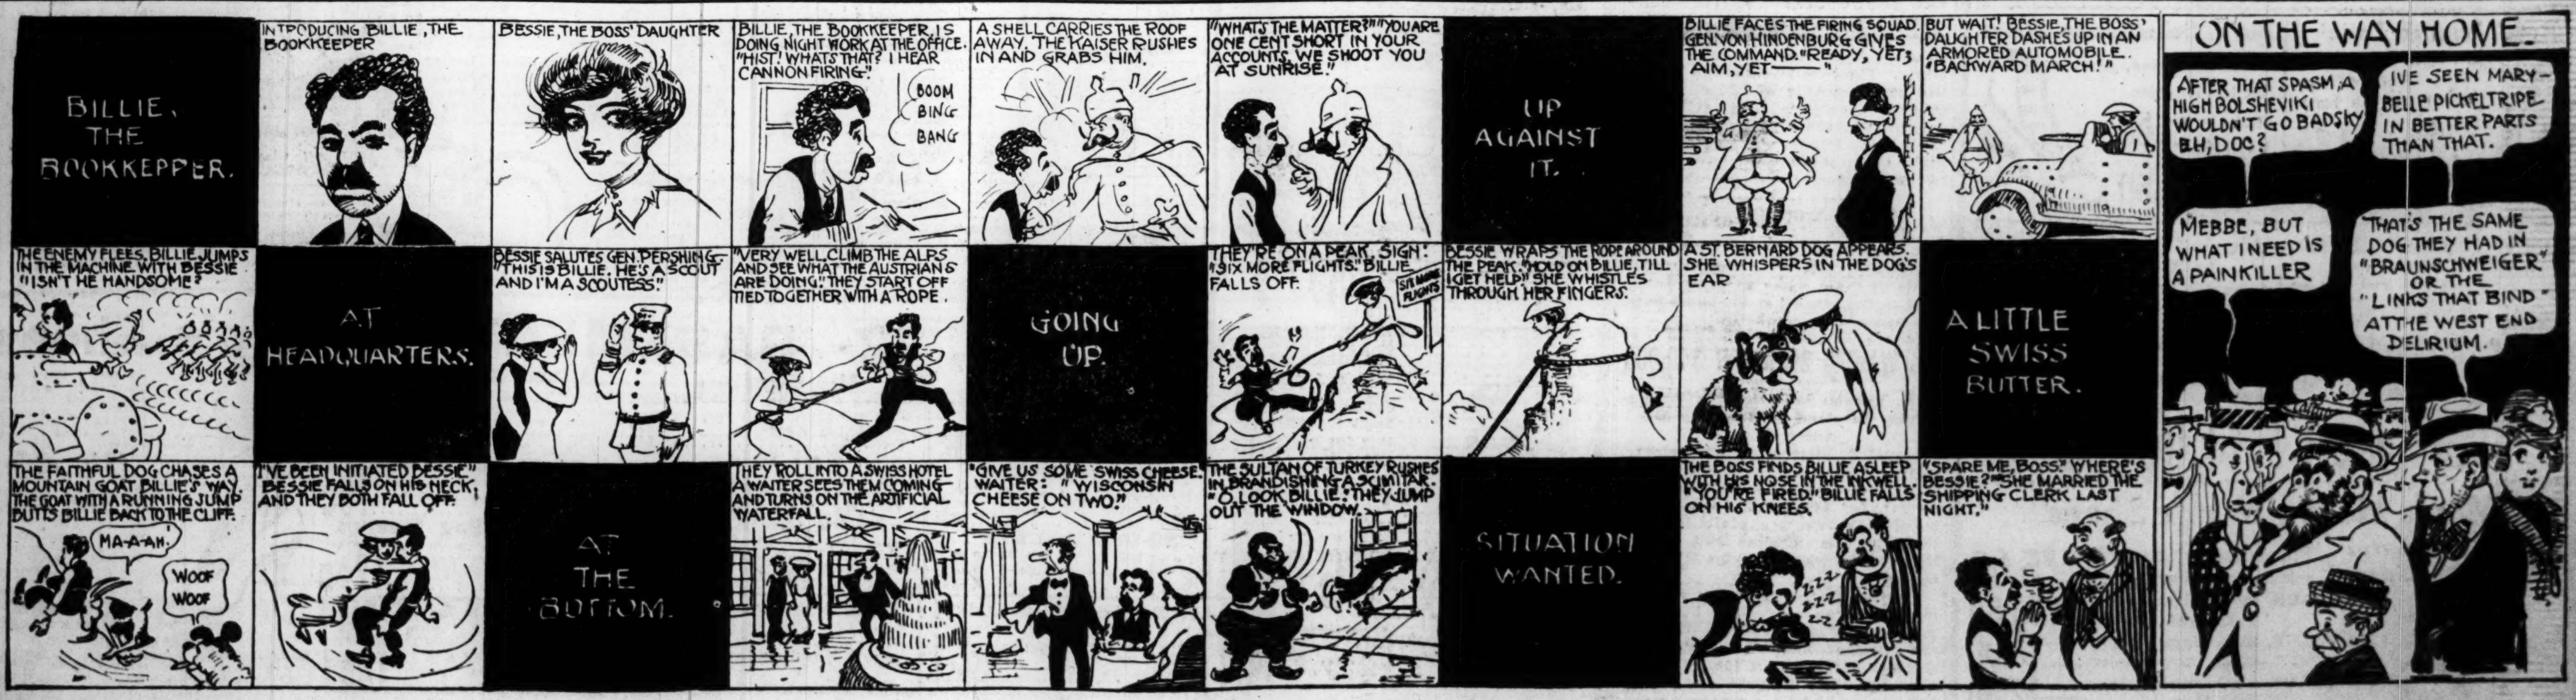
The occupant of the upper who doesn't know that the King has a ladder for him.



The smoker—crowded with people and smoke and conversation—Where everybody talks to everybody.

THE POST-DISPATCH MOVIE: Bill, the Bookkeeper, and Bessie, the Boss' Daughter, Go Scouting

Plot by W. H. James.
Pictures by Carlisle Martin.



BILLIE, THE BOOKKEPPER.
INTRODUCING BILLIE, THE BOOKKEEPER
BESSIE, THE BOSS' DAUGHTER
BILLIE, THE BOOKKEEPER, IS DOING NIGHT WORK AT THE OFFICE. "HIST! WHATS THAT? I HEAR CANNON FIRING."
BOOM BING BANG
A SHELL CARRIES THE ROOF AWAY. THE KAISER RUSHES IN AND GRABS HIM.
"WHATS THE MATTER?" "YOU ARE ONE CENT SHORT IN YOUR ACCOUNTS. WE SHOOT YOU AT SUNRISE."
UP AGAINST IT.
BILLIE FACES THE FIRING SQUAD. GEN. VON HINDENBURG GIVES THE COMMAND. "READY, YET; AIM, YET——"
BUT WAIT! BESSIE, THE BOSS' DAUGHTER DASHES UP IN AN ARMORED AUTOMOBILE. "BACKWARD MARCH!"
THE ENEMY FLEES. BILLIE JUMPS IN THE MACHINE WITH BESSIE "ISN'T HE HANDSOME?"
AT HEADQUARTERS.
BESSIE SALUTES GEN. PERSHING. "THIS IS BILLIE. HE'S A SCOUT AND I'M A SCOUTESS."
"VERY WELL CLIMB THE ALPS AND SEE WHAT THE AUSTRIANS ARE DOING." THEY START OFF TIED TOGETHER WITH A ROPE.
GOING UP.
THEY'RE ON A PEAK. SIGN: "SIX MORE FLIGHTS." BILLIE FALLS OFF.
SIX MORE FLIGHTS
BESSIE WRAPS THE ROPE AROUND THE PEAK. "HOLD ON BILLIE, TILL I GET HELP!" SHE WHISTLES THROUGH HER FINGERS.
A ST. BERNARD DOG APPEARS. SHE WHISPERS IN THE DOG'S EAR
A LITTLE SWISS BUTTER.
THE FAITHFUL DOG CHASES A MOUNTAIN GOAT BILLIE'S WAY. THE GOAT WITH A RUNNING JUMP BUTTS BILLIE BACK TO THE CLIFF.
MA-A-AH.
WOOF WOOF
"I'VE BEEN INITIATED BESSIE" BESSIE FALLS ON HIS NECK, AND THEY BOTH FALL OFF.
AT THE BOTTOM.
THEY ROLL INTO A SWISS HOTEL. A WAITER SEES THEM COMING AND TURNS ON THE ARTIFICIAL WATERFALL.
"GIVE US SOME SWISS CHEESE." WAITER: "WISCONSIN CHEESE ON TWO."
THE SULTAN OF TURKEY RUSHES IN BRANDISHING A SCIMITAR. "O, LOOK BILLIE!" THEY JUMP OUT THE WINDOW.
SITUATION WANTED.
THE BOSS FINDS BILLIE ASLEEP WITH HIS NOSE IN THE INKWELL. "YOU'RE FIRED." BILLIE FALLS ON HIS KNEES.
Z-Z-Z
"SPARE ME, BOSS." "WHERE'S BESSIE?" "SHE MARRIED THE SHIPPING CLERK LAST NIGHT."
ON THE WAY HOME.
AFTER THAT SPASM, A HIGH BOLSHEVIKI WOULDN'T GO BADSKY EH, DOC?
I'VE SEEN MARYBELLE PICKELTRIPE IN BETTER PARTS THAN THAT.
MEBBE, BUT WHAT I NEED IS A PAINKILLER
THAT'S THE SAME DOG THEY HAD IN "BRAUNSCHWEIGER" OR THE "LINKS THAT BIND" AT THE WEST END DELIRIUM.

Belgian to Lecture Wednesday Night

Prof. Victor Horta, dean of the Royal School of Finance of Belgium, a member of the faculty of the University of Brussels and a Knight of the Order of Leopold, will give an illustrated lecture on "Religious and Civil Architecture in Belgium" before the St. Louis Institute of Architects at Jefferson Memorial at 8:15 o'clock Wednesday night.

Mrs. Whitney Warren Fined $9000.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Fines aggregating $9000 were imposed in the Federal Court here today on Mrs. Whitney Warren, wife of a wealthy New York architect and treasurer of the Secours National Fund for the Relief of French Women and Children, who pleaded guilty of under-valuing expensive gowns she brought into this country from Paris.

PRESS ACCEPTS CLEMENCEAU AND CABINET ON TRIAL

Makes Clear That Much Is Expected and That Failure Will Not Be Condoned.

FOUGHT BY SOCIALISTS

Believed Premier Will Promptly Punish Enemies at Home and Invigorate Conduct of War.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—The Clemenceau Ministry on the whole is received favorably by the press, but the editors are careful to make it clear that much is expected of the new Premier and that failure to produce results will meet with little indulgence. Clemenceau is welcomed because it is believed he will deal out exemplary justice to enemies at home without consideration as to who is affected, and also will inject new vigor into the conduct of the war.

"These considerations, in which instinct has as much of a part as reason, have irresistibly borne M. Clemenceau to power," says the Figaro. "We do not ask for speeches or fine shading of thought, but for propulsive action and real justice."

Socialist Organs Antagonistic.

This quotation fairly represents the comment of all the newspapers in Paris and the Provinces, with the exception of the Socialist organs, which are merciless in their criticism of the Premier.

Pierre Renaudel, editor of Humanite, asks whether Clemenceau will live up to "all we know of him."

"That is the question and the stake is the salvation of the country," he continues. "Events will show whether it was right to call M. Clemenceau to power or whether it would have been right to try to keep him out."

Marcel Sembat, in the Lanterne, is even more severe.

"He will not last, because France must triumph, and M. Clemenceau possesses exactly the qualities to prevent a triumph," Sembat writes. "Those baleful qualities will make themselves felt from the very first. His complete lack of understanding of democracy and the labor world, his total lack of a plan of action, the impossibility to transform into acts the ideas expressed in his articles without the most terrible consequences, all will be demonstrated. The experiment will be short. We shall do our best to see that it be quickly over before the national interests suffer too gravely."

His Rigorous Mode of Living.

The Excelsior points out how, by his observance of rigorous rules of living, Clemenceau, at 76, is stronger than many men of 50. It describes him as rising at 3 a. m. and working at his daily article until 6, when he breakfasts, goes through a half hour's Swedish gymnastics, has a cold shower bath and goes back to his writing until 10, when his secretary arrives with the mail and receives his instructions. After this, Clemenceau receives persons having appointments, lunches at noon and after a rest walks to the Senate chamber, a good three miles, whence he goes to his newspaper office at 5:30 o'clock and corrects his proofs. At 8 p. m. he retires after a light meal of eggs, but does not mind rising to answer the telephone. Clemenceau, says the newspaper, has never drunk a glass of wine in his life and has not smoked for 20 years.

Notwithstanding the report that Clemenceau intends abolishing the censorship, his newspaper appears this morning with the old title L'Enchaine.

CHERNIAVSKY CONCERT PROGRAM

Trio to Be Heard at Sheldon Memorial Thursday Night.

An interesting program of concerted and solo numbers has been arranged for the concert to be given Thursday night at the Sheldon Memorial Auditorium by the Cherniavsky Trio—the brothers Leo, Jan and Mischel, respectively, playing the violin, piano and violoncello. This will be their first recital in St. Louis.

Arensky's popular trio will be the first number. Mischel Cherniavsky will play Golterman's violoncello concerto in A Minor, Jan will offer a group by Chopin, and Leo will play Ernst's violin concerto in F-sharp Minor. The concluding group will be trio arrangements of Rimsky-Korsakow's "Romance Oriental," Boisdeffre's "At the Stream," and Dvorak's "Slav Dance." On Wednesday night the Cherniavskys will appear at the Kirkwood Country Club.

DR. WAVRIN SUED FOR $40,000

L. R. Viterbo Says He Was Wrongfully Involved in Dentist's Divorce Case.

Lionel R. Viterbo, a civil engineer, yesterday filed suit against John A. Wavrin of 3666 Botanical avenue, a dentist, for $40,000 damages, alleging that Wavrin wrongfully involved him in his divorce suit against Blanche Wavrin, which he later dismissed.

Viterbo declares there was no truth in the charge connecting his name with that of Mrs. Wavrin. Recently she obtained a court decision that she was entitled to a fund of $5000 claimed by her husband, and yesterday she sued him for separate maintenance.

SHIPPERS ARE WARNED OF POSSIBLE EMBARGOES

Railroad Men Say Steps Have Been Taken to Relieve Shortage of Cattle Cars.

Representatives of all St. Louis railroads, at a meeting yesterday of the Car Service Commission of the Railroad Committee on National Defense, issued a warning to shippers that the transportation problem will grow more acute from now on and probably will result in frequent embargoes during the winter.

Measures were taken to relieve the present shortage of cattle cars in the St. Louis district, where thousands of steers ready for market are awaiting shipment. This district has been practically stripped of cattle cars by the recent demand from Texas to move cattle from the drought regions to points where the animals could be fed and watered.

All records have been broken for freight traffic during the last few months, the committee reported, exceeding in volume that of any year prior to 1907.

Sabers Used on Pacifists.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Nov. 17.—The police were obliged to use their sabers to break up a pacifist manifestation here last evening. Several persons were wounded. Numerous arrests were made.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

"That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

PAIN VANISHES IN A FEW MINUTES

Sloan's Liniment quickly relieves minor injuries of all kinds. Try it.

Why does Sloan's Liniment stop the pain of your sprained ankle? Because it draws out inflammation from the torn or twisted ligaments, and stimulates the circulation to remove the congested blood. Its soothing, warming value should be applied at once, as serious injury often follows failure to promptly care for a sprain. Strains differ from sprains in that muscles and not joints are wrenched. They stop hurting just as quickly under the comforting application of Sloan's Liniment.

The soothing, warming counter-irritant action of Sloan's Liniment gives quick relief to wrenched joints or muscles, backache, stiff neck, gout, chilblains and other external injuries.

Cleaner than mussy plasters or ointments, Sloan's Liniment penetrates without rubbing. Generous size bottles at druggists everywhere. 25c, 50c, $1.00.

ROCK CHURCH TO HOLD ITS GOLDEN JUBILEE TUESDAY

Three-Day Carnival Will Mark Completion of 50 Years of Service.

St. Alphonsus' (Rock) Church, on Grand avenue, near Finney avenue, will celebrate its golden jubilee next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday with a reunion and carnival in its school hall, adjoining the church.

The Rock Church has been the scene of pastoral activities of the Redemptorist Fathers in St. Louis since 1867. For six years before that their home was at the Old Cathedral on Walnut street, near Second street.

Despite the march of progress the church never has lost its place as one of the largest and finest structures of its kind in St. Louis. Its stone facade built on a high terrace, also of stone, has the imposing grandeur of an old-world gothic cathedral. This style of architecture also is finely exemplified in its interior, whose fluted columns and arches have won great admiration.

Mission Built in 1861.

Redemptorist Fathers established a mission in St. Louis in 1861 and were invited by Archbishop Kenrick to remain here. In 1866 they purchased the present site of the Rock Church, a tract of three and one-half acres, for $27,000. Ground was broken in May, 1867, and the corner stone was laid Nov. 3, the same year, with the Very Rev. Joseph Melcher, Vicar-General, as the celebrant. The plans for the church were drawn by the Rev. Louis Dold, a Redemptorist priest, and the work of erecting it was done under his personal supervision. Most of the priests connected with the parish at that time had come here from Belgium and several of them were skilled architects and builders.

The church was dedicated Aug. 4, 1872, by Bishop Ryan, coadjutor of the St. Louis archdiocese.

Until 1881 the Rock Church was a mission, but in that year it was raised to the dignity of a parish and in the same year the work of building a school adjoining the church on the north was begun.

A feature of the church's surroundings has always been a beautiful garden and grove of trees, the first of which were set out by the Rev. Father Henning.

Chimes Are Notable.

Another feature of the church for many years has been its splendid chime of four bells, two of which were presented by church societies, one by Mrs. Madeline Kerens Kenna and another by Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Koster. The church's organ is one of the best in the city and its mixed choir has been under the direction of Louis Dubuque for more than 25 years.

Among the attractions at the jubilee carnival will be the children's Japanese booth, young men's variety and entertainment booth, young women's fancy booth, a candy and ice cream booth and a "country store." This store will be decorated with cornstalks cut from the site of the church 50 years ago and preserved as souvenirs by members of the parish. A five-passenger automobile will be given away. There will be euchre parties Wednesday and Thursday afternoons.

SALESMAN DIES AFTER BOWLING

Autopsy Reveals Heart Disease Caused Death of S. L. Drake.

An autopsy on Spencer L. Drake, 58 years old, a traveling salesman fo rthe United Shoe Machinery Co., who died suddenly at 2 a. m. yesterday at his home, 3805 Olive street, revealed that his death was caused by heart disease.

He had been bowling the night before at the Western Rowing Club with Coroner Vitt, City Treasurer Menne and other friends, and had returned home at 1:30 a. m., feeling ill. The Coroner ordered an autopsy.

800 MO. U. MEN IN WAR SERVICE

List Does Not Include Students' Excused to Farm.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 17.—About 800 names of graduates and former students of the University of Missouri have already been gathered in the war census conducted by the Missouri Union. This list includes only those who are now in some branch of active war service. The students who were excused from the University last spring to help raise war crops are not counted in the list, though they are given a place on the school's military honor roll.

Forty members of the teaching staff are among those in active service.

Bohemian Red Cross to Meet.

The Bohemian Independent Unit of the Red Cross and Navy League will meet Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock at National Hall, Dolman street and Allen avenue, to start a campaign for additional members. The unit already has sent more than 100 knitted garments to the army and navy. Material is provided free and the garments are shipped by the organization.

ZONE SYSTEM TO BE TRIED BY DEMOCRATS IN 1918 CAMPAIGN

If it Proves to Be Successful it Will Be Fully Organized for Use in 1920.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The first practical use of the zone system of campaign management devised by the Democratic National Committee will be made next year. The zone selected is No. 7. It comprises the Rocky Mountain States—Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, New Mexico and Utah—in the first five of which United States Senators are to be elected. The zone system will be used on a small scale elsewhere.

An organization has already been created with former Gov. John E. Osborne of Wyoming, chairman, and John T. Barnett of Colorado, secretary. The Campaign Committee, under the zone system, consists of National Committeemen and State Chairmen of the States included. Full control of the campaign will be vested in this management, in the belief that better results will come by having men in charge who are familiar with local conditions.

If the zone system proves to be successful, it will be fully equipped and organized for the Presidential campaign of 1920.

Machinery is bought and sold through Post-Dispatch Wants.

RAILROAD SUED BY SOLDIER

Samuel Gould, a member of the First Missouri Infantry, yesterday filed suit against the Burlington Railroad for $7500 damages, alleging that while he was doing guard duty at the Alton Bridge last August he was struck by a train and severely injured.

His attorney said that as a result of the injury Gould has been unable to follow his occupation as a soldier, and this will be one of the grounds for damages.

No Skin Remedy Helps But D. D. D.

Remarkable Eczema Case in Council Bluffs.

Charles H. Warren of Council Bluffs knows now which is the best remedy for skin diseases. Few skin sufferers have passed through the pain and agony which he endured. If you have any kind of skin disease, you can surely do no better than to take his advice, for he has been all through it and knows. Just read his story.

"Last February I was taken with a severe case of eczema in its worst form. My body was broken out from my feet to my head and I suffered from the most excruciating pains. If a jet of gas flame had been carried over my body I should not have suffered any worse. My family physician did me no good. I tried Cuticura and Unecca Compound for four weeks, then I accidentally heard of D. D. D. Up to this time I had had no rest at night. For three days my eyes were so inflamed and swollen I could hardly see. The first night I applied your remedy I got my first night's rest, and from that time on I got steady relief. I shall always keep D. D. D. on hand."

CHARLES H. WARREN,
1103 7th Av., Council Bluffs, Io.

Come in and we will tell you something about what D. D. D. Prescription, made in the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago, has accomplished in your own neighborhood. Your money back unless the first bottle relieves you. Wolf-Wilson Drug Co.—ADV.

ROYAL ITALIAN VILLA NOW HOUSES MONZA REFUGEES

Dispatches to Washington Tell of Bestowal of Medals on Officers for Heroism.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—King Victor Emmanuel, official advices from Rome today say, has turned over the royal villa of Monza to refugees from the invaded regions. The dispatches also tell of the bestowal of the highly-prized gold medal on officers for deeds of extraordinary heroism.

When Lieut. Castruccio, the dispatches say, was on board an airship disabled by the enemy's guns and about to fall in enemy territory, he climbed over the gas bag and creeping along in the direction of the prow, with his weight caused the airship to regain its balance. With great personal danger he remained there for more than an hour, hanging by the ropes, and allowing the airship to land within his lines.

Congressman to Address Negroes.

Congressman Dyer will address a meeting at St. Paul A. M. E. Church, 15 North Leffingwell avenue, at 1 o'clock this afternoon, in an effort to stimulate the collection of funds for the Negro Young Men's Christian Association, which is erecting a clubhouse at Pine street and Ewing avenue.

Recovered Her Health Without An Operation

MRS. WM. McLAREN

Found Remedy That Made the Use of the Knife Unnecessary.

After enduring the agony of an acute attack of gall stones, and being threatened with an operation as the only cure, Mrs. William McLaren, 1020 Niagara Av., Niagara Falls, N. Y., found relief by using a simple, inexpensive remedy that is sold in drug stores and that anyone can buy. In telling of her experience Mrs. McLaren says: "I was examined by several doctors at the Falls and they agreed I had a severe case of gall stones and would have to undergo an operation to get relief. I had read of people who claimed to have been cured of gall stones by a medicine called Fruitola, so I tried it and today I am well and strong. Fruitola did it and saved my life, I believe."

Fruitola and Traxo are compounded from the original Edsall formulas at the Pinus laboratories in Monticello, Ill., and can be purchased in drug stores; a doctor's prescription is not necessary. Fruitola is a pure fruit oil that acts as an intestinal lubricant. One dose is usually sufficient to indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a tonic-alterative that is most effective to rebuild and restore the weakened, run-down system.

A booklet of special interest to those who suffer with stomach trouble can be obtained by writing to the Pinus Laboratories, Monticello, Illinois.

SUGAR CARDS FOR BABIES

Hoboken (N. J.) Plans to Guarantee Mothers a Pound a Week.

HOBOKEN, N. J., Nov. 17.—A card system whereby mothers with infants less than 18 months old will be guaranteed a pound of sugar weekly at a cost of 10 cents, is to be put in operation in this city next Tuesday. If results meet expectations, the same system will be used in the distribution of other foodstuffs in the event of a shortage.

Mothers with two infants will be apportioned a pound of sugar every three days at this price.

New System of Fat Reduction

Here's a new way for all fat people to laugh together at that old bugaboo—Obesity. The saying that "there is nothing new under the sun" does not now apply to fat people any more. Here is something new for them—a new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slimness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription; that harmless combination of fat-defying elements which has become known as the most successful of all reducing treatments. Now there comes another idea—the idea of condensing these same pure, harmless ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating and at bed-time, they help the stomach to dispose of all the fatty foods, converting them into compact, solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system—do for you what bodily exertion and self-denial cannot do, and the fat, once routed, is gone for good. You can prove all this at a trifling cost. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent post paid by the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward ave., Detroit, Mich. A large case, sufficient to bring lasting results—is but 75c.—ADV.

GERMAN INVENTORS HAVE HIDDEN STEPS IN MANY PATENTS

American Law Has Enabled Them in Many Cases to Make Processes Unavailable.

ALL ARE TREATED FAIRLY

At End of War They Will Have Chance to Recover Royalties on Their Patents.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—"Of the 20,000 or more German patents that have just been opened to the use of American manufacturers by order of the Federal Trade Commission, by far the most important are two or three on medicine. Salvarsan, the specific for malignant blood disease, is probably the most important of all, for the supply was exhausted in spite of the almost prohibitive prices that had prevailed and there was no substitute. Next in importance are vernol, the sedative for the nerves, and novocaine, the most valuable local anaesthetic."

A. Russel Bond, managing editor of the Scientific American, had just returned from Washington, where he had spent several days studying the German patents and the new regulations governing their use, when he made the foregoing remark. The Scientific American makes a specialty of all matters relating to patents, so Bond, its guiding spirit, is able to discuss them with more authority, perhaps, than anyone except the heads of the Patent Office itself. But Bond takes more than a mere professional view of patents, for he is the author of several popular books on scientific subjects, among them "On the Battle Front of Engineering," which holds the interest of boys better than a dime novel. He is a young man, with clean-shaped, clear-cut features and gray eyes that are full of humor. He sees the "human interest" side of scientific matters as well as their academic or practical importance.

Few Others of Importance.

"There are very few of these German patents, outside the drugs I have mentioned and a few dyes, that seem to have any great interest for American manufacturers or consumers," he continued. "Yet it will be impossible to tell until applications for license begin to reach the committee that is in charge of such matters what may be interesting and what not. Many people imagine that a wealth of dyestuffs hitherto inaccessible to Americans will be made available, but this is a mistake, for in the three years since the war cut off the supply of dyes from Germany there has been such a stimulus to American ingenuity that we already are making almost all the dyes we formerly imported. There are, however, a few processes that have been protected by patent to Germans and that will be welcomed by our manufacturers, who will now be able to make certain colors of which there has been a dearth.

"The conditions under which these patents may be used are most generous to patentees. No one may appropriate a German patent; the right to make use of one must be formally applied for, and the applicant must prove it is to the public interest that the article specified should be made and that he intends to and is able to make it. Only after complying with these conditions and formally contracting to deposit with the Government 5 per cent of the total receipts from its manufacture in trust for the benefit of the German patentee, who will have the right to sue for this money as royalty after the war, will he receive a license to use the patent. This is eminently fair to the enemy patentee, for he will get his royalties, and all he actually loses is the exclusive right to make and sell the article he has patented. For, of course, American manufacturers who begin to use his patent will not have to cease doing so when peace shall be declared. Of this they have to be assured, otherwise they will not care to invest their money in a new enterprise that can be only temporary.

Inventors Protected Themselves.

"But in many cases German inventors have protected themselves with subtle skill. Under our laws one can patent an entire process or any single step in a process. Now most processes are complex and have several steps, each one of which is essential and no one of which can be omitted. The wily German selects, say, three steps from a process that contains five, takes out patent upon each of these three and keeps the other two locked in his breast. The result is that, though anyone may acquire the right to use the three patented steps, these are absolutely useless without knowledge of the intermediate and connecting steps, which, of course, are just as essential to the process as those that have been patented.

"In Germany this is impossible, for the German law requires a complete disclosure of an entire process, including full details of every step, before it will grant a patent. This information, however, is not made public, as it is with us, but is carefully kept for the exclusive use of the Government. Thus the German Government can, if need be, make any patented article without the assistance of the patentee merely by following the records in its patent office. In Germany the inventor is protected by exclusive right to make his invention or use his process for 17 years and this right is guaranteed by his patents.

"The advantage of the German system over our own is that the German Government is in possession of all trade secrets and has the right to use them if it wants to.

"We have also provided most generously for the protection of enemies who have pending applications for patents, giving them nine months grace in which to complete the payments as they fall due. This privilege, however, is dependent upon our enemies treating American inventors with equal fairness. Should they go to work and confiscate American inventions for which patent is pending, because of the applicants' inability to complete payments, then we shall cease to protect German inventors here. Under the trading with the enemy act, it is treason for an American to send to Germany even the money for the annual tax upon his patent rights, and it is hoped that our generosity toward German inventors will induce Germany to allow a similar grace to ours, instead of proceeding to confiscation when the tax is not paid."

"Is the Patent Office continuing its old custom of making public the details of all inventions it accepts?"

"Yes, but when it receives an application for patent on an invention that may be of use to the American army or navy it holds it up, refers it to the military and naval experts and if they accept it or deem it likely to be accepted patent is withheld and it is kept a secret until after the war. In such cases the inventor will have a right to sue the Government for royalties on his devices that it has used.

"As you will see, the American Government, while acceding to the demand for releasing of German patents, has done its best to protect all possible rights of our enemies. We shall soon see if they will reciprocate."

During the first 10 months of 1917 the Post-Dispatch printed 3843 Classified Instruction Want Ads—1743 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

JOFFRE CONSIDERED FOR FRENCH ACADEMY

Special orrespondence of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Marshal Joffre is at present an extremely busy man. He has not only his military affairs to see to, but while directing the Ecole de Guerre (war school) he has also to acknowledge the many honors which are being poured upon him in recognition of his great service to France.

It is now under consideration to make him a member of the French Academy. There are at present two of the 40 seats vacant. If elected he would be the first military personage to be so honored.

It has been objected that his military orders were the only things he had ever written, but it now has been discovered that he has written books, among them "Types of Barracks to Be Adopted in Tongking" (1889), "Tongking and the Railway to Kayas" (1893), "Operations of the Joffre Column Before and After the Occupation of Timbuctoo." He has also contributed many articles to the "Records of Administrative Acts in Madagascar," besides 13 communications to the Archaeological Society of Roussillon. Added to these are eight conferences made in different geographical societies.

Another difficulty which has come up in this connection is that probable members of the Academy are supposed to ask for admission and are not, as a rule, elected by the other members. Joffre, with his usual modesty, never has asked for this honor, and so far it has been impossible to get his impressions of the matter.

The secretary of the institute of France when asked his opinion, quoted these words of Renan, uttered 32 years ago: "One who is almost sure to be of the Academy is the General who one day will bring us the great victory. There is one whom we shall not tease about his poems or works. How we shall acclaim him without worrying about his writing! What a fine sitting there will be that day, and how seats will be sought for! Happy the one who will preside at such a sitting."

JAPAN FEELS PINCH OF WAR AFTER 3 PROSPEROUS YEARS

America's Entry and Embargo on Iron, Steel and Gold Are Blows to Her Industries.

CAPITALISTS BANKRUPTED

Financial and Industrial Difficulties Seem Inevitable in Far East.

By MOCK JOYA.

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1917.)

TOKIO, Japan, Oct. 27.—Japan did not feel any effect of the war for three years, and she had unprecedented prosperity, because of increased exportation and especially the development of new industries and shipping.

But the entrance of the United States in the war brought a change in Japan. She began to feel war effects gradually, and it is now expected from the end of this year Japan will have financial and industrial difficulties like all the other belligerent countries and some neutral nations.

The first blow given Japan by the war was the embargo on the export of iron and steel from the United States. Japan's annual production of iron only amounts to 50,000 tons and shipbuilding and other steel-using industries which suddenly developed after the war began could not continue their work when the supply of iron and steel from the United States stopped. Even the new shipyards made tremendous profits in the last two years, and the prosperity of the shipping trade was the most phenomenal event in Japan's history.

Embargo Caused Change.

After the United States placed an embargo on iron and steel a large number of workmen were discharged. Many works are now at a standstill, and the market quotations of the shares and stocks of ship-building companies have declined.

But the effect of the embargo was restricted to limited circles, and it did not cause general depression in the country.

Prohibition of the export of gold from the United States was the second and heavier blow to Japan. This caused Japan to lose one of her largest sources of gold importation. The balance of trade between Japan and the United States being valued at $170,000,000 and the imports to Japan $102,000,000. Prevention of the import of gold from the United States made it impossible for Japan to obtain the payment for the balance of trade. This affected the trade and industry of Japan generally.

Japan's spinners were the first to suffer, lacking money to buy Indian cotton. They are now considering a plan to import more American cotton and less Indian cotton, but the American cotton is much more expensive than the Indian product, and when American cotton is substituted for Indian cotton the price of the fabrics which are used for general clothing of the people will advance.

Result Is Depression.

These effects of the war which began to be felt by the Japanese public only about a month ago, caused much depression throughout the country. Stock market quotations of shares of stocks, which reached top prices after the war began, are gradually coming down. While prices of commodities are going up, wages have decreased and many are out of work. Three months ago not a single workman was idle. Factories did their best to get more workers and there was a strong competition among factory owners for labor.

Banks have reduced their rates of interest and the indications are today that the nation will have a hard time before the year is out. Many war millionaires who lived in luxury two months ago, became bankrupt during the past two weeks. Many of the larger cotton dealers and speculators lost large fortunes.

One cotton dealer who gained a fortune of $50,000,000 within the last three years, became penniless 10 days ago in consequence of his speculative dealing. A cotton broker in Osaka ended his life because he could not endure bankruptcy.

Before the year is over it is expected that many more war millionaires wil lose their fortunes. The money market will become tighter as the end of the year approaches.

Must Meet Wartime Conditions.

From now on Japan cannot enjoy that prosperity of the past three years and the public will have to meet wartime conditions as other peoples of the world have been doing during the past three years. Many small concerns and factories which sprang up like mushrooms after the war began, will be wiped out. The laborers and other class of peoples who have had high wages will find themselves in a difficult condition, for not only will wages come down, but it will be hard to find work.

A strange effect of the war, now generally felt by the public, is a shortage of small coins. The high price of silver caused exporting and melting of Japanese silver coins, which contain much more silver than coins of many foreign countries. As the Government does not increase the supply the public is suffering immensely.

Railways will not sell a ticket unless the passenger gives the precise amount of the fare. One cannot ride on a street car unless he has exact fare. At the postoffices one cannot buy a three-sen stamp with a 10-sen or 20-sen coin. Many stores have posted an announcement that no change will be given to customers. Some stores charge customers for changing large bills, the charge usually being 6 per cent.

Charge for Changing Bills.

The exchange office charges 10 sen to change a one-yen bill into small coins, 30-sen to change a five-yen bill and three to five yen to change a 100-yen bill. It is profitable business. Many have tried to start in it, but have not been able to get small coins enough to run an exchange office. Even at such a high rate the people are constantly having large bills changed, as large bills are not accepted for payment of small sums.

It is regretted by the public that the Government is taking no measure to increase the supply of small coins, despite constant complaint. But it has finally been decided to issue bills of small denominations, ranging from 10 sen (5 cents(to 50 sen (25 cents).

If the war continues much longer Japan will find herself in a miserable condition. The general public did not pay any attention to the war; they were too busy pocketing profits and planning more gain. The sudden depression has turned their attention to the war. The end of the year will bring a crisis in the affairs of a large proportion of business men. The year 1918 will dawn with economical and industrial depression and the condition will become more severe as the war continues.

First of Sunday Musical Vespers.

The first of the seasons series of Sunday musical vespers at the Second Baptist Church will be given between 4:30 and 5:15 o'clock this afternoon by Arthur Lieber, organist, and Miss Agnes Gray, violoncelist. There will be neither admission fee nor collection. The doors will be closed when the program begins and will not reopen until it ends.

Czar's Guard to Lecture Here.

"Russia of Yesterday and Today" will be discussed in a lecture Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock, in the auditorium of Washington University Medical School, Euclid and Scott avenues, by Lieutenant-Colonel M. Swartzkopensky, a former officer of the Guards and personal bodyguard of the then Czar Nicholas.

EXPENSES ABSORB MOST OF ARMY AND NAVY BAZAR FUND

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Big expenses cut so deeply into the reecipts of the army and navy bazar here Oct. 27 that out of a gross income of $71,475 there was left only $754.96 net profit, to be applied to comfort kits for soldiers and sailors, according to preliminary figures submitted to the management by the Federal accounting corporation which audited the accounts.

The auditors' report showed that commissions on advertisements for the program, rent of exposition space, newspaper advertising, salaries for clerks and workers and decorations ate up most of the income.

Officials in charge said today they regarded the bazar as an unfortunate experiment.

Standard Shoe for Germany.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 17.—A standard shoe is to be introduced in Germany this winter, according to the German papers. Millions of pairs will be manufactured, being made of a leather substitute. The soles will be formed of wood and small pieces of leather.

Rudolph Ganz to Play Here.

Rudolph Ganz, the Swiss pianist, will be heard in recital at the Woman's Club on the morning of Dec. 7. He has played here once before, although he has been before the American public for years as an artist of high rank.

"Jerusalem as I Saw It."

"Jerusalem as I Saw It Three Years Ago" will be the subject of the sermon tonight at 8 o'clock, at the North Presbyterian Church, St. Louis and Warne avenues, by the Rev. James Hardin Smith.

Three years ago a man was clerking in a certain department store, earning sixty dollars a month. Last year the same man earned four thousand dollars, selling our line on the road. We want more men like him. If you are a good talker, and can make friends easy, write us. We will guarantee you as much as you are earning now, and through our teaching place you in a position to double your earnings in a short time.

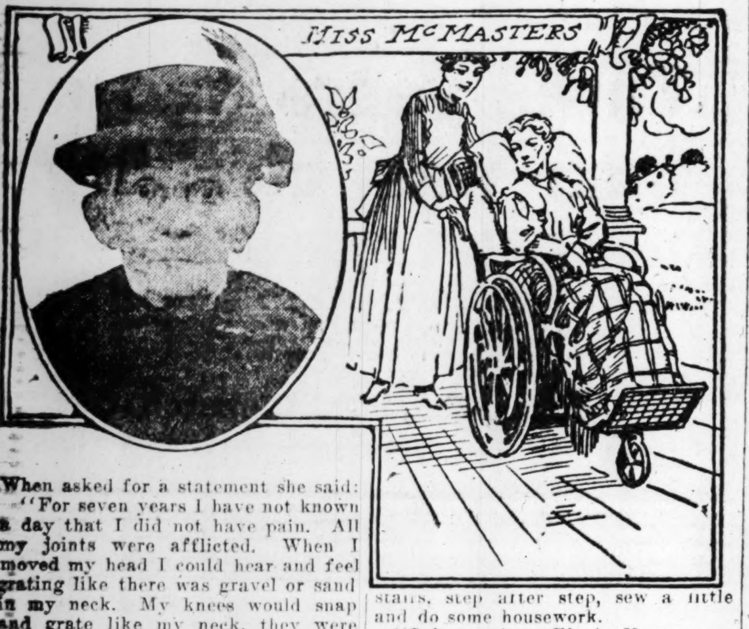
FREE FROM TORTURES OF RHEUMATISM AFTER SUFFERING SEVEN YEARS

Does Own Housework After Being Helpless in Wheel Chair Sixteen Months—Joints Were Deformed

The story of what appears to be a remarkable recovery from chronic rheumatism of the joints after being in pain from the disease for seven years was recently given out for publication by Mrs. L. M. McMasters of 312 Humphrey St., Lowell, Mass.



When asked for a statement she said: "For seven years I have not known a day that I did not have pain. All my joints were afflicted. When I moved my head I could hear and feel grating like there was gravel or sand in my neck. My knees would snap and grate like my neck, they were drawn up so I was unable to straighten them. If I wanted to sit down I would have to literally fall in a chair. Trunk straps were fastened around my body to get me upstairs; on the top step I was laid on a rug and dragged to the bed.

"The fingers of the right hand were drawn into the palm and the hand drawn to the body. I could not get my hand to my head, as joints were stiff, and I had to be fed and dressed like a child. Different physicians treated me for a time. The last doctor said I would never get rid of the disease, as it was the worst form of rheumatism, Arthritis deformans. I was in bed for sixteen months.

"Reading about Var-ne-sis and how it helped others with rheumatism of the joints, I decided to try it. After taking Var-ne-sis I could use my wheel chair, then my crutches and finally my canes. The pain and stiffness became less noticeable. The chalky bunches of the fingers and the knees disappeared, my hands straightened so that now I can walk down stairs, step after step, sew a little and do some housework.

"I have given W. A. Varney my wheel chair, crutches and canes to add to his large collections for I can get about now without any assistance."

Mr. Varney said. "It is to your interest to write to this woman or investigate in any way you see fit.

"I will pay the expense of three business men to investigate the evidence I produce, providing they will allow me to publish the results over their names. Can I do more?"

You ought to read "The Rust of Human Hinges," just off the press. It's free. Just address W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass.

HOSPITAL COLLECTION COMMITTEES NAMED

Saturday and Sunday Association Prepares for Annual Collection Dec. 1 and 2.

The committee of the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association for its twenty-fifth anniversary collection for the relief of the sick poor in hospitals, which will be taken Saturday, Dec. 1, and Sunday, Dec. 2, were announced yesterday by Acting President A. L. Shapleigh.

Supervising the work of the several working committees is the Executive Board, including, in addition to D. R. Francis, president of the association, and Acting President Shapleigh, Hanford Crawford, Aaron Fuller, J. A. Lewis, Charles H. Morrill, Walter Schnaider, F. H. Semple, Charles P. Senter, Aaron Waldheim, D. D. Walker Jr. and James A. Waterworth.

The telephone companies have donated special telephone service for the collection campaign and the Commercial Building Co. has loaned space for the storage of collection boxes and other equipment. The collection campaign headquarters will be at 420 Commercial Building.

Contributions to the fund already have begun to arrive. The first was a check for $20, representing a $10 contribution from the employes and guests of Father Dempsey's Hotel for Workingmen and a $10 contribution from the employes and guests of Father Dempsey's Hotel for Workingwomen.

POULTRY RAISER KILLS MINK AND FINDS HE IS $5.47 AHEAD

Edwardsville Man Thought Hen-House Burglar Had Been Stealing His Fowls.

Charles F. Brockmeier, living on West Union stret, Edwardsville, engaged in mathematical computation yesterday and discovered he was considerably ahead on the chicken stealing which had worried him for several days. The score ran something like this:

Debit.
Three hens at 51c each	$1.52
One No. 12 shell	.04
Total	$1.57
Credit.
One fine mink skin	$7.00
Balance on right side of ledger	$5.47

Brookmeier was trying to capture a presumed hen-house burglar when he fired the shot that killed the mink.

LAUNDRESSES DEMAND RAISE

Negro Women's League at Webster Groves to Charge $2 a Day.

Blue Monday will be rendered bluer tomorrow, in Webster Groves homes, by the increased price of the services of negro laundresses. The laundresses, who appear to have organized, yesterday sent this advertisement to the Post-Dispatch:

"Notice to whom it may concern: Owing to the high cost of living, the women of the Laundress League No. 1 of Webster Groves are expecting $2 a day as a minimum, beginning Nov. 19, 1917.

Signed:

"MRS. NELLIE WHEELER,
President.
"MRS. ELEANOR ROGERS.
"Vice President."

The laundresses have been getting $1.50 a day.

GIRLS IN WAR SERVICE SOCIETY

300 at Washington U. Put Selves at Disposal of Government.

Three hundred Washington University co-eds, at a recent meeting of the student body, organized a war service association, the members of which have signed a pledge to place themselves at the disposal of the Government for the duration of the war in whatever capacity they are needed. The pledge also binds the women to attend classes regularly and devote more time to their studies.

A service flag, bearing 300 stars, was hoisted by the co-eds to the highest tower among the university buildings as a testimonial to the faculty members, students and alumni who have entered the various branches of the country's military service.

Lecture on Heroes of Scotland.

The Rev. William H. Clagett, president of the Board of Trustees of the Texas Presbyterian University, will lecture on "The Martyr Heroes of Scotland and Their Graves," at the King's Highway Presbyterian Church, King's highway and Cabanne avenues, at 8 o'clock tonight. The lecture will be illustrated by slides taken by Dr. Clagett.

LECTURE SERIES FOR LAUNDRIES

Doctors and Nurses Will Discuss Public Health Subjects.

The St. Louis Public Health League will open a series of lectures in the large laundries of St. Louis tomorrow, and will continue this work through the winter. Five lectures a week will be given in each laundry, and five laundries will be visited each week.

The talks will be by physicians and nurses, at the noon hour, on the following sujects: "Prevention of Cancer," "Prevention of Blindness," "Social Hygiene," "Pre-natal Care" and "Baby Welfare." All talks will be illustrated with lantern slides.

German Comedy at Victoria.

The first of the monthly German dramas, to be produced at the Victoria Theater by the Pabst Theater Players of Milwaukee, will be given tonight. It will be a comedy, "On the Blue Danube," by Heinz Rudolph. Hans Loebel is in charge of the production.

BELGIAN WOMAN WHO WILL SPEAK IN ST. LOUIS

MME. JULIA HORTA.

Prof. F. E. Nipher to Lecture.

Prof. F. E. Nipher will address the Academy of Science of St. Louis at the academy building, 3817 Olive street, at 8 o'clock Monday evening. His subject will be, "Gravitational Repulsion." The lecture will be open to the public.

BELGIAN WOMAN BARRED FROM HOME TO SPEAK HERE

Wife of Professor Says She Was in Front Line Trench When French Launched Attack.

Mme. Julia Horta, wife of a Belgian professor, whose home was seized by Germans and who was refused permission to return to Belgium after he had delivered a speech in England insisting that Germany should be compelled to make reparation for wrong done in Belgium, will speak twice in St. Louis Wednesday under the auspices of the Belgian Benevolent Society, which is soliciting aid for the homeless children of Belgium.

She will speak at noon at a City Club luncheon, and in Moose Hall, 25 North Grand avenue, she will lecture and exhibit moving pictures at 8 p. m.

Mme. Horta says she was in the French trenches in Flanders for a week and was within 20 yards of the German line when the French launched an attack against it. Men within a few feet of her were killed by grenades thrown from the German trenches.

She says that there are 1,200,000 children in occupied Belgium, who will starve and die of expoure unless they are aided.

Benefit for All Souls' Church, Thursday.

A euchre and lotto party for the benefit of All Souls' Catholic Church, Overland Park, will be given at St. Barbara's Hall, corner Hamilton and Minerva avenues, Thursday, at 8 p. m.

Church Women Husk Corn.

CARMI, Ill., Nov. 17.—Henry Becker, a farmer living near Carmi, offered the Missionary Baptist Church here a load of corn provided the women of the church would husk the corn. Twelve women accepted the challenge and with Rev. D. F. Marlin, pastor, driving the wagon, they husked a load that brought $54.71.

New Thought League Lecture.

Miss Harriett Hulick will deliver an address, "The New Thought Truth Religion," at a meeting of the New Thought League, at 509 North Newstead avenue, at 11 a. m. today. Mrs. Frances Russell Ferguson's class in psychology will meet at 8 o'clock this evening. Rev. L. G. Landenberger will lecture Wednesday night at 8 o'clock on "Influx, Correspondence and Discrete Degrees."

EXCELLENT LAXATIVE FOR ELDERLY PEOPLE

As we pass the prime of life the various organs of the body have a tendency to weaken, especially the bowels. Regularity in this important function is so essential to good health that old folks should be very careful to avoid constipation. A congestion of stomach waste in the bowels occasions dizziness, headache, drowsiness after eating, biliousness, belching, bloat, piles, etc., and should be corrected immediately; it is the direct cause of much serious disease.

The most effective remedy for constipation is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It costs only fifty cents a bottle, is mild in its action, does not gripe or strain, and brings relief quickly. Get a bottle of it from your druggist and keep it in the house; it is the ideal family remedy. A trial bottle can be obtained free of charge by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 456 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

An Editor Recommends

"5-DROPS" To Rheumatic Sufferers

Mr. L. P. Hill, editor Enterprise, Ensley, Ala., writes: "I want to tell you that I have been living in this district for the past 27 years and there is no man that is better known than I am. I tell you this because I want you to know that I am no stranger to the people. About twenty days ago I was down on my back with the worst case of rheumatism and I began to use your medicine and in about a week I was on my feet again. People all over Birmingham and Ensley were astonished to see me get well so quick and wanted to know what medicine I took. I told them '5-DROPS' and every man who has the rheumatism knows of your medicine and say they will use it. I am telling every one of the virtue of your remedy and I am sure it will increase the sale of same."

Such evidence as this should be sufficient to prove to any person the value of "5-Drops" in rheumatic troubles.

"5-Drops" is sold by the leading druggists in every part of the United States and Canada.

FREE A Sample bottle will be mailed free, if you will write to The Swanson Company, Newark, O.

SUFFERED AGONY CUTICURA HEALED

Rash on Forehead. Very Unsightly. Itching Intense. Developed Into Sore Eruptions. Used One Cake Soap and Two Boxes Ointment.

"I had a severe rash on my forehead. It was very unsightly and red, and the skin was inflamed and sore. The itching was very intense; I suffered agony all the time. My hair got very thin and dry, and fell out in large quantities. I felt I could not comb it or make it look glossy. The breaking out later developed into sore eruptions.

"The trouble lasted two months before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I was healed in two weeks after I had used one cake of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Ointment." (Signed) Miss Eva Berlin, 662 S. Parsons Avenue, Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 14, 1917.

When used for every-day toilet purposes Cuticura Soap not only cleanses, purifies and beautifies but it prevents many little skin troubles if assisted by occasional use of Cuticura Ointment to soothe and heal the first signs of skin troubles. Absolutely nothing better.

For Free Sample Each by Return Mail address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. H, Boston." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c.

DEMOCRATS REGAIN CONTROL

Tennessee State Board of Health Passes From Republican Rule.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 17.—For the first time in five years Democratic appointees are in control of the State Board of Health. Dr. Evans M. Sanders, appointed by Gov. Rye last week, has been elected President, giving the Democrats three members to the Republicans two.

Republicans gained control of the board through the election of Thomas Hooper of East Tennessee as Governor.

No More Getting Up Nights!

Send For FREE 50c Package.

You who have to get up at least once, and maybe six or eight times every night because of bladder weakness, and who have almost forgotten what the restfulness and luxury of an unbroken night of untroubled sleep is like, should surely welcome the wonderful, scientific discovery incorporated in Kellogg's Brown Tablets.

"Oh-hi-hum! It's Tough to Have to Get Up This Way Every Night!"

Of this agent, a noted physician and scientist of Washington, D. C., said, in an address before the American Therapeutic Society: "That the aged sufferer passes his nights like in the days of his prime * * * is the reason of his claim for a symptomatic cure."

Send coupon today, with six cents in stamps to help pay postage and packing, for a free 50c trial box of Kellogg's Brown Tablets, to Frank J. Kellogg, 574 Hoffmaster Block, Battle Creek, Mich.

Medicated Smoke Drives Out Catarrh

Try This Pleasant Herb Smoke. Costs But Little to Try.

Dr. Blosser, who has devoted forty-three years to the treatment of Catarrh, is the originator of a certain combination of medical herbs, flowers and berries to be smoked in a pipe or ready prepared cigarette. The smoke-vapor reaches all the air passages of the head, nose and throat. As the disease is carried into these passages with the air you breathe, so the antiseptic, healing vapor of this Remedy is carried with the breath directly to the affected parts.

This simple, practical method applies the medicine where sprays, douches, ointments, etc., cannot possibly go. Its effect is soothing and healing, and is entirely harmless, containing no tobacco or habit-forming drugs. It is pleasant to use, and not sickening to those who have never smoked. No matter how severe or long standing your case may be, we want to show you what our Remedy will do.

To prove the beneficial, pleasant effect, a liberal trial outfit will be mailed for ten cents to any sufferer, that will verify all claims by actual tests. This trial outfit contains a pipe, some of the Remedy for smoking and also medical cigarettes. If you wish to buy a regular package of Dr. Blosser's Remedy, you will find both the pipe and cigarette forms for sale in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros., Enderle and Pauley Drug Stores.

If you are a sufferer from Catarrh, Asthma, Catarrhal Deafness, or if subject to frequent colds, send ten cents in coin or stamps at once to The Blosser Company, Box 1900, Atlanta, Ga.

USE ORRINE DRINK HABIT GOES

Don't wait for the drink habit to get too strong a hold upon your husband, son, or father, for it can be broken up quickly if Orrine is given him. This scientific treatment can be given in the home secretly and without loss of time from work.

You have nothing to risk and everything to gain, as Orrine is sold under this guarantee. If, after a trial you fail to get any benefit from its use, your money will be refunded.

Orrine is prepared in two forms: No. 1, secret treatment; Orrine No. 2, the voluntary treatment. Costs only $1.00 a box. Ask us for booklet.

RODIN, FAMOUS FRENCH SCULPTOR, DIES AT AGE OF 77

Hailed as 'Michaelo Angelo of Modern World' After 50-Year Struggle.

FIRST WORKS RIDICULED

'Age of Bronze' So Natural He Was Charged With Casting It From Life.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Auguste Rodin, "the modern Michael Angelo," famous French sculptor, died here today in his villa in the outskirts of the city. He had been ill only a few days.

Had Rodin lived one more week he would have been elected a member of the Academy of Fine Arts, as all arrangements had been completed.

Auguste Rodin struggled 50 years against poverty and abuse and ridicule for his unconventional ideas, before he achieved undisputed celebrity as one of the most famous sculptors of the world. Continuing his work until past his seventy-fifth year, he had, however, notwithstanding those early handicaps, still time to enrich the world with innumerable examples of his impressionistic, inspirational works, which are prized both in Europe and America.

When finally recognized, Rodin was hailed by his admirers as "the Michael Angelo of the modern world." He was a worker in mass, producing his subjects in detail only so far as he would bring out his dominating conception. His work thus far had a less finished form than the conventional school of his day. Being thus ahead of his time, it was only by degrees that he forced recognition. His own feeling was: "I had rather be understood by a few than known to the world," and storms of criticism were never strong enough to turn him from his course.

Born of Poor Parents.

Born in Paris in 1840, of wretchedly poor parents, he was first heard of in 1864, when, after a short time spent in studying under Barye, he sent his mask, "The Man With the Broken Nose," to the Salon. Although this interesting head contained the germ of all that was great in his later work, it was refused, and his poverty obliged him to spend the next six years in the drudgery of an artist's assistant, doing all the tedious, mechanical, profitless labor of an artisan. Later, he collaborated with a Belgian sculptor in carving figures for the Brussels Bourse, and then tried his hand on potter's clay at Sevres factory.

His second attempt to gain recognition at the Paris Salon was humiliating. He submitted, in 1877, "The Age of Bronze," only to have it rejecter and to have himself accused of casting it from life instead of creating an original work. Too dismayed to recognize what was in reality an extraordinary testimony to his powers, Rodin indignantly protested, while the Parisian critics heaped further abuse upon him.

It was not until 1880, after the exhibition of his St. John the Baptist, that the tide began to turn in his favor. Struck with the genius displayed in this work, the sculptor Boucher commissioned Rodin to execute a group of children for him, and, anxious to find out how he obtained his results, watched him at work. To his astonishment, Rodin composed the group in a few hours, and as soon as it was completed Boucher rushed off to spread the news among his friends, declaring that the man who could do what he had seen Rodin do, certainly could also have created "The Age of Bronze." It was Rodin's vindication, and in recognition of it, the work was purchased by the state and is now in the museum of the Luxembourg.

His Notable Works.

From then on he created a number of notable works, among them his "Victor Hugo," "The Burgesses of Calais," and his status of "Balzac." The latter was an extraordinary and unconventional conception of the great novelist, which Rodin executed upon commission from the Society of Men of Letters. When it was unveiled in 1898 it was received with almost universal jest and jibe. The Parisian public became so worked up over the merits of the monument that the controversy for the time eclipsed interest even in the sensational Dreyfus trial.

Balzac was represented in a voluminous dressing gown, the features and figure roughly sketched. Critics exclaimed that it was "an enormous porpoise standing upright, draped in a thick bath wrapper." They called it grotesque, huge and flippant; while, on the other side, there were those who saw in it "the incarnation of the great writer's soul." The society which had ordered it, however, held the majority view that the work was incomprehensible, if not ridiculous, and they gave the commission to the sculptor Falquire, who executed a more conventional work in the following year.

In the meantime, and for years after the Balzac controversy, Rodin devoted himself to a great decorative composition some 20 feet high, "The Portal of Hell," for the Museum of Decorative Arts. This work was inspired mainly by Dante's Inferno, the poet himself being seated at the top, while at his feet is the writhing crowd of the damned, torn by the frenzy of passion and anguish of despair. The figure of "The Thinker," which is one of Rodin's best-known works in America, has been exhibited in cast for several years at the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts in New York and at various other places. It is one of the figures designed for this titanic representation of "The Portal of Hell."

A bronze bust of "La France" by Rodin was presented to the United States by the people of France during the tercentenary celebration of the discovery of Lake Champlain, and has since been mounted on a monument to Champlain at Crown Point, N. Y. In addition Rodin has executed busts for a number of wealthy Americans, and the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts through a gift of $25,000 by Thomas Fortune Ryan has obtained the largest single collection of the works of Rodin outside the artist's own studios. There are 40 examples of his works in the New York Museum.

The sculptor married at 23, when he was struggling the hardest against poverty, but he found in his bride a comrade and spur to ambition to whom he paid tribute many times. She served for many years as his model.

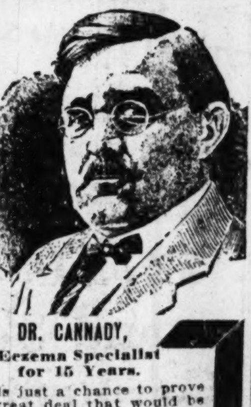
ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.



DR. CANNADY,
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone—ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now—your very life may be at stake.

J. E. CANNADY, M. D., 1273 Court Bk., Sedalia, Mo.

Reference: 3d Nat. Bank, Sedalia, or ask your banker to find out about me. Send this notice to some poor sufferer from eczema. It will be a kind act by you.

Movie Actresses and Their Hair

Did it ever occur to you that every movie actress you have seen has lovely hair, while the most popular count their curls as their chief beauty? In fact, many are leading ladies just because of their attractive locks. Inquiry among them discloses the fact that they bring out all the natural beauty of their hair by careful shampooing, not with any soap or makeshift, but with a simple mixture by putting a teaspoonful of canthrox (which they get from the druggist) in a cup of hot water and applying this instead of soap. This full cup of shampoo liquid is enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. After its use, the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. The hair is so fluffy that it looks much heavier than it is, while its luster and softness is delightful. —ADV.

St. Louis Man Gets Pleasant Surprise.

"About 6 months ago my father was very sick with his stomach which had been troubling him for several years. Three doctors said he had cancer and one said it was gall stones—all agreed an operation was necessary, but on account of his age I was afraid to risk it. I told a friend about it who said his wife had been through the same trouble and had been cured by taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I at once bought a bottle for father and he is now strong as a bear and can eat more ham and cabbage than any 3 men. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucous from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. NEW TREATMENT THAT KNOCKS RHEUMATISM

50c BOX FREE TO ANY SUFFERER

Up in Syracuse, N. Y., a treatment for rheumatism has been found that hundreds of users say is a wonder, reporting cases that seem little short of miraculous. Just a few treatments even in the very worst cases seem to accomplish wonders even after other remedies have failed entirely. It seems to neutralize the uric acid and lime salt deposits in the blood, driving all the poisonous clogging waste from the system. Soreness, pain, stiffness, swelling just seem to melt away and vanish.

The treatment first introduced by Mr. Delano is so good that its owner wants everybody who suffers from rheumatism or who has a friend so afflicted, to get a free 50c package from him to prove just what it will do in every case before a penny is spent. Mr. Delano says: "To prove that the Delano treatment will positively overcome rheumatism, no matter how severe, stubborn or long standing the case, and even after all other treatments have failed, I will, if you have never previously used the treatment, send you a full-size 50c package free if you will just cut out this notice and send it with your name and address with 10c to help pay postage and distribution expense to me personally."

BRUNDAGE PRAISES RIOT PROSECUTION IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Attorney-General, in Chicago Speech, Says St. Clair County Redeemed Itself.

NO JURY DISCRIMINATION

Declares White Offenders Have Been Convicted Just as Readily as Black Ones.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Edward J. Brundage, Attorney-General of Illinois, addressing the Irish Fellowship Club here today, spoke of the East St. Louis race riots. He said the indictments, in which 144 persons were named, and the convictions, which up to yesterday have resulted in 16 penitentiary sentences in the riot cases, were a vindication of St. Clair County and a proof of the supremacy of law in Illinois.

He also said that, in the task of regenerating East St. Louis, employers of labor must realize their duty, and that the newly adopted commission form of government must not be depended on, by itself, to improve conditions.

Exeracts From His Address.

In the part of his talk relating to East St. Louis, the Attorney-General said:

"The events in East St. Louis last summer were a blot upon Illinois. The shocking story of the brutal assaults upon colored people in the home State of Lincoln was proclaimed as a denial of justice in the North to colored citizens, and a confession of the inability of the Commonwealth to protect its citizens from violence. It brought odium and disgrace, not only upon the city where the riots occurred, but upon the entire State.

"The indictments returned by the grand jury and the convictions by the petit juries are the greatest vindication of the citizenship of St. Clair County. It is a triumph of law and is a complete answer to those who have denounced the inpotency of Illinois to protect every citizen, regardless of race and creed.

"It is evident by the convictions that justice was but suffering from temporary astigmatism and not permanently blind.

"It was slanderous to claim that no jury in St. Clair County would convict a white man for the killing of a negro. There has been no discrimination and the rioters, black or white, have met with no favoritism. The conviction of the rioters will not only have a wholesome effect in East St. Louis, but will be proclaimed as a victory by the forces of law and order throughout the nation. It will also serve as a lesson to those municipalities which mistake lawlessness for liberty. The blinking at brbery and the exercise of petty favoritisms are forms of lawlessness which readily magnify into outbursts such as occurred in East St. Louis.

"Another wholesome lesson which will extend further than the prosecution of the rioters and will equally affect every taxpayer is the liability of the city of East St. Louis for the property destroyed.

"The law of this State confers upon municipal authorites the power to suppress mobs and riots and to protect property. When the officials, through timidity or cowardice or viciousness, fail to maintain the law, then the city must pay for its debauch.

"The irresponsibility of the individual rioters cannot be better described than to say that the grand jury of St. Clair County heard evidence involving the liability of over 300 persons and 144 were indicted.

Evils of Absent Landlord.

"East St. Louis is a city where labor and capital seem to have very little in common. It has suffered because the manufacturing plants are largely branches of establishments located elsewhere. The evils of 'absentee landlordism' are plainly discernable. So far as I can learn, the great manufacturing institutions in that city have made no effort to better working conditions. They have not sought to make life happier or better for the men upon whose labor they depend for the conduct of their enterprises.

"The housing conditions are not considered of interest to the employers. Playgrounds and wholesome amusements are disregarded and the only place of recreation where the workingman and his family are freely and cordially welcome is the beer garden.

"On the other hand, labor is carefully and thoroughly organized. It controls largely the politics of the city, and the true civic interests of the community have too often been subordinated to the demands of unionism.

"In the regeneration of East St. Louis' civic life, there must be an awakening on the part of the employer that he can do much to make life worth living.

Sign of An Awakening.

"The citizenry of East St. Louis is showing signs of an awakened conscience. They recently adopted the 'Commision Form of Government,' so loudly hailed in some communities as the acme of municipal perfection

I hope it may prove beneficial to misgoverned East St. Louis, but its people must remember that laws will not automatically govern."

Advertising Club to Meet.

The first meeting of the Advertising Club of St. Louis in its new quarters at the Statler Hotel will be held next Tuesday. A program being arranged by George M. Burbach and Glenn Hutchinson includes addresses bq Richard Yates, former Governor of Illinois, and Edward Mead thing—this

It is the cleanest, biggest, finest sale of silks we have ever had.

It presents more than ninety thousand yards of carefully selected qualities. Silks that are like sugar in standard of value.

The silks are fresh, new. Not riff-raff silks; not old or undesirable silks.

Our clientele does not want poor silks. And we would not give away in this store some of the silks we see frequently advertised in "silk sales."

There are no poor silks in the sale at all—at any price.

But what you will find are the best, the most beautiful silks in the world. Silks that satisfy. Silks that endure.

A full half-year has been spent in collecting them.

If we tell you they are wonderful, you will pardon, or rather understand, our enthusiasm.

Every woman who buys these silks will profit in dollars and cents by our careful planning and forceful execution in the markets.

A saving that we are sure the silk-wearing public will be glad to absorb.

The sale is notable in the fact that the great major portion of the silks are the plain, standard staple silks that are most in use.

There are beautiful, strong, pure silk Georgette Crepes, regularly at $1.79 and $2.00, in this sale at $1.37 a yard.

There are exquisite, lustrous navy blue Taffetas, regularly priced at $2.00, in this sale at $1.38 a yard.

There are beautiful $2.00 Wash Satins, 36 in. wide, in pastel shades, flesh, white and ivory, at only $1.59 a yard.

There are $1.00 Tartan Plaid Silks in this sale at 69c a yard.

There are lovely Plaid and Satin Striped Silks, in many combinations, that were $2.50 and $3.00 —in this sale they go at $1.56 a yard.

There are exceptionally heavy qualities of $3.00 Crepe de Chines, 40 in. wide, that will go in this sale at $1.66 a yard.

There are the very smart La Jerz Silks, usually found in expensive frocks and originally sold for $3.50; 40 in. wide; in this sale at $1.66 a yard.

There are firm, soft, supple navy blue Gros de Londre Silks in the very fashionable weaves that were $3.00 regularly; 40 in. wide; in this sale at $1.96 a yard.

There are Chiffon Velvets of marvelous quality and texture in suede finish, rich, lustrous black; 40 in. wide; formerly priced at $6.00, in this sale at $2.98 a yard.

We could go on indefinitely and probably not include all there is to say about this wonderful silk sale.

U. S. TO HAVE NO POLITICAL VOICE IN WAR COUNCIL

Mr. House Says President Is to Decide Upon Military Representation.

PRAISES MISSION'S WORK

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—America will not be represented on the political end of the Supreme Allied War Council, and whether she will be represented on the military end remains for President Wilson to decide.

Mr. E. M. House, who received the Post-Dispatch correspondent today, made that clear. It would, of course, be quite feasible for the United States to take part in the military councils of the allies without becoming responsible for or involved in their political international aims. The position of the President toward entangling alliances remains unaltered, and it may be taken, will remain unaltered to the end of the chapter, but this will not interfere with the closest and most effective military co-operation with the allies for winning the war.

Mr. House was emphatic as to the highly satisfactory impression made on the American mission by what they learned of the economic and militiary organization of the allies. The mission, whose work he warmly eulogized, had proved a valuable instrument in bringing about that co-ordination of effort, which is the prime essential to the fullest utilization of the resources of the allies and the United States.

Co-operate on Requisitions.

Their labors now have been focussed to a point at which co-ordination is being achieved. In the future the requisitions of the allies under all heads will be dealt with by an inter-allied conference on which the United States will be represented by Oscar T. Crosby, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, who might possibly be its chairman.

This body's duty would be to scale the supplies to the allies so they could be used most effectively for the furtherance of the war. That would be the supreme object, and by keeping it in view, overlapping, duplication and waste would be obviated or reduced to the lowest point.

Nothing could have been more cordial or valuable than the relations between the various members of the American mission and members of the British departments with whom their work has cast them here. There has been complete disclosure of everything on both sides.

Mr. House said that the mission was convinced of the enormous economic superiority of the allies and America over the central Powers and that the only thing needed to make that superiority wholly effective was the co-ordination now agreed upon. In the military sense the allies and America's superiority equally is unquestionable, he said, and while he would not commit himself to any prediction about the duration of the war, nor, indeed, could anybody else, he was satisfied as to what its end would be.

Replying to a question, he said he didn't believe there was the slightest ground for the impression in certain quarters of the United States that the relations between the American and British admiralities lacked anything in friendliness and mutual confidence.

Navies Are Co-operating.

The fullest co-operation existed between the admiralities, he said; and everything America had was placed absolutely at the disposal of the British admiralty, which, on its side, reciprocated without the slightest reservation. Nothing could be better than their relations.

In fact, a system is now in operation by which scientific researches in each country are made known so scientists working on the same problems in different countries shall be on a parity, thus saving time and effort.

The date of the inter-allied conference at Paris, at which Mr. House will represent President Wilson, has not yet been fixed. The general and unqualified impression carried away by the Post-Dispatch correspondent was that the work of the mission had justified all expectations and marked a long step in a victorious prosecution of the war.

TRAFFIC CLUB WILL MEET DEC. 4

Effort Will Be Made to Organize National Association.

At the annual dinner of the St. Louis Traffic Club at the Hotel Statler Dec. 4, an effort will be made to form a national association. A meeting of delegates from all the traffic clubs has been called.

New officers for the ensuing year, elected Oct. 30, will be installed. These are president, F. C. Reilly; vice presidents, T. C. Whitmarsh, Elmer R. Taff, H. S. Snow, George S. Siddon and R. K. Cross; secretary, J. R. Bell, and treasurer, M. E. Markman.

JAPANESE TO INSPECT SCHOOLS

Twelve Japanese members of the National Japanese Sunday School Association, now touring the United States, will inspect St. Louis educational institutions, including Washington and St. Louis universities and the public schools in the course of a visit here tomorrow.

The Japanese party will be guests of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

TO STOP A PERSISTENT, HACKING COUGH

The Best Remedy Is One You Can Easily Make at Home. Cheap, but Very Effective.

Thousands of people normally healthy in every other respect, are annoyed with a persistent hanging-on bronchial cough year after year, disturbing their sleep and making life disagreeable. It's so needless—there's an old home-made remedy that will end such a cough easily and quickly.

Get from any druggist "2½ ounces of Pinex" (60 cents' worth), pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Begin taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma there is nothing better. It tastes pleasant and keeps perfectly.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is used by millions of people every year for throat and chest colds with splendid results.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," with full directions, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

SPIRIT OF THE NEW ARMY.
CAPT. EDWARD LYELL FOX in The Forum.

WE do not regard the men in the national army the way most German officers regard the men under them. We think of them as men who are fighting for their country, who are fighting for the survival of liberty. We are conveying to them that without rigid discipline there can be no military efficiency, that when they salute us they are not paying homage to us personally but to their country, as represented by the uniform our officers wear. We do not use abusive language to them and we try in every way to gain their confidence and to make them realize that they are getting a square deal. We want them to love us—not personally—but what we stand for, the idea of our country in peril. We believe in them. We believe that the way they are being trained spiritually as well as in military science will make them better soldiers than the Germans. I believe that in the heart of each of these men in our national army is that which caused his forefathers to come to America—the pulsation of liberty. So will they fight for the preservation of that liberty. Any false idea that this is not America's fight is speedily going by the boards, and because the men in the national army are Americans, have had a chance to give play to their individualities, they are going to fight more subbornly, to the last ditch, even with their officers killed off.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"In general, today's movement of prices on the Stock Exchange was an uninteresting repetition of what occurred yesterday; advances in the morning being followed by weakness later in the day. FOUR CONGRESSMEN UNDER GERMAN FIRE

American Party Caught in Sudden Attack When Visiting Trenches in Belgium.

By Associated Press.

BRITISH FRONT IN BELGIUM, Friday, Nov. 16.—Five members of the party of American Congressmen and private citizens who spent yesterday and part of today visiting the Belgian war zone had a narrow escape from death or injury this morning when they were caught in a sudden burst of German machine-gun fire while inspecting the front line trenches near Dixmude.

The Americans in danger were: Congressman C. C. Dill of Spokane, Wash.; Congressman Charles B. Timberlake of Colorado; Congressman John F. Miller of Seattle; Congressman Albert Johnson of Washington and former Representative Stout of Montana.

Nobody was hit, but it was one of those peculiar freaks of fortune which soldiers call luck, because the shots came in a shower close to them. It seemed almost certain someone must be wounded, although they were exposed only for a brief time.

Shell Dropped Near Them.

The other seven members of the party were in another section of the trench and were not disturbed by the fire. Later, however, when all the Americans were together, the Germans dropped a big shell some 10 yards away, endangering everyone. One member, in describing the incident to the correspondent later, said he and his companions heard the shell coming. "It sounded like the roar of an airplane," he said.

The visitors spent the night near the front and rose early this morning for a trip to the trenches near Dixmude. The Belgian and German lines run within 30 yards of each other at one point and it was there that the five men came into danger. At that distance it is easy to see anyone in the opposite trench who raises his head above the top. Only the usual firing was under way when the party, accompanied by Belgian officers, reached this place.

Got Excellent View.

The Americans were having an excellent view of the lines when several of them got into an exposed position and were seen by the Germans. Suddenly the enemy machine guns nearby began a vicious chatter and bullets came whizzing across the narrow strip of No Man's Land at the rate of several hundred a minute. Before the visitors realized the situation bullets were whining all about them like a storm of hail and dirt was being thrown into their faces as some of the steel pellets struck the top of the trench.

Congressman Albert Johnson of Washington State, who is mentioned in the dispatch as having escaped machine-gun fire, was connected with a St. Louis newspaper about 25 years ago, serving as a reporter and political writer. He has not resided in St. Louis for many years.

LEAVES $4000 LIBERTY BONDS TO BROTHER IN GERMAN ARMY

Illinois Man Made Small Fortune Training Dogs for St. Louis Sportsmen.

A fortune of $4000, made by training hunting dogs for St. Louis residents, and invested in Liberty bonds, is bequeathed to Peter Huegely, now serving in the German army, through the death of his brother, John Huegely, whose body was cremated in St. Louis Saturday.

John Huegely was known to the sportsmen of this city and the East Side for the last quarter of a century. He lived at Mitchell, Ill., in the center of the Grassey Lake, Long Lake, Round Pond and County Ditch hunting areas. He lived by hunting and trapping, and made money training dogs.

When his estate was checked up yesterday it was found to include $4000 worth of Liberty Loan bonds.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY TO ELECT OFFICERS THURSDAY

Christmas Carol Committee Will Distribute 10,000 Copies of Music to Be Sung This Year.

The Children's Aid Society will hold its annual meeting and election of officers Thursday at 2 p. m., in the Board of Education building, 911 Locust street. Previous to the meeting the members are to hear Robert A. Woods of South-End House, Boston, in a talk at the City Club lunch.

The society's Christmas Carol Committee, of which Mrs. Isaac Hedges is chairman, has arranged for the distribution of 10,000 copies of the Christmas carols selected for this year's singing. They are: "The First Noel," "King Wenceslas," "Children's Christmas Carol," and "I Saw Three Ships Come Sailing." In addition to these, some of the more ambitious of the groups are to sing Adolphe Adams' Cantique de Noel, which is sung in all the parish churches at midnight Christmas eve.

Mrs. C. R. D. Meier, Mrs. Truman Young and Mrs. Dudley French have offered their services to train groups of singers.

The End of Your Corns

Pain Stops at Once—Corn Lifts Off Clean.

There is nothing in the world like "Gets-It" for corns. Just apply it according to directions, the pain stops at once and then the corn lifts off as clean as a whistle. No fuss, no bother, no danger. "Gets-It," you know, is safe. Millions have used it, more than all other corn remedies combined, and it never fails.

Don't Waste Time "Hollering," "Gets-It" Never Fails.

There is no need for you to go through another day of corn agony. But be sure you get "Gets-It." Accept nothing else, for remember, there is positively nothing else as good. "Gets-It" never irritates the live flesh, never makes the toe sore.

You can go about as usual with work or play, while "Gets-It," the magic, does all the work. Then the corn peels right off like a banana skin, and leaves the toe as smooth and corn-free as your palm. Never happened before, did it? Guess not.

Get a bottle of "Gets-It" today from any drug store, you need pay no more than 25c, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in St. Louis and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Lowell Drug Store, A. P. Bentz, Johnson-Enderle-Pauley Drug Co. and Keiffer Drug Co.

Wrinkles Disappear "As If By Magic"

"In the removal of wrinkles I have discarded cosmetics entirely," writes Mme. Corsan, the celebrated beauty expert. "The results they produce are deceptive and never permanent. Massaging is only partially successful and it is too slow a method.

"I've never seen anything work such wonders as a simple, harmless solution any woman can prepare and use at home without the least trouble. A half pint of witch hazel and an ounce of good powdered saxolite are all you'll need. Mix the two and apply this refreshing solution to your face daily. The effect is marvelous—instantaneous. The skin becomes firmer, 'tighter'—every wrinkle and sag is affected. You feel so refreshed after using the wash; you look refreshed, too; soon you will look ten years younger."—ADV.

DID YOU KNOW?

That the "Birth of a Nation" photoplay has earned 1000 per cent already and is still earning big?

It is said "Neptune's Daughter" earned 1200 per cent, and "Trafic in Souls" over 3000 per cent. "Quo Vadis," "Spoilers," "Crisis," "Civilization" and others made their owners independently wealthy.

Now here comes another master production, the largest and most spectacular of them all. The new 12-reel million-dollar sensational creation called the "Birth of a Race," which experts who know say will beat all records as a big, quick money-maker.

THE BIRTH OF A RACE

is indorsed by State governors, editors, educators, university presidents and business men of nation-wide prominence. It is being made by an immense producing organization which has never produced a failure, and the sale of its stock is under the supervision of a stock and bond brokerage house, which in its 17 years of business life has never lost a dollar for a client.

If the "Birth of a Race" returns as much as "Birth of a Nation," every $100 you invest will return $1000. If as much as "Traffic in Souls," every $100 will give you $3000; every $1000, $30,000. Write for full details.

FIELD HEADQUARTERS, AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Oct. 23.—There has been a good deal written in the past two years about how this war has completely revolutionized every detail of the soldier's work.

A lot has been said about how all the old ideas must be scrapped and a new start taken, about how the old conception of a soldier was quite wrong, and how in this year 1917 the soldier is a sort of specialized mechanic who goes about in a labyrinth of barbed wire, tanks, hand grenades, liquid fire, gas masks, barrages and dugouts, and does his fighting by pressing buttons and pulling wires.

It may be of a great deal of comfort to those thousands back home who are bending all their energies just now toward getting ready to come over here to hear that as a matter of fact Gen. Pershing and his staff after looking the whole thing over and talking it over with the leading French and British Generals are about convinced that war hasn't changed so much after all in its essentials.

Principles Unchanged.

In fact, it can be stated on the very highest authority that the theory on which the American army will be trained in France may be expressed about as follows:

The general principles governing combat remain unchanged in their essence. This war has developed special features which involve special phases enunciated in the American Army Drill Regulations, Small Arms Firing Manual, Field Service Regulations and other service manuals now being so widely bought and studied by embryo soldiers and officers remain the guide for both officers and soldiers. These constitute the standard by which their efficiency is to be measured, except as that standard is modified in detail by special instructions from Gen. Pershing.

In other words, our army has not, as some would have us believe, been wasting its time for the past three years. It may not have devoted much time to the study of trench warfare and its methods, but the special methods and developments of trench warfare are special methods made for special situations. They are only sideshows of the great war. The main trunk of our training system, of our theory of preparing to fight is sound.

We need only to graft on it branches, the new specialties evolved by this war. These are among others: Hand grenades, which, of course, are no new discovery, simply a development; liquid fire, as old as civilization almost; trench mortars, which in principle are an American invention, and asphyxiating gas, almost entirely new.

The American soldier will be trained in the use of all these things. He will be taught all about barbed wire, all about dugouts, all about trench fighting and trench life. He will be taught all that there is to know about them, as many Americans have already been taught. But in the main the things that have always been taught American soldiers will continue to be an essential part of their training. Turn to the Field Service Regulations on combat:

"Combat is divided into two general classes, the offensive and the defensive. * * * Decisive results are obtained only by the offensive. Aggressiveness wins battles."

That is the doctrine on which our army has been brought up. And also:

"Fire superiority insures success. Unity of command is essential to success. Simple and direct plans and methods are productive of the best results in warfare."

Hit the Nail on The Head.

Our Field Service Regulations, compiled before a single American soldier had landed in France, hit the nail on the head. They say, furthermore, "The infantry is the principal and most important arm, which is charged with the main work on the field of battle, and decides the final issue of combat."

And regarding the infantry, the following conclusion has been reached: The rifle and the bayonet are the principal weapons of the infantry soldier. He will be trained to a high degree of skill as a marksman, both on the target range and in field firing. With the bayonet he will be trained and trained and trained until he regards himself invincible with cold steel in battle.

The American infantryman will learn to throw bombs as accurately as anyone, or to fire machine guns or trench mortars or automatic rifles, but his main reliance will be on bullet and bayonet, for he is an infantryman and those are the infantryman's weapons. They are the infantryman's weapons, for these two reasons among others: The rifle is accurate beyond any weapon an infantryman can use, and proficiency in the bayonet gives him greater confidence than anything else if he gets man to man. Furthermore, the German does not like cold steel. The whole subject of bayonet fighting is not one for the squeamish to study, but it is not for nothing that the American soldier is taught to grunt when he lunges, even in practice, at a Boche dummy.

Gen. Pershing has emphasized that fact repeatedly. He knows that the French infantrymen have got so far away from bedrock that sometimes they run after a fleeing German, trying vainly to get within the 45 yards grenade range instead of stopping and picking him off with the far more accurate rifle. He knows that when, in the battle of Arras, retreating Germans became entangled in their own barbed wire and some Australians fired their whole hundreds rounds apiece of rifle ammunition at them, the marksmanship was not good because the Australians had got the same habit of bombing too much. He knows that the Germans depend even more than the allies on bombs and machine guns and trench mortars.

Then there is the Great Hope—the German may break and run some day. One never knows, and surely the Americans will never give up that hope and will always be trying for its realization. He is determined that when that time comes the Americans shall not lose the opportunity and the enemy get off scot free.

The motto of the American Expeditionary Force, now and hereafter, reads something like this: "We're here to beat the Germans, and the only way to beat them is to attack them."

That is why, in the words of the officer who has in charge the whole program of training:

"All instruction must contemplate the assumption of a vigorous offensive."

GERMAN SHRAPNEL ADDS TO AMERICAN CASUALTIES LIST

Gen. Pershing Visits Men in First Line and Expresses Satisfaction With Men's Efficiency, Discipline and Adaptability to Conditions.

Enemy Shell Hits American Gun, Wounding Some Men—Some of Those Injured Recently Die.

Damage Inflicted on German Lines as a Result of Improved Visibility—Americans See Aerial Battle.

By Associated Press.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, Nov. 17.—Gen. Pershing today returned to his headquarters from a visit to his troops in the first line trenches and the support in the rear. Artillery fighting on both sides was normal while he was there, and no shells fell near him.

Night patrolling continued active and contact with the enemy's patrols has been established several times, shots being exchanged. The Germans have sent over more gas shells, but they caused no damage.

Gen. Pershing expressed himself as satisfied with his troops efficiency, discipline and adaptability to the new conditions. During his trip the General visited the graves of the men who were killed in a trench raid recently.

There have been further casualties, shrapnel wounding some men in the trenches.

An enemy shell hit an American gun yesterday and caused casualties. Some of the men wounded in the last two days have died.

The American batteries have been firing rapidly in return. The visibility is becoming better and it is considered certain that more damage and casualties have been caused in the German lines than the Germans have inflicted on the Americans.

Witnessed First Battle in Air.

The American troops witnessed their first aerial encounter yesterday. Three enemy airplanes appeared overhead. Soon all of them except one fled at the approach of five French machines. One of the French outmaneuvered this German and "got on his tail." The German aviator then bolted. The rattle of machine guns finally died away as the two airplanes disappeared to the west.

The French General commanding the sector has mentioned in the dispatches 15 American officers and soldiers, including three who were killed, for excellent military qualities and for bravery displayed in the recent trench raid.

A note accompanying the citations says that between 8000 and 10,000 shells were used in the attack, which had been in preparation for three months, down to the finest details. The results obtained by the enemy were very small, he having been unable to penetrate more than the first line trenches because of the resistance of the American soldiers with rifle and pistol fire and hand grenades. The enemy had to content himself, the citation continues, with carrying off a few prisoners.

Tribute by Commander.

The General in the order mentions the —— company, commanded by Lieut (name deleted by censor), as follows:

"On the night of Nov. 2-3 this company, which was in the lines for the first time, met an extremely violent bombardment despite which it seized arms and offered such stubborn resistance that the enemy, though numerically superior, was obliged to retire."

The General specially cited in the order of the day, Corporal James Gresham and Privates Merle D. Hay and Thomas F. Enright, "who died bravely in hand-to-hand fighting with the enemy who had penetrated the first line."

The others cited 'who showed excellent military qualities" are Second Lieutenants M. C. Laughlin, R. O Patterson and E. R. Erickson; Sergt John Arrowood, Corporals David M. Knowles and Homer Givens and Privates Charles Massa, William B. Thomas, George Hurd, Boyce Wade, Robert Winkler and John J. Jarvis.

Congressmen Tell of Special Effort to Trap American Troops.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Further details of the Germans' special effort to trap American soldiers in the front line trenches Nov. 3, on the occasion of the invaders' first raid on the American trenches, which resulted in numerous casualties to the defenders, have been brought to London by the party of American Congressmen now visiting France and England. Congressman Taylor of Colorado said:

"Our men were detailed to a position of the front line for observation at 3 o'clock in the morning. There

PEANUTS AT RETAIL UP FROM 5 TO 18 CENTS SINCE APRIL

Demand From Oleo Makers, Packers and Cotton Seed Oil Men Cause of Advance.

Peanuts have gone up too. Where you used to get two handfuls for a nickel you now get one. The reason is that the oleomargarine makers, packing houses and cotton seed oil makers want them and are buying all that they can get of them.

In seven months the retail price has advanced from 5 to 18 cents per pound. The last jump was Thursday, from 15 to 18 cents. St. Louis nut merchants have been shipping peanuts by the carload the past week to the Kansas City packing houses. Some of them are made into peanut butter and some into oleo.

Throughout the South, Spanish peanuts are being ground by the cotton seed mills. It is said that $75,000,000 worth of peanuts will go this year to the cotton seed men and the oleo makers. There will be no decline from the present prices, dealers say, until the quantity and quality of the 1918 crop is assured.

WOMAN TEARS U. S. FLAG FROM CAFE WALL, DONS IT AS WRAP Tells Police She Removed Emblem Because She Deemed It in Unfit Place.

Mrs. Adeline Kessler, 35 years old, a saleswoman, and her husband, Walter, a machinist, of 4115 Harris avenue, were arrested yesterday afternoon at Sixth street and Washington avenue, while Mrs. Kessler was wearing a large American flag about her shoulders.

James Gallagher, proprietor of a cafe over a saloon at 619 Lucas avenue, complained that Mrs. Kessler had torn the flag from the wall of his place and carried it away over his protest. She refused to give up the flag to policemen until she reached Central Station where she handed it over to the Desk Sergeant. She declared she took the flag down because she thought the cafe was not a fit place for it.

Gallagher said Mr. and Mrs. Kessler had been served with drinks. The couple were held for the Federal authorities.

TWO MORE HOTELS EMPLOY GIRLS TO OPERATE ELEVATORS

Statler and Warwick Say Young Women Are Giving Entirely Satisfactory Service.

Employment of girls as elevator operators, started several months ago in office buildings and later taken up by the Marquette Hotel, now has been extended to the 20-story Statler Hotel and to the Warwick Hotel. Managers of the hotels say the girls are giving entire satisfaction and are more obliging than men.

Eight girls are used at the Statler, although male operators are employed in Statler hotels in other cities. The girls work "split" watches. One day they are on from 7 a. m. to noon and from 6 to 11 p. m. and the next day only from noon to 6 p. m. They are paid the same salaries as were formerly paid to men.

The use of the girls at the Statler has almost eliminated complaints about the elevator service. Their presence inclines guests, especially men, to keep their patience when business is brisk and there are necessary short waits.

'I'M NOT BAD,' SAYS C. F. MURPHY

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 17.—Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, who is at French Lick, Ind., told an Evansville woman reporter today he made it a rule of his life never to give interviews.

He said: "I am not really as bad as the papers and magazines paint me, although I don't mind what they say as long as I and God know it isn't so. I've got a heart, even if reporters don't always recognize it."

At the same hotel with Murphy are Thomas Taggart, Indiana Democratic political boss and Roger Sullivan the Democratic boss of Illinois.

WEEK TO BE GENERALLY FAIR WITH PROSPECT OF RAIN

12 (noon)	62	6 p. m.	67

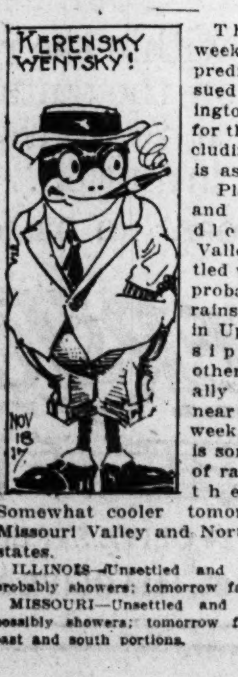
Official forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Unsettled and cooler with possible showers today; fair and cooler tomorrow.



The official weekly weather prediction, issued at Washington yesterday, for the region including St. Louis, is as follows:

Plains states and Upper Middle Mississippi Valley: Unsettled weather and probably local rains tomorrow in Upper Mississippi Valley, otherwise generally fair until near close of week, when there is some prospect of rain except in the Northeast. Somewhat cooler tomorrow in the Missouri Valley and Northern plains states.

ILLINOIS—Unsettled and cooler today; probably showers; tomorrow fair, colder.

MISSOURI—Unsettled and cooler today; possibly showers; tomorrow fair; cooler in east and south portions.

TWO OFFICERS FLY FROM SCOTT FIELD TO KANSAS CITY

280-Mile Trip Made in Six Hours, With One Stop for Gasoline.

TRAVEL 4000 FEET UP

Lieut. Fred Harvey Is Met on Landing by Parents and Sister.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 17.—Two officers from Scott Field, near Belleville, Ill., arrived here at 1:45 this afternoon, after a six-hour flight from the field and across the Mississippi River and the State of Missouri, a distance of 280 miles.

The officers, Maj. C. K. Rhinehardt and Lieut. Fred Harvey, were greeted at the Country Club grounds on their landing by a gathering which included Lieut. Harvey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Harvey, and his sister, Miss Catherine Harvey.

A large white wooden cross had been placed in the polo field to show the flyers where to land. A Sergeant, sent in advance, had made this and other preparations

When Lieut. Harvey got out of the machine, looking grotesque in his heavy leather clothing and goggles, his sister ran to him and kissed him, declaring that the flight, of which she had seen only the end, had been beautiful. Thousands of Kansas Cityans who saw the airplane over the city agreed with her.

The flyers made one stop, at Gilliam, Mo., 99 miles, for gasoline. They traveled at an altitude of 4000 feet, and their fastest time was 100 miles an hour. Maj. Rhinehardt acted as pilot.

Lieut. Harvey was 21 years old when he left the junior class at Harvard University last February to begin training in aviation at Miami, Fla. He received a commission as First Lieutenant after three months' training and has been acting as instructor. His flight from Scott Field to Kansas City enables him to spend the week end with his parents.

The officers will start on their return flight at 7 o'clock Monday morning.

ELECTRIC SIGNS TURNED OFF PROMPTLY AT 11 O'CLOCK HERE

Lights went out in the big electrict advertising signs in St. Louis at 11 o'clock last night in compliance with the order of the Fuel Administrator. This was the second night of the observance of the order in St. Louis.

Many places that heretofore have been brilliantly lighted after the theaters let out were dark last night. Immense signs on Twelfth street and along Locust street, placed to catch the eyes of autoists on the way to and from the West End, were dark. So were the big ones in the vicinity of Grand avenue and Olive street.

Only the smaller signs, illuminating the name of the concern over which they were erected, were allowed to remain burning, and in some cases these were turned out voluntarily. Owing to the comparatively small amount of activity downtown after 9 p. m. a number of advertising concerns have sent a request to the Fuel Administration asking that the hours for sign lighting be changed to permit the signs to be lighted from dusk until 9 o'clock, instead of from 7:45 to 11, as at present.

"MARCHING THROUGH GEORGIA" IS TERMED "HYMN OF HATE"

Daughters of Confederacy Declare Against Singing It in Schools of South or on Public Occasion.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 17.—A resolution presented today to the United Daughters of the Confederacy protesting against singing what was termed the "hymn of hate"—"Marching Through Georgia"—in the schools of the South and on public occasions, was adopted.

Louisville, Ky., was accepted as the convention city for next year.

U. S. WANTS SKILLED WORKERS

Good Jobs for Machinists, Blacksmiths, Boilermakers and Women.

First-class machinists, blacksmiths and boilermakers, and women who can operate high-power sewing machines, are being sought by the Government, for employment in the East. Railroad transportation will be furnished to the men, and transportation and sleeping car berth to the women.

The men are desired for jobs which pay as high as 62 cents an hour, with time and a half for overtime. The women are to be employed in the naval clothing factory in Charleston, S. C., and the pay is as high as $2.48 for an eight-hour day, with time and a half for overtime. Because of the great amount of work needed, two 10-hour shifts are maintained.

MAN TELLS OF HIDING $12,000 UNDER STREETS OF ST. LOUIS

Convict Being Brought Here From Ohio to Show Where He Put Money.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 17.—That he had hidden $12,000 in coin and currency under the streets of St. Louis was the startling confession made this afternoon by Allen C. Thomas, 50 years old, of Richville, O., after he had been sentenced in United States District Court to serve two years in the Leavenworth (Kan.) Penitentiary for alleged fraudulent real estate dealings.

The confession, made to Judge Charles P. Orr, was accepted seriously by the Court, and late today two Federal officials with Thomas in custody departed for St. Louis, where an effort will be made to find the money. Thomas stated that he would lead the officers to the spot where the currency is buried. Thomas, it is said, operated in St. Louis and Cincinnati.

Just to show that the Free Bridge is not wholly idle, the department of streets and sewers has compiled figures on the use of the bridge roadway by vehicles from Jan. 20 last, the day of its opening, to Nov. 1. The number of vehicles using the roadway in that time was 825,436, of which 236,614 were wagons and commercial automobiles.

At the rate of 45 cents each, which is figured as the average vehicle charge on Eads bridge, the owners and drivers of these vehicles saved $371,446. The number of vehicles using the bridge is constantly increasing, the department says.

F. E. A. CURLEY STRUCK AND BADLY HURT BY STREET CAR

Shoulder and Several Ribs of Art League Secretary Broken—May Be Internally Injured.

Francis E. A. Curley, 46 years old, of 6143 Berlin avenue, secretary of the Art League of St. Louis, and former curator of the City Art Museum, was struck by an eastbound University car at 9 o'clock last night, at Rosedale avenue, when he attempted to cross the tracks in front of the car. His left shoulder and several ribs were broken, and he is believed to have suffered internal injuries. He was taken home, and at midnight his condition was said to be serious.

Curley had intended to board the car. A police inquiry resulted in no arrest, as it was held that the motorman could not have stopped the car in time to prevent the accident.

WOMEN TO WORK AT NAVY YARD

100 Positions at Portsmouth Attract More Than 200 Applicants.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 17. A call for women for mechanical war work was authorized today at the Portsmouth Navy Yard. Women and girls are needed in the assembly hall of the electrical shop, and more than 200 applications were filed for the 100 places soon after the notice was issued. School teachers, factory hands, married women and high school girls fairly mobbed the employment bureau.

The women will work an eight-hour day, with double time for overtime, at a flat rate of $2.72 maximum and $1.68 minimum.

FATHER OF 17TH CHILD IS 79

Elevator Operator Has Four Daughters Older Than His Wife.

Charles L. Lively, 79 years old, an elevator operator at the City Hospital, yesterday was announcing, with a show of pride, the birth Wednesday of a daughter. This is his seventeenth child.

Lively's wife is 20 years old and he has four daughters who are older than his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Lively also have a son 2 years old. Lively has been married several times.

PLANS FOR ARMY OF 3,000,000

War Department Estimates to Be Based on That Figure.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The War Department is understood to have virtually decided that the new estimates to be submitted to Congress in December will be based on expenditures necessary to maintain armed forces aggregating 3,000,000 men. This does not mean that the American army is to be limited to 3,000,000 men. Every man required to win the war will ultimately be called to the colors by President Wilson.

STATE OF SIEGE IN BRAZIL

Decree Affects Five States and the Federal District.

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 17.—The government has proclaimed a state of siege in the federal district and in the states of Rio Janeiro, Sao Paulo, Parana, Santa Catharina and Rio Grande do Sul.

Transport Service Chauffeurs Wanted.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—A call for 500 chaufeurs for transport service in the quartermaster's corps was issued here today at the headquarters of the Eastern Department. The men will be used for service either in this country at cantonments or with forces abroad, it was announced. Applicants will be examined at receiving offices.

CONGRESSMEN TO ASK PROSECUTIONS IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Will Seek Aid of Department of Justice in Gathering Evidence.

INVESTIGATORS GO HOME

"Conditions Include Every Crime in Catalogue," Declares Ben Johnson.

The Congressional Committee which yesterday finished an investigation, lasting a month, into conditions that led up to the race riots in East St. Louis, will ask the Department of Justice to assist in gathering evidence for prosecutions against East St. Louis and St. Clair County officials. Congressman Ben Johnson, chairman of the committee, made this statement to a Post-Dispatch reporter before departing last night for his home at Bardstown, Ky.

It is understood that such prosecutions will be instituted by Attorney-General Brundage of Illinois.

"A number of prosecutions ought to follow," Congressman Johnson said. "There should be several for malfeasance in office, and there is enough evidence in the record of the hearing upon which to base several impeachments and disbarments.

"Portions of our report will be turned over to the Department of Justice before it is published, together with a transcript of the testimony, with a view of getting enough operatives here to get the evidence necessary for successful prosecutions. These secret service men also may gather enough evidence to justify another session of the Congressional Committee in East St. Louis."

Praises Post-Dispatch for Help.

Congressman Johnson was seen in his room at Hotel Jefferson last night by a Post-Dispatch reporter, and asked for a statement of his impressions of East St. Louis, as a result of the facts obtained during the investigation. While he shaved himself, he said:

"I had never dreamed that such a condition existed in this country—or on the face of the earth. It seems that most of those who were not intimidated into silence and inaction, and those who were not intimidated had come to abandon all hope of correcting the amominable situation which existed there.

"The East St. Louis reporter of the Post-Dispatch was courageous enough, and that paper was patriotic enough, to tell the people what the conditions were. The Rev. Mr. Allison and the Rev. Mr. Goelz were good enough citizens and good enough Christians to use their efforts in a legal way to send lawlessness and re-establish order. These three people certainly are deserving of the praise and the thanks of the good citizens of the community."

The chairman said that he was more horrified by the case of Myrtle Gardner, the 19-year-old girl who testified, when lying in bed seriously ill, that she was held a prisoner 18 months in a place visited by foreigners, than by any other testimony given.

Affected by Girl's Story.

"When I went into that room," he said, "and saw that strip of a girl, marked with the ravages of tuberculosis, and heard her tell her story, I found that Congressman Cooper and Pastor Allison were shedding some tears, just as I was. It is a horrible thing to contemplate that those who brought about her ruin and who are responsible for her miserable plight, should undertake to escape their responsibility by pursuing her to the very brink of the grave on which she now stands. I sat today in a courtroom and heard those persons tried who are, in my opinion, guilty of nothing except shielding her from violence."

Congressman Johnson was referring to the trial of Mrs. Grace Yent and Ruby Nelson, of 117 North Third street, who were discharged yesterday by Justice Russell E. Townsend on a charge of conducting an immoral house. It was at their home that the Congressional Committee found Myrtle Gardner. It was the expressed belief of the committee and of Federal officials that the two women were victims of a "frame up."

Congressman Raker, who also started last evening for his home in California, was asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter what he thought of conditions in East St. Louis. Raker had become known, during the course of the inquiry, as the "fighting" member of the committee, because of his vigorous methods of questioning witnesses.

Raker Predicts Change.

"There was a complete subjugation of law and order, with those higher up profiting from whiskey and corruption," Congressman Raker said. "The East St. Louis method of running saloons is primarily responsible for the inception and maintenance of graft and maladministration there. The rounder protects the saloonkeeper, who buys from the brewery, which does business with the officials.

"There are lots of good people in

GIRL'S STORY OF PETROGRAD FIGHT AT PHONE BUILDING

Bessie Beatty Describes Defense of Structure Against Bolsheviki by 60 Boy Cadets.

OFFICERS DESERT LADS

Their Lives Saved by American's Intervention—300 Operators Work Amid Firing.

By BESSIE BEATTY.
Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
(Copyright, 1917, by Press Pub. Co.)

PETROGRAD, Nov. 13, via London, Nov. 17.—Last Sunday afternoon I spent five hours in the hottest place of the revolution. I was in the telephone building while a squad of 60 cadets from the officers' school tried to hold it against Bolsheviki sailors and the Red Guard. It was 1 o'clock when I entered the telephone building and 7 when the last frightened telephone operator slipped away in the darkness and the last terrified cadet marched off between his sailor captors.

At noon I was sitting in my rooms wondering at the quiet, which was broken only by church bells, when two shots crashed the silence. I hurried upstairs. A group of officers turned me back, so I took the elevator and dropped down to the lobby of the hotel in time to see an armored car halt before the door and a group of cadets enter and line a revolutionary guard against the wall, disarm them and imprison them in the basement.

Boy Officer in Command.

A boy officer with a cigarette in his mouth, a revolver in hand, directed the proceedings.

I followed the officers down the Morskaya to the telephone building, two blocks below, where a couple of touring cars had been placed across the street to barricade traffic. The crowd was warned back by the cadets, rifles in hand. In the doorway was an American Socialist talking to some cadets. Albert Rhys Williams, a fellow correspondent, pulled me into the shelter of the entrance.

We went upstairs to the manager's office and asked to see the operators who, at the end of the third recapture of the building, were at the breaking down point. We found 300 girls at the switchboards, plugging while rifles cracked outside the windows. At 2 o'clock the firing began at both ends of the block as the sailors attacked the cadets

The boys had built barricades of boxes and boards across the sidewalks. They took up positions behind these frail protections and fired at the revolutionary forces in both directions. Some hid behind motor trucks and rested their guns on the engines. Some lay flat in the mud in the street and fired from underneath the trucks.

Part of Girls Stay at Posts.

I watched the fight first from the courtyard, then from a front window upstairs where I could look down the street. At 3 o'clock the firing was most intense and the manager told the girls they could leave their posts.

Some, with deep circles under their eyes, faces pale, hands trembling, huddled together or fled in one direction or another as the firing marked the danger points. A hundred or more stayed at their posts until 4 o'clock, when the firing was at its height, and the panic was greatest. Twenty operators stuck to the switchboards until the building surrendered.

To a room on the second floor Antonoff, head of the Bolsheviki war ministry, was taken from an automobile, with a sailor and half a dozen other prisoners. The crowd outside the building was led by a workingman. The Red Guard, reinforced by sailors, learned that Antonoff was in the building. They also had another grudge against the cadets, some of whom, captured at the Winter Palace, had broken their parole.

In the middle of the afternoon the cadets tried to start a peace parley, offering to surrender Antonoff if allowed to go free themselves.

"We will take Antonoff from you and kill every last one of you," was the answer sent back. The boys became desperate when the older officers who were directing them disappeared.

"Why doesn't Kerensky come?" they asked again and again. Their stock of ammunition diminished. A Red Cross ambulance dashed up to the building, left a box of hand grenades and departed.

At 4 o'clock I was moved from the window. The forces outside were pressing closer, the street barricades were abandoned by the cadets, who poured upstairs to the front windows, smashed the glass with the butts of their rifles and took places behind the yellow silk curtains.

Woman Operates Machine Gun.

I went to a window overlooking the courtyard. A machine gun was mounted on a box and a woman with quick fingers filled and refilled cartridge tape. Two cadets passed bearing a wounded comrade, shot in the abdomen and limp in their arms.

A Polish boy, whom I had seen

NORTHCLIFFE SURPRISED BY KING'S KNOWLEDGE OF AMERICA

British Monarch Familiar With Liberty Motor and Method by Which It Was Produced.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Lorth Northcliffe authorized the Associated Press to state that in an audience extending over an hour today he heard from the lips of King George at Buckingham Palace, his majesty's view of the present state of the war and the world importance of American intervention.

Speaking of the American mission and of E. M. House, whom he had known for years, King George said the personnel of the American mission displayed knowledge and alertness indicative of the American character and purpose.

Lord Northcliffe was surprised by the King's intimate knowledge of the possibilities of aircraft production in the United States and his majesty's great interest in the Liberty engine, his knowledge of the men who have evolved it and the method by which it has been produced.

Lord Northcliffe was commanded by his majesty to convey his thanks to the members of the British war mission for their good work, in which they were so consistently assisted by their American colleagues The King is absolutely confident of complete victory.

BRITISH ENGAGE GERMAN CRUISERS OFF HELGOLAND

LONDON, Nov. 17.—British light naval forces today engaged German light cruisers off Helgoland, the Admiralty announced today. The German warships retired and the British forces are now chasing them.

The announcement follows:

"British light forces operating in Helgoland Bight have been engaged with German light forces this morning. The only information we have received thus far is that our vessels have engaged enemy light cruisers, that the latter have retired at high speed, and that our vessels are in pursuit."

'COMBINATION SALES' BY RETAIL GROCERS ARE ORDERED STOPPED

Food Administration Permits Only One Exception, That of Cornmeal With Sugar.

WASHINGTON Nov. 17.—Retail dealers were ordered by the Food Administration today to stop the widely prevalent practice of making "combination sales," requiring customers to make other purchases in order to obtain a certain commodity. One exception is made—on all sales of sugar the dealers may require to buy twice the weight of corn meal.

Reports have come from many cities of "combination sales," particularly since the shortage of sugar in the East began. This practice, the administration holds, is likely to lead to wasteful buying. The exception in regard to corn meal is made as a wheat conservation measure, to encourage greater use of corn products.

Ample power to enforce its orders to retailers is possessed by the Food Administration through its licensing of wholesalers. Any dealer who fails to heed an order will find his supply from the wholesaler cut off if his offense is reported.

BUSY SESSION FOR CONGRESS

Speaker Clark Says Suffrage and Dry Bills Need No Debate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17.—Speaker Clark looks for an unusually busy session when Congress meets in December. He believes both the suffrage and prohibition amendments can be voted on after one day each in the House. He would not venture an opinion as to whether they would pass.

"As for the discussion of these two amendments on the floor," he said, "everything has been said about each one of them that can be said."

He said appropriations would not be as large this session as last. "In addition to war legislation," he said, "general legislation will be considered. The chief item will be appropriation bills and revenue bills. There are 14 great appropriation bills to be handled. In long sessions such bills are picked to pieces as they are not in short sessions. The Speaker pointed out that many items, such as shipping and fortifications, would not require appropriations.

HOLLAND TO KEEP ITS ISLANDS

Notice Published in Curacao that No Colonial Territory Will Be Ceded.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Dutch West Indies, Nov. 17.—In the Official Gazette the Governor of Curacao states that the Netherlands Minister of the Colonies has informed him that the Government refused to consider the idea of ceding any part of Holland's colonial territory.

Curacao is the largest of the Dutch West India islands. It lies 41 miles off the Venezuelan coast.

TEUTONS CHECKED AFTER MAKING TWO CROSSINGS OF PIAVE

Invaders Driven Back at Two Points by Italians Who Take 1000 Prisoners—Berlin Announces Capture of Mountain in North.

Teutons, Fighting in Snowstorm, Capture 800 Men, Including Commander, Between Brenta and Piave.

British Improve Their Line Near Passchendaele, Where German Artillery Fire Is Intense.

By Associated Press.

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS, Nov. 17.—The Austro-Germans today made furious attempts to break the Italian line and crossed the Piave River at two points, but were annihilated at one point and driven back at the other. The Italian lines are holding, but the situation is considered to be grave.

ROME, Nov. 17.—The German troops which forced a crossing of the Piave River at Zenson are being pressed back steadily by the Italians, it is announced officially. In other sectors nearly 1000 prisoners have been taken.

Two more crossings of the Piave were effected yesterday by the Germans. At Follina the German troops were destroyed or captured. At Fagare they were driven back to the embankment and their return was hindered by the Italian artillery.

More than 600 prisoners were taken at Fagare, on the Piave, above Zenson, and 300 were captured at Follina, on the northern mountain front, near the Upper Piave.

The statement says:

"From the Asiago plateau to the sea the enemy, without considering his losses, renewed his attacks on our mountain positions and his attempts on the plain to force the line of the Piave. Our troops with great stubbornness offered an effective defense, opposing the enemy numercially stronger and counter-attacking him with admirable plan.

"Yesterday fighting occurred from Monte Fior to Monte Castelgomberto at the defensive line of San Marino, at Monte Prassolen and to the north of Quero, along the line of the Rosca Cisa-Monte Carnelle Piave Valley.

"On the plain between Salettuel and San Andrea di Barbariano (on the lower Piave just above Zenzon, at which the Germans effected their first crossing), the enemy at dawn, under protection of the most violent artillery fire, forced a passage of the river. His troops crossed to the right bank at Folina and Fagare. The troops at the former place were destroyed by our artillery and by a sudden attack of the Lecos Brigade. The survivors, more than 300 men, with 10 officers, were made prisoners.

"The troops, by far the greater number, which had crossed at the latter place, were heavily attacked by the Fifty-Fourth Division, whose troops, the Novara Brigade and Third Bersaglieri, excelled in courage. At the end of the day many enemy dead remained on the ground. About 600 men and 20 officers were brought back prisoner and the remainder, driven up to the embankment of the river, were shelled by our artillery, which hindered the return of these troops to the other bank.

"At the Zenzon loop the enemy is being closed up in a zone more and more restricted.

"On the lower reaches of the Piave the Royal Navy, with aircraft, floating and ground batteries and light forces, is contributing effectively to the defense."

British Official.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The announcement issued by the War Office today says:

"A successful operation was carried out late yesterday evening by Berkshire and Lancashire battalions in the vicinity of Passchendaele. Further portions of the enemy's defenses on the main ridge north of the village, including a strongly fortified farm, were captured by us. We also took a number of prisoners.

"West of this locality also we have advanced our lines slightly at certain points. The enemy's artillery again has been active throughout the night on the battle front. The German shelling has been particularly severe in the Passchendaele sector."

German Official.

BERLIN, Nov. 17 (via London).—Austro-German forces invading the northern provinces of Italy yesterday stormed Monte Prassolan, between the Brenta and Piave rivers, says the official statement issued today by the General Staff. Eight

KERENSKY'S CHIEF AID TELLS OF LAST TALK WITH HIM

Former Premier Excited When Informed That Officers Had Deserted Him.

SPOKE OF ENDING LIFE

Fled While Guard Was Being Arranged After Promise to Go to Petrograd.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—A Reuter's Limited dispatch from Petrograd, dated Nov. 16, gives the following details concerning the Russian internal situation:

"Maximalist troops have occupied Gatchina and Premier Kerensky's staff has been arrested. Kerensky fled from arrest, but orders have been issued by wireless for his apprehension.

"The Maximalist Council of Commissioners has proclaimed the right of the different peoples of Russia to the self-determination of their form of government, including separation and the formation of independent states. The Maximalists insist on the inclusion of Nikolai Lenine and Leon Trotzky in any composite Socialist government, and that their party shall have a majority of the portfolios, including the Foreign, Interior and Labor Ministeries."

PETROGRAD, Friday, Nov. 16.—Gen. Krasnoff, former commander of the Kerensky forces, who was arrested and released by the Bolsheviki Government, has confirmed in a report that Kerensky fled in disguise after he had been deserted by most of his officers, and after he had agreed to go to Petrograd. The former Premier was excited when Gen. Krasnoff saw him, and talked of ending his life.

"At 3 o'clock on the afternoon of Nov. 1 (old style Nov. 1, new style Nov. 14) I called at the quarters of the Commander in Chief," said Gen. Krasnoff, in his report. "He appeared nervous and excited.

" 'General,' said he, 'you have betrayed me. Your Cossacks say they will arrest me and give me up to the sailors.'

" 'Yes,' I answered, 'such a discussion is now going on. There appears to be little sympathy for you.'

" 'Do the officers feel the same way?' he asked.

" 'Yes.'

" 'What shall I do? Will I have to commit suicide?'

" 'If you are an honest man you will go to Petrograd under a white flag and appear before the Revolutionary Committee, where you will negotiate as head of the Government.'

"Kerensky agreed to this, and he was promised a guard. He objected to a guard of sailors on the ground that some enemies were among them. He wanted to wait until night, but finally agreed to make the trip by daylight. I went and called Col. Kishkoff of the Don Cossacks and ordered him to appoint a guard of eight men. A half hour later the Cossacks told me that Kerensky could not be found. I raised the alarm, thinking that he could not have left Gatchina."

M. Bibenko, member of the Committee on War and Marine, has reported to the Workmen's and Soldiers' Congress that Kerensky fled garbed as a sailor. Before Kerensky's flight Bibenko said he talked with the Cossacks and found they were willing to come to an agreement with the Maximalists, only the officers being opposed.

Bibenko denied that Michael Romanoff, the former Grand Duke Michael Alexandroitch, was with Kerensky. He denied also that Gen. Korniloff had escaped from prison.

Battle Lasted Two Days.

The battle in which Premier Kerensky was defeated began last Saturday and continued until Monday night, according to the Commander in Chief of the Bolsheviki staff, discussing the situation Wednesday. The Premier had 10,000 Cossacks and several hundred military cadets with considerable artillery. The Maximalist force included four guard regiments, several battalions of sailors and numerous detachments of the Red Guard.

Many of the Bolsheviki soldiers were wounded and a few were killed. The Cossacks in Kerensky's force once attempted to charge near Tsarskoe-Selo, but suffered heavy losses after which they retired into the town. The Maximalists now hold Tsarskoe-Selo.

The correspondent of the Associated Press visited the scene of the fighting today and was surprised to find aristocratic officers commanding the Bolsheviki. One of them who was a Colonel explained they were disappointed with Kerensky, who first destroyed discipline in the army, and were against him above all.

A Colonel of one of the famous Petrograd guard regiments is now commander of the Bolsheviki staff. Describing the attempted Cossack charge near Tsarskoe-Selo, he said.

"They evidently were not familiar with the fact that officers of veteran regiments were with the Maximalist forces, and to their surprise they were met by organized resistance. A heavy volley which toppled many of their horses caused them heavy losses. This was the last active attempt of the Kerensky forces to attack and afterward they retreated."

Cossacks Demanded Reinforcements.

A soldier who was captured by the Cossacks but escaped to his own lines told the correspondent that Kerensky's Cossacks had determined to surrender unless he was able to reinforce them with "60,000 troops."

The Premier, the soldier said, promised to get them.

Gen. Kaledines, upon whose help the Kerensky defenders of the Kremlin in Moscow are counting, was reported to have cut the railway southward to prevent provisions arriving while he was moving towards Moscow.

Some reports indicate a truce has been arranged between the Bolsheviki troops and the Government troops.

A third armed force is said to have developed in Moscow, the identity of which is not known. It is said to be fighting against both the Bolsheviki and the Government troops and is supposed to be composed of the criminal elements released from jail.

A telegram to the Railway Men's Union reports that Moscow is the scene of great disorder and that hunger riots have occurred there. From other sources it is reported that there has been much looting and that several buildings have burned.

Maximalist headquarters has received from Col. Muravieff, the commander of the Bolsheviki troops, the following telegram, dated at Gatchina:

"Gatchina has been occupied by a Finnish regiment. The Cossacks are retiring."

U. S. Embassy in Petrograd Has Got No Message Since Nov. 3.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Belated dispatches from Ambassador Francis, reaching the State Department today, told of the fighting in the streets of Petrograd in which students of the military academy and battalions of women participated. The Ambassador said cadets and women were slaughtered by the Bolsheviki troops.

The latest dispatch was dated Nov. 13 (last Tuesday) and told how the Socialist factions had formed a Government of a coalition nature, with only Socialists allowed to participate.

Messages from the department to Ambassador Francis have been held up, evidently in Petrograd, for the embassy reported that it had received no message since Nov. 3. No Americans had been injured in the fighting.

All Finland Reported in Control of Socialists.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 17.—Advices received here from Finland say that the entire country is in the complete control of the Socialists, who are supported by armed workers and Russian Bolsheviki soldiers. Only the trains that carry provisions are permitted to operate. The revolutionists have instituted a strict censorship over the telegraph lines and usurped control of the border stations, recognizing no passports not stamped by Socialist "authorities." Even official couriers are not permitted to enter or leave the country.

Bloody conflicts are reported from Abo between rebels and the law-abiding populace.

hundred Italians were taken prisoners.

The announcement follows:

"In spite of the cold and snow, Austro-Hungarian troops, indefatigable in attack, climbed the steep summit of Monte Prassolan, between the Brenta and the Piave rivers, which was defended stubbornly by the Italians. A regimental commander, 50 other officers and 750 men were captured.

"There have been reconnoitering engagements along the western bank of the lower Piave."

The announcement regarding the western front says:

"In Flanders near Dixmude and between the railways leading from Ypres, Staden and Roulers the fighting activity revived during the afternoon. By a vigorous thrust our storming troops brought back one officer and 63 men from the Belgian crater lines, south of Blankaert Lake."

Turks in Palestine Apparently Planning to Stand North of Jaffa.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Turkish forces which have been falling back before the British advance in Palestine apparently are preparing to make a stand north of Jaffa, according to today's official statement.

The Turks were said to be attempting to prepare a position paralleling the River Nahr Aujer, which empties into the Mediterranean about four miles north of Jaffa. The statement reads:

"Gen. Allenby reports that yesterday there were minor advances in certain sectors, of our front. Our yeomanry, who on Thursday took Abu Schusche Ridge, five miles southeast of Er Ramle, captured 360 prisoners and one gun. They carried the Turkish position at a gallop and 431 Turks were counted on the ground. The Australians, in taking El Time, captured large numbers of prisoners, one gun, three airplanes and considerable ammunition and stores. On Thursday one hostile airplane was brought down.

GIRL'S DESCRIPTION OF FIGHT FOR PETROGRAD TELEPHONE BUILDING

publicly command a squad of 10 at the winter palace and guard the doors of the provisional Government, was talking now to a pretty Polish girl operator. A janitor in civilian clothes passed and she implored him to give his clothes to the cadet, so that he might escape.

"If you ahe a man you will give him your coat," she pleaded. But the janitor refused. He was a workman and was not helping the cadets. The next day I met the boy in the street still pale and frightened. At the last moment, when the sailors were mounting the stairs, he had gone to the kitchen, slipped into a white cap and coat of a cook, poured himself a cup of tea and sat drinking when the sailors came through. In the pantry I found another boy officer with a bread knife trying to saw the buttons from his coat and another tearing frantically at his epaulets.

"Tell him I can help another way," Williams told the interpreter. The boy hurried away, his face white with terror, and with burning eyes. It was the tensest moment I ever felt.

"If I could only speak Russian," I cried. I walked away and Williams followed. "Find him," he called. "I cannot give him my coat, but I can leave it and he can come and take it."

I ran downstairs jostling groups of frightened men and women and stumbled into a room where most of the cadets had gathered to await the end. But the young officer was nowhere to be found. I returned to Williams who was now in a passion.

"Perhaps I can do something with Antonoff," he said. "Where are the boys?"

I led him and he offered to make terms of surrender for them and guarantee their safety.

"Please help us; save us," the boys cried. Now the red guard and the sailors were crowding the courtyard, firing. Everybody was paralyzed into inaction. In two minutes Williams returned, Antonoff with him.

"Taverish (comrade) Antonoff, save our lives," cried the cadets.

"Where are your officers?" asked Antonoff. "They all left us," they answered.

The terms of surrender were quickly arranged and Antonoff and Williams started downstairs to face the crowd. The men of the red guard recognized their leader.

"Antonoff," they shouted. "Where are the Junkers (cadets)?"

Maddened by the loss of their own men who fell dead in the street, and by the broken parole of the cadets, they were eager to be upstairs.

"I have given my word of honor as a revolutionist," said Antonoff, "that the boys shall not be killed, and as revolutionists you must keep that word!"

Williams recognized in the crowd some sailors, Republicans of the Baltic fleet.

"If you kill the Junkers it will be useless massacre," he said. "I know the temptation, but the ideals of your revolution will be sullied if you yield to it."

A vote was taken and the sailors lifted their hands in assent to the terms of surrender. A few of the Red Guard dissented. Antonoff turned to them.

"I have made the terms of surrender," he said, "and I will myself shoot the first man who harms one of the Junkers."

"Shoot us?" they queried. "Yes," he answered; "I would rather we all die than this American should say the revolutionists of Russia are base and revengeful."

All hands went up.

A committee from the city Duma arrived and when the cadets filed downstairs Antonoff took the hand of the first and turned him over to the soldiers.

"It is number one," he said, "and I trust his life in your hands. Guard it for the honor of the revolution."

When the last cadet was passing, a sailor said, "The last of the trash;" but he was quickly hurried away by his comrades. Then the girls in the telephone exchange slipped out.

NEW DRAFT RULES MAKE POSITION OF DEPENDENTS SAFER

Men Who Have to Support Relatives Cannot Be Called Out of Turn.

REGULATIONS GIVEN OUT

Those With Slight Physical Defects to Be Used in "Special Service."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Men of draft age with dependent relatives are placed in a more secure position under the new regulations to govern future operations of the selective draft service law made public today by Provost Marshal-General Crowder. While deferred classification under the new plan which replaces all discharge or exemption certificates, may be revoked when granted for any other cause, there is no way in which men with dependents can be called up for service out of their turn.

Added protection for dependents is secured by the requirement in cases where the registrant seeks to waive his deferred classification status that waivers also must be obtained from those dependent upon him before he can be taken into the military service. The effect of the regulations is to close the ranks of the army and navy or marine corps absolutely to men between 21 and 31 years old where they have deepndents upon them who would suffer if they went to the front. Local boards are constituted judges of all such cases.

Local Boards May Call Witnesses.

For the first time also a way is provided in which men physically unfitted for front line duty in the army and yet able to do some part of the work of a soldier may be called for limited military service behind the lines. Partial physical exemptions may be granted by local boards to create this new classification.

Where registrants are away from home districts or in other circumstances, application to the local board for a questionaire is all that is required.

The most noteworthy changes in the regulations, outside of the creation of an emergency clause to permit ship workers to remain at their jobs, are as follows:

Local boards are granted virtually judiciary powers to summon witnesses and obtain information. Local police will see that witnesses respond.

A definite program of correspondence between the boards, state officials and the Provost Marshal-General's office is provided to keep this aspect of the business decentralized and moving smoothly.

The entire postoffice machinery is drafted to aid local boards in tracing registrants and right of way for mail connected with draft proceedings is required.

Physically Utfit May Serve.

Local boards are authorized to grant partial exemption for partial physical disability, reserving the men in this status "for special and limited military service."

Authority is granted to form special classes of men highly skilled in particular trades or professions and summon them under this special heading, regardless of their grouping in the general classification plan. The Secretary of War may revoke original classification, except that no man granted deferred classification because of dependents may be advanced in any way or called for service out of his regular order. When deferred classification has been granted for industrial or agricultural reasons, and where there are not dependents, a specially qualified registrant may be summoned out of his turn.

Under the new regulations, district boards become purely appellate bodies before which can be heard only evidence originating before the local board. For additional facts, the case must be returned to the local board.

Enlistment in Navy to Be Permitted.

It is made plain that men already held by local boards for service will continue to be sent forward as needed until such time as the new class in each district is sufficiently organized to care for drafts from the district. All pending appeals will then be wiped off the slate and the new system will apply in full.

Another change permits enlistment of registered men in the navy and marine corps where they are so far down on the call list as to make certain that their action will not delay the task of army building. No credit is given for such enlistment on army quotas, however, and local boards are judges of each case.

Provision for voluntary enlistment is made by means of a voluntary waiver classification and the automatic advancement of the registrant to Class 1 and his induction at once into the military service. Where the registrant has dependents, his waiver must be accompanied, however, by waivers from those dependent on him, if not minors, or by afidavits showing that minor dependents will be adequately provided for, if there are minor dependents. A waiver by a minor cannot be accepted.

Records Partly Private.

A feature of the regulations is the policy established with respect to the privacy of certain records, generally speaking all records will be open to the public, but any person wishing to refer to the record of any registrant must consult a member of the local board, stating what he wishes to find out and the board member will hunt out the desired information and if permissable place it before the inquirer, taking care to see that forbidden information is not made available. Information not to be divulged will include information regarding the mental and physical health of registrants and information concerning their dependents, except the names and addresses of the dependents claimed, which will be public.

These records cannot even be produced in answer to a subpena or court summons without the registrant's permission, except in cases of prosecuting the registrant for violation of the selective service law.

Appeals from classifications by local boards may be made on notice to district boards and if denied by this body can be again appealed to the President only in cases where there has been at least one dissenting vote in the district board. Such appeals must be made within five days for all persons in Class One. For persons in later classes, they can be made only within 10 days after the class immediately preceding the one in which the appellant has been placed has been exhausted by the call to service.

U. S. BRITISH CONFERENCE IN HISTORIC ROOM THIS WEEK

Meeting to Be Around Same Table Where a Premier Once Defied the American Colonies.

LONDON, July 17.—The Times says: "There is good reason for confidence that the visit of the American mission will inaugurate a new and most hopeful chapter in the history of the war. At least there will be one incident that can hardly fail to stir imagination on both sides of the Atlantic. In the course of next week it is intended that the threads of various departmental discussions shall be gathered up in a joint conference at 10 Downing street (the Premier's official residence).

"That means, presumably, that chosen representatives of Great Britain and America will get together at last for a common purpose in the very room and around the very table where one British Prime Minister decided to defy the American colonies and another consented to recognize their independence.

"No circumstances," adds the Times, "could so completely atone for the misunderstandings of a century and a half."

MORE CASUALTIES IN AMERICAN TRENCHES; PATROLS ARE ACTIVE

had been a lull during the night, but signs of activity of the enemy during the early hours of the morning had been followed by this stationing of our men in advantageous positions for observation.

"The German attack followed the enemy's sweeping of the position as usual with illuminating rockets, by means of which it is presumed the Germans located the American force. Their artillery fire appeared to be concentrated on that point and they accomplished their hurriedly conceived object in smashing our little squad of observers who were out there to gain experience.

"The attack seems to confirm reports that the German commanders have inculcated a spirit of rivalry among their troops for the taking of first American prisoners and to make a showing in American casualties. It is commonly reported on all the fronts that the Germans have transferred their vindictiveness and hatred of the English to our men."

Transport Service Reorganized.

All volunteers in the camion sections of the American field service who have not enlisted in the transport service of the American army are returning to Paris preparatory to sailing for America or to join other branches of the army and the navy service here. The majority of the camion personnel enlisted in the army, and the return of the volunteers, many of whom are not eligible for the American army for various reasons, marks the complete militarization of all the ambulance transport section in field service which has been connected with the French army since soon after the outbreak of the war.

Ambulance sections three and ten, which for the last year had served in the Balkans and since been recalled to France, were cited on their departure by Gen. Regnault, commanding the French army of the Orient. Each citation says in part:

"Thanks to the qualities of endurance, bravery and coolness displayed by the personnel of this section in the most perilous circumstances, numerous French soldiers, often grievously wounded, have been able to receive expeditiously the necessary care which has saved their lives."

AMERICAN SOLDIER IS EXECUTED FOR MURDER IN FRANCE

Firing Squad Carries Out First Death Penalty Overseas for Killing of Woman.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—An American soldier of Gen. Pershing's forces, found guilty by courtmartial of attacking and murdering a French woman, has been executed by a firing squad.

All details of this, the first death penalty imposed since the troops landed in Europe, are being withheld by the War Department.

Another American soldier who was convicted several weeks ago of an attack on a woman in France was sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment and was ordered brought back to Fort Leavenworth to serve his term.

When a full report has been received from General Pershing it probably will be published, as officials of the department want the world to know how the American army deals with men who commit such crimes.

Secretary Baker said today that General Pershing had full power to carry out the sentence of the courtmartial without referring the case to the President.

LENINE TRIES TO CASH CHECK OF HIS OWN FOR $50,000,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—An interesting sidelight today in the news which came in a roundabout way from Petrograd, was the statement that when Lenine, Premier of the Bolsheviki Government, presented his personal check for 100,000,000 rubles ($50,000,000) and demanded payment, all the banks in Petrograd promptly closed.

In Finland, the dispatches said, the banks were still open.

U. S. CORPORAL FIGHTS ALONE IN NO MAN'S LAND

Sends Four Privates Back to Safety in Dugouts When Bombardment Starts.

EXPECTED TO BE SCARED

Youthful Soldier Was Only Surprised When He Had to Battle Germans.

By THOMAS MARVIN JOHNSON,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyrighted, 1917.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Nov. 17.—If there were an American croix de guerre, there is a 19-year-old Corporal propped in bed in the Johns Hopkins base hospital, his whole back swathed in bandages, who would have it now. The story of what he did in the German raid has already been incorporated in official reports, but here is his own story as told today soon after his arrival at the base hospital from the field hospital, where he had been fighting for life 10 days.

"I was out at a listening post a hundred yards ahead of the front line with four men when the bombardment started. We had just got in a couple of hours before. We were unsettled and had not got our bearings. All of a sudden it seemed like all hell burst loose, shells bursting all around and rocks falling on our heads and knocking our helmets sidewise.

He Was Not Scared.

"The listening post, just a hole in the ground, was filled with smoke. The funny thing was that I was not scared, although I had always expected to be. I have been in better places than that listening post, but it seemed somehow that I just couldn't get scared. I sent the men back into the dugout, but I knew that I ought to stay at the listening post myself. The bombardment didn't really last two hours, but it seemed like it.

"Then all of a sudden it stopped and right away I heard Germans coming talking to each other. Never had I wished before that I could understand German. I crawled to the edge of what had been left of the parapet and saw three Germans. They were coming right for me, so I let them have all I had—the whole clip. I was starting to reload when boom, something hit me between the shoulders and threw me down. It felt like a sledge-hammer. Then came a burning feeling in my back. It seemed that another German had thrown a bomb from behind.

Wanted to Yell Murder.

"Well, somehow, I kept my head enough to think I mustn't make a sound. I lay still, though it hurt so I wanted to yell bloody murder. A big German, the biggest fellow I ever saw, came walking down the communication trench and stepped right on me. Luckily, it was my leg and not my back. He picked up my blanket roll and walked away. I could hear yelling all around.

"The whole place was bloody and I felt as if I had lost 50 pounds. It seemed that I had waited for hours when the stretcher bearers came up. They took me to the field hospital, where I was powerful sick but finally able to come here."

There is the boy's own story of how he stayed absolutely alone in No Man's Land, after sending his men back to comparative safety, under a fierce bombardment. When he knew that he was entirely surrounded by Germans he fired every shot, though he knew that it was bound to draw their fire on him. It is only a miracle that he is alive to tell it. He has been in the army only 11 months.

CONGRESSMEN TO ASK FOR PROSECUTION OF EAST SIDE OFFICIALS

East St. Louis, but they have been robbed and browbeaten and bullyragged until they submitted to all the indignities in the catalogue.

"There has been no provision for the workingmen, who have been turned out like cattle, after the employer got all he could out of them. Ground between the corporations on one side, and misgoverning officials on the other, he has been robbed of virtually all he had.

"The white light of publicity will, if continued, do as much to bring about better conditions as anything else. I am able to see a different appearance generally since the committee opened the hearing. I believe that the vigorous work of attorney-general Brundage, the Federal Court and this committee will bring about a wonderful change in East St. Louis."

Witnesses Made House Deputies.

Chairman Johnson yesterday appointed as Deputy Clerks of the House of Representatives, atached to the committee, the Rev. George W. Allison, pastor of the First Baptist Church; Paul Y. Anderson, a Post-Dispatch reporter, and Myrtle Gardner, all of whom gave testimony against city and county officials. He explained that this action was merely a protective measure, as threats had been made against these witnesses.

Johnson pointed out that any act against them would constitute a Federal offense, and also would make the offenders guilty of contempt of Congress.

The trial yesterday of Mrs. Yent and Ruby Nelson was attended by Congressman Johnson, the committee's official stenographer, United States District Attorney Karch and Edward J. Brennan, chief operative in St. Louis of the Department of Justice. A record of all evidence and of the lawyers' speeches was made.

Myrtle Gardner, Mrs. Yent and Dorbal Crook, a boarder at Mrs. Yent's, are witnesses against Steve Unk, proprietor of the Star Hotel, where Myrtle Gardner testified she was held prisoner, in cases where Unk is charged with perjury and violating the Mann act. They contended that the charge against them was a result of a "frame up" by Unk's friends. Myrtle Gardner was removed to the Deaconess Hospital by order of Congressman Johnson, who said he feared attempts would be made against her safety.

Wolcott Prosecutes Case.

Assistant State's Attorney Lloyd V. Wolcott, who was charged by Myrtle Gardner, in her sworn statement before the Congressional Committee Friday, with having a guilty knowledge of her restraint, prosecuted Mrs. Yent and Ruby Nelson. Crook's case was continued.

At the close of the trial, Eli Chrisan, 34 years old, of 1709 South Broadway, St. Louis, the prosecuting witness, was arrested as he left the courtroom, on order of District Attorney Karch, on a charge of intimidating a Government witness. He was locked up.

Chrisan testified that he visited Ruby Nelson at the home of Mrs. Yent Nov. 7 and Nov. 10, and that, during the last visit, he gave her a marked dollar bill and left a slip of paper, with his name on it, in a dresser drawer. The bill and the paper were given to him at the Sheriff's office in the City Hall, he said.

Ruby Nelson testified that he gave her the bill, and told her to give it to Myrtle Gardner, who was ill in another room. Immediately afterward, she said, the house was raided by Deputy Sheriffs.

Deputy Sheriff Michael O'Brien testified that Chrisan asked to have a bill marked, saying "he had spent the other one." No explanation was given of where the "other one" came from.

Testimony Conflicts.

Chrisan's testimony conflicted with O'Brien's. Chrisan said Deputy Sheriffs O'Brien, Stocker and Ames met him at the door of Mrs. Yent's home, took him to the Sheriff's office, gave him the bill and paper, and sent him back. He admitted, on cross-examination, that he was a friend of Steve Unk, having formerly worked for him.

Assistant State's Attorney Wolcott, in his speech to the Court, defended himself against the charges made by Myrtle Gardner before the Congressional Committee. He characterized her sworn statement as "the most damnable lie ever perpetrated against a white man." He denounced Dorbal Crook, whom he charged with having "framed" the charge against him.

"My record is clean, from the day I was born," Wolcott asserted, "and I can prove it. I do not wish to intimidate a witness of the Congressional Committee or of the Federal Court, but when they are through with Dorbal Crook, his troubles will begin.

"I can stand to suffer myself, but when it comes to almost killing my wife, it is time to call a stop, and I am going to stop him dead in his tracks. I am Assistant State's Attorney of this county, and will be for three years, and I serve notice on Dorbal Crook not to cross my path during those three years.

"I am sorry for Myrtle Gardner, despite the abominable lie she perpetrated against me, and I hope she gets well to answer to a charge of perjury in the Circuit Court. I came in here to try this case without venom, but who could be without venom after reading the unspeakable charge that was printed in last night's Post-Dispatch."

Lawyer Charges Conspiracy.

W. L. Coley, who defended the two women, declared that somebody had conspired against Myrtle Gardner and against the defendant, in order to save Unk from prosecution. Turning to Chrisan, and shaking his fist, Coley shouted:

"You are not even an American. You ought to be arrested before you leave this room." Chrisan had admitter, on the stand, that he was an unnaturalized Austrian.

Coley dwelt at length upon the testimony of the Deputy Sheriffs that Walcott had sworn out the complaints and taken them to the officers to be served, before Chrisan was sent to the Yent home with the market money. He said that was evidence of a "frame up."

District Attorney Karch was called and testified that Myrtle Gardner, Dorbal Crook and Mrs. Yent were Government witnesses against Steve Unk, and that he had instructed Mrs. Yent to care for Myrtle Gardner.

Chief operative Brennan said, after the trial that District Attorney Karch must determine what additional arrests shall be made, until further instructions are received from the Department of Justice. Karch said that evidence was being gathered against Mrs. Lillie Unk, wife of Steve Unk. Myrtle Gardner testified that Mrs. Unk took her to St. Louis a year ago for an operation, from the effects of which she still suffered. Such an action would constitute a violation of the Mann act, Karch said.

Martin Weiss, a St. Louis lawyer, who was mentioned during the testimony of Naturalization Commissioner Bevington before the comittee last week, appeared to make a statement in his own behalf Friday. He was the last witness.

Bevington had testified that Weiss offered to supply Bevington with evidence against Alexander Flannigan, an East St. Louis lawyer, if Bevington would consent to the naturalization of Weiss' client, John Fizel. Weiss denied that he had made such a proposal.

FIRST STATE COAL SCANDAL TRIAL SET FOR TOMORROW

John W. Riner Will Be Prosecuted Under Indictment for Stealing.

IMPORTANT CASES LAST

McAllister Angry on Finding Those in Which He Expects Convictions Are Docketed Late.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 17.—The trial of the first defendant in the State coal scandal, which was discovered and exposed by the Post-Dispatch last September, has been set for Monday and both the State and the defendant are expected to announce ready for trial.

John W. Riner, a local coal dealer, who was indicted by the special grand jury on a charge of stealing coal from the State, is the first man to face prosecution.

Former Assistan Attorney-General Lee B. Ewing has been retained by Atorney-General McAllister to assist in the prosecution. McAllister expressed chagrin today when he learned that in some mysterious way, the weakest cases have been docketed and must be tried ahead of the cases on which he was sure of getting convictions.

Scott to Be Tried Next.

He has not learned which county officer was responsible for fixing the dates, but there is every prospect that friction may develop between McAllister who is determined to make an example of the indicted men, and certain county officers who have been closely affiliated in politics with the men to be tried. Riner has been indicted on four counts.

John W. Scott, former commissioner of the Permanent Seat of Government, who was ousted from office and indicted nine times as a result of the exposures published in the Post-Dispatch, will be tried at the conclusion of the Riner trial.

Dr. J. C. Welch, former prison physician, who was also ousted and indicted for accepting a bribe to sign a sick jarole for a convict will be tried at this term.

Korns' Trial Will Be Last.

Following the trial of Dr. Welch on two charges, former Warden D. C. McClung and Lee Jordan, a local lumber dealer, will be tried on a charge of defrauding the State in a cement deal.

Jordan has confessed that he charged the State for several thousand dollars' worth of cement which he never delivered, and he told the prison board that McClung agreed that he should do so, and approved the bills on which he received payment for the cement.

E. D. Richardson and G. W. Korns, who sold the State a kerosene and gasoline mixture, will be the last of those indicted to be tried.

Piersol's Bond Raised to $20,000.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 17.—After increasing the bond of Claude Piersol, under a 35-year sentence for kidnaping baby Lloyd Keet, to $20,000, Judge C. H. Skinker this afternoon announced he would recommend to the Supreme Court an approval of the bond offered today. Signers of the bond qualified for $40,000 to obtain his liberty. Piersol will have to furnish an additional bond of $10,000 on a second charge.

STONE IN SENATE RACE "TO PLEASE ST. LOUIS FRIENDS"

"Many 'Nice' Things Said About Me," Impells Senator to Announce Candidacy.

United States Senator William J. Stone, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, whose acts and utterances have been widely criticised in this State and throughout the country, said at the Planters Hotel yesterday that he would run for re election to the Senate in 1920, and expected to get the largest majority he has ever had. He further expressed the view that he would get just as large a vote if the election were to be held at this time.

"I cross my bridges when I come to them," was the time-honored phrase with which the Senator replied to reporters' questions about his campaign plans. He said his conference with George Moore, Collector of Internal Revenue, and with a few other Government officials here, had no immediate bearing on his political fortunes.

Crossed Bridge At a Canter.

But in forecasting his own excessive popularity with the voters three years hence, the Senator "crossed the bridge" at a canter. "Even if I hadn't intended to run," he remarked ironically, "I would make the race now just to please my many friends in St. Louis and other places who have said so many NICE things about me.

"Just what the coming few months will reveal, we cannot tell, but I am sure if the election was held today Missouri would give me the biggest vote I ever got. Things may happen that may put a different phase on the situation, but I do not anticipate any such a thing.

"My dear friends in St. Louis have said so many complimentary things about me, in justice to them and their consideration for my welfare I am bound to declare myself a candidate."

Senator Stone said he believed neither side in the war would get any great help from Russia, and that he did not think Kerensky's apparent downfall would change the general war situation greatly. He did not have much to say on war topics, but spoke of his desire to see steel ships built in large numbers.

Hoped for Merchant Marine.

"There is one thing I hoped the United States would get out of this war, if nothing else," he said, "and that is a merchant marine. By the construction of a number of steel vessels we could take care of the necessary trans-Atlantic shipment of men, munitions and supplies during the war, and when the war ends, we would have ships with which to carry on our commerce with other nations.

"We should look beyond our noses and it seems to me that, while a few of the wooden ships are necessary to supply immediate needs, something should be done by way of preparations in anticipation of what is to come."

He said he intended to vote for the equal suffrage amendment to the Federal Constitution. He told how he had been won over from opposition to votes for women.

Won to Equal Suffrage by Wife.

"It was Mrs. Stone who convinced me that women should vote," he explained. "We were sitting in the dining room in our home in Washington and were reading about a number of suffragists hiking from New York to Washington in the snow and cold. I remarked to Mrs. Stone that it seemed pretty foolish to me and that, in fact, the whole movement struck me as being rather foolish. To my surprise, she emphatically declared she thought no such thing and that she is a suffragist, that our two daughters are suffragists and that our daughter-in-law wants votes for women.

"Do you think I would keep the four women of my family from voting when an affirmative vote by me may give them the privilege?"

The Senator was on his way to his home in Jefferson City. He will be 70 years old next May, and 72 before the next senatorial election.

$29,151,649 OF Y. M. C. A. FUND RAISED; $50,000,000 WANTED

Drive to Be Made in Many Churches Today and Campaign Closes Tomorrow.

NEW YORK, May 17.—A grand total for the United States of $29,151,649 in the drive for the $35,000,000 Y. M. C. A. war fund was announced tonight by William Sloane, chairman of the National War Work Council. In many churches throughout the country tomorrow special attention will be given to the advancement of the big war fund and the drive will continue with vigor on Monday, the concluding day of the campaign.

Dr. John R. Mott, general secretary of the Council, asked for the announcement that all who may not have been approached personally by canvassing teams to send money or pledge to Cleveland H. Dodge, national treasurer, 124 East Twenty-Eighth street, New York City, or to the treasurer of the local or State Campaign Committee.

"It would be nothing short of a national and international calamity for this fund to fail," he said. "There are reasons why it is of supreme importance to our own country and to the lands which have made common cause with us that a sum more nearly $50,000,000, than $35,000,000, should be provided.

"The recent request of the Premier of France that the Y. M. C. A. establish and operate 1300 soldiers' homes, covering the entire French army of 4,000,000 men, is a request that can not be denied."

ITALIAN EMBASSY DISAPPROVES WOMAN'S FUND-RAISING EFFORT

Mme. "Chick" Mazzuchi Was in St. Louis Recently Soliciting Aid for Hospitals.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—At the Italian embassy today it was said the embassy did not approve of Mme. "Chick" Mazzuchi soliciting funds in this country.

Mme. Mazzuchi was in St. Louis last Thursday and Friday soliciting funds. She admitted she was without credentials from the Italian Government, but exhibited letters which she said had been given her by three Italian Generals. She asserted that the funds she received were used to help maintain 27 hospitals near the Italian front.

While here she spoke at four performances at the Orpheum Theater, and addressed the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon at the Missouri Athletic Association. She was in Chicago yesterday.

$186,317 RAISED FOR Y. M. C. A. BY WOMEN WORKERS

Men's Teams Will Report at Luncheon Tomorrow on $1,000,000 Fund Drive.

No general report was made yesterday of new subscriptions to the $1,000,000 Y. M. C. A. War Fund being raised in St. Louis. The women's teams, however, reported their total had reached $186,317.33. The grand total of both men's and women's teams reported Friday was slightly more than $923,000. The campaign opened last Monday and was to continue a week. The effort here is part of a nation-wide campaign for $35,000,000.

The men's team will make final reports at a luncheon at the Statler Hotel, but they will not make their final reports until Wednesday. The women are working hard to double their original quota of $100,000.

The melting pot established at campaign headquarters, 701 Locust stree, has received many articles of gold and silver and other metal, the sale of which is expected to return several thousand dollars. One Woman contributed a collection of gold and silver articles gathered from all parts of the world.

A chain made of gold and platinum has been contributed. Two women gave their wedding rings, which they said was all they had to give. The gold and silver will be melted down separately and sent to the United States mint.

The boys' division yesterday reported a total of $18,890 subscribed toward the "Million Packet" part of the campaign. Their goal is $25,000. They are working under the direction of Branch Rickey.

William H. Danforth, chairman for the State, announced yesterday that encouraging reports have come from all the 114 counties. In some counties they are raising their quotas by holding community auction sales for which the farmers donate livestock and wagon loads of corn and wheat.

GOVERNMENT IS IN NEED OF HIGH GRADE CAMERA LENSES

Owners Are Asked to Sell Apparatus Wanted for Use on Observation Airplanes.

St. Louisans who have high grade camera lenses are asked to sell them to the United States Government for use in cameras to be carried in observation airplanes. These lenses were formerly imported from Germany, and a substitute for the German supply is now in preparation, but the Government, to avoid delay, is asking that private owners provide the lenses. This was done in England soon after the opening of the war.

Owners of lenses of certain types are asked to notify the photographic division, Signal Corps, United States Army, Mills Building annex, Washington, and to state the price desired. The lenses needed are of the following descriptions:

Tessar Anastigmat lenses made by Carl Zeiss, Jena, of a working aperture of F. 3.5, or F. 4.5, from 8¼ to 20-inch focal length; Bausch & Lomb Zeiss Tessars, F. 4.5, from 8¼ to 20-inch focal length; Voigtlander Hellar Anastigmat leases of above requirements. Besides these, 8, 9, 12 and 14-inch condensers are wanted; also a number of Bausch & Lomb Zeiss Protars VII A, Number 13, preferably set in Volute shutters.

St. Louis Roll of Honor

No person in St. Louis should lack for an opportunity to subscribe to the Red Triangle (Y. M. C. A.) War Work Fund for our boys.

The soliciting teams can not call on every one—the time is too short.

Some give thousands—thousands give something.

If you want to do your part in backing up the boys who are fighting for us, fill out this blank and send it, with your subscription, to the Red Triangle Headquarters, 701 Locust Street, and your name will go on the St. Louis Roll of Honor.

Send in your subscription, no matter how small—"our boys" will appreciate it.

FOUR ST. LOUISANS HELPED MOVE 6500 WOUNDED MEN

H. A. Blackwell Describes Work of Marion Lambert, S. T. Bixby and W. C. Stribling.

FIRST TO RETURN HOME

Relief Crew and Ambulance Hit by Shell Few Minutes After Local Men Left Off Duty.

The work of four St. Louisans in the French ambulance service behind Verdun last summer, was described yesterday to a Post-Dispatch reporter by Harry A. Blackwell of 30 Kingsbury place, first of the four to return to St. Louis. They went to France last May.

The others are Marion L. J. Lambert of 5391 Waterman avenue, vice-president of the Lambert Pharmacal Co.; Sidney T. Bixby, Lindell boulevard and King's highway, son of W. K. Bixby, capitalist; and William C. Stribling Jr. of 4961 Berlin avenue, stepbrother of Lady Wilfrid Peek.

Lambert who returned to the United States with Blackwell, is now visiting relatives in the East, Bixby is in the transportation department of the American Red Cross in Paris, and Stribling is in training in England with the Royal Flying Corps, in which he has been commissioned a Lieutenant. The ambulance unit of which the four were originally members disbanded when the American Red Cross took over the hospital units to which Americans were attached.

6500 Wounded Men Moved.

Blackwell related that the ambulance unit, of 20 cars and 45 men, transported 6500 wounded men from the front to dressing stations and base hospitals in the Verdun sector, in five and one-half weeks in July and August last. Blackwell and Lambert were ambulance partners, as were Bixby and Stribling.

The place for receiving "blesses," or wounded men, was at Leclair post de secours, a half-mile back of Verdun. The members of the unit lived at Biercourt, southeast of Verdun, and the hospitals to which they took the wounded were at Dromerville, Souilly, Vadilaincourt, Ippecourt and other bases. The roads over which they operated were under continuous shell fire, he declared.

"It was just hard work, that's all," said Blackwell. "We worked 24 and 48 hour shifts, snatching repose whenever we could get it between trips; seldom removing our clothing except to bathe, and often sleeping in the cars to be in readiness for calls. All our operations were carried out under the trajectory of shells, and the roads we traveled were often the objects of violent shelling.

Relief Crew Wounded.

"The nearest our St. Louis men came to being strafed was when an ambulance that relieved ours was struck by a shell and the two Philadelphians in charge wounded. This occurred near the front line receiving post for wounded from Dead Man's Hill. We had been away from the post less than a half-hour when the shell struck.

"We had gas masks, of course, and wore them, as 60 per cent of our wounded were victims of this mode of warfare, but we ambulance men never were in danger from this source.

"Our life was pretty much the same from day to day, a routine over the roads to and from the advanced dressing stations. Upon our arrival in that sector, 15 of our number fell ill with a skin rash common to men in the trenches. It causes an irritation and eruption of the skin, and Lambert, particularly, was severely afflicted. After this we got along quite well."

Blackwell said the French Army was becoming depleted, that old men and boys are now in the ranks, and that the need of American troops to take the place of the French was urgent. Every available able-bodied man is at the front. He declares that the French are the most courageous as soldiers and the most patient when wounded.

Prisoners Show Surprise.

He said the French were delighted to see American soldiers on the ground and were teaching them grenade throwing, at which the Americans have proven very apt. He said the Americans whom he had seen were eager to get to actual fighting.

"The first question put to an American," he said, "is, 'Can you play baseball?' The French believe that baseball has taught the Americans long-distance throwing. One American soldier with a very good 'wing' has beaten the world on that battle front. He is said to be throwing 40 to 50 grenades a minute with unerring aim. The whole American Army warms up every day for this work.

"The grenade pitchers do not perform any of the fancy wind-up stunts common to some of the noted flingers in our big leagues, as the fuse is too short and the thing must be heaved quickly. The boys are fond of this work, however, as they excel at it."

Blackwell told of a German boy prisoner who, though seriously wounded, cursed him and his companion all the way to the base hospital, after he had learned that they were Americans. At first he thought them Englishmen or Australians, and was indifferent toward them. Blackwell confirmed the story, told by others who have returned from France, that German prisoners showed surprise on learning that American troops are in the war zone. This was true, he said, as late as the latter part of August.

LACKING OF MACHINES DELAYS MAKING OF ARTILLERY PIECES

Manufacturers May Have to Cancel Government Orders Due to Inability to Get Plant Equipment.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Prospective deliveries of ordnance, both of the heavier cannon and the caissons and supplies for these pieces, continue to cause embarrassment to the officials of the War Department under whose charge has been put the arming of the new forces. From official sources the information is received that it has not been the supply of rifles but of field pieces that has been causing most anxiety.

England and France have swept the rest of the world for heavy duty machines used in making large guns and armor plate. Private manufacturers, who have contracts with the Government, are faced by the necessity of revoking such orders because of their inability to equip their plants. Recently an American firm sought from the war trade board permission to export a "heavy duty lathe." The applicant was told that no such permit could be granted for the remainder of this year. The lathe was then offered to the Government.

"The output of the Government arsenals at Watervliet and Watertown is being seriously curtailed because of our failure to secure lathes, slotters and large drill presses," said a high official. "If the equipment were in sight we would proceed immediately to triple the size of certain departments at these arsenals."

SMASHES WINDOW WITH HER FIST

Mrs. Myrtle Hohlfield, 27 years old, of 1621 South Third street, was taken to the city hospital last night after she had fainted from loss of blood from wounds on her wrists, suffered when she smashed the windows of her home with her fists.

She said her husband, Theodore, a laborer, had driven her out of the house after a quarrel, and that in her anger she broke the windows barehanded without thought of the consequences.

Auto Hits Woman, Driver Flees.

rs. Anna Sixe of 3117 Washington avenue was struck by an automobile in front of her home last night and seriously injured. The driver did not stop. Mrs. Sixe was taken to the city hospital.

Enemy Alien Passes Revoked.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—United States Marshal Noonan today revoked all passes issued at his direction to enemy aliens to go within the one-mile limit of the Philadelphia Navy Yard. He said he had information of German activities near the yard and was taking steps to prevent a fire similar to the recent blaze in Baltimore in which thousands of dollars' worth of supplies for the United States Army in France were destroyed.

FORD SAYS SUCCESS IS IN STANDARDIZATION

Declares Government Has Planned Different Sizes of Ships Where One Could Be Used.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Henry Ford, who has just become a member of the shipping board and will give attention to the manufacture of ship parts, gave out yesterday his views on some phases of the war. Speaking of his visit to Washington he said: "I was disappointed during this visit to find our Government plannng different sizes and kinds of equipment and machinery where one model could be used. Ships can be built faster, better and cheaper if standardized to a single model. One model makes possible production in enormous quantities, reduced cost and improves quality. In this standardization lies the secret of American industrial power and we need our industrial power in this war.

"From the distance I thought the best work in Washington would be done by civilian aids. I have seen something of the army officers. They have a discipline and training that is needed by the country at large. Their influence should spread.

"We all can cheerfully give President Wilson our full support. It is an act of providence that he is our President today. His will strikes inward for power. He builds on the motives that are rooted in the hearts of the people.

"I will take no profit for anything produced for any government during the war. I despise the profiteer who makes money out of the war. The factories and personal organization of the Ford Motor Co. are at the disposal of the United States Government and its allies. The production of automobiles for pleasure must be reduced. We have offered to follow any request that the Government makes. In the factory a man can build a car in 12 days. Forty-five thousand men can produce in the Ford factory a million cars a year.

"The plant can produce 2000 one-ton trucks daily and its production can be increased in a few weeks to 3000. Each truck can haul eight soldiers with full equipment. During the first month our shop could furnish trucks to haul an army of 480,000 men, thereafter for 720,000 men in each month. Each workman can manufacture a truck in 15 days. We are ready to furnish the Government these trucks at shop cost without profit.

"One mother plant can send the patterns, raw castings and forgings to dozens of branch plants, each employing 2000 or 3000 men. Designing and management will center at the mother plant so that supervision of these branch plants would be very simple. We must think more about machinery. If this war is to be won it will be won by the nation that knows best how to use tools and machinery; that knows the secret of quantity production through standardization on one model."

Some of the country's leading private ship builders are to be called upon by the shipping board to join the new staff it is building up. These men will direct the actual ship building, Chairman Hurley said at Washington, and will work in close co-operation with Henry Ford, who has volunteered to serve as assistant to Vice President Piez, of the emergency fleet corporation, and give particular attention to quantity production of standardized ship parts in manufacturing plants.

WOMAN'S PISTOL ROUTS ROBBERS

Shots Greet Pair at Rear Door of Grocery at 10:30 p. m.

Two men who knocked at the back door of the grocery of Mrs. Fred Kemper at 4106 St. Louis avenue, at 10:30 o'clock last night, and, with drawn revolvers, commanded her to throw up her hands, were surprised by shots from a revolver in her hand.

Mrs. Kemper had suspected trouble and had taken her revolver when she went to open the door. She said the robbers were young men. They fled.

CHILD GIVES PENNIES TO FRANCE

A letter written in a childish scrawl upon a torn piece of paper, with three pennies inclosed, has been received by Mrs. Virgil Rule of 3731 Westminster place, president of the Missouri Relief for the Children of France. The letter, which was unsigned, said:

"It isn't very much but it is all I've got, and it may help to buy some clothes for the children of France." Mrs. Rule said the officers of the organization appreciate the contribution as much as if it were a large amount, because it evidently represented all the money that some child had.

Held on Illegal Liquor Sale Charge.

Calvin Gounis of 4410 South Broadway, and his brother, Peter Gounis of Meramec Highlands, proprietors of Eden Garden at Meramec Highlands, were arrested in St. Louis yesterday on warrants charging them with illegal sales of liquor in St. Louis County.

SIXTIETH DEPOT BRIGADE AT CAMP DONIPHAN ABOLISHED

Many St. Louis Officers, Including Col. Robbins and Lieut.-Col. Lowe, Left Without Commands.

CAMP DONIPHAN, Ok., Nov. 17.—Brigadier-General L. G. Berry, division commander here, today abolished the Sixtieth Depot Brigade which was commanded by Brigadier-General Harvey C. Clark, who led the Missouri National Guard on the Mexican border last year.

Brigadier-General Clark and many other officers, including Col. Robbins, Lieutenant-Colonel Lowe, Maj. Carmack and a dozen St. Louis Captains, are thus left without commands and have been put on the unassigned list. It is understood that they will be kept with the division, retaining their rank, to be used to fill vacancies.

Col. John D. McKneely, commander of the old Fourth Missouri Regiment, was married at noon today at the Midland Hotel to Miss Nelson Green of Hutchinson, Kan.

Woman, 65, Found Dead in Home.

Mrs. Rose Anna Berger, 65 years old, who lived alone in a brick cottage in the rear of 3408 North Ninth street, was found dead in her home yesterday afternoon by a neighbor. Dispensary physicians said death apparently was from natural causes.

SEVEN CHARGES AGAINST TEXAS FORMER GOVERNOR ARE QUASHED

Court Refuses to Dismiss Two Indictments Charging Embezzlement and Diversion of Funds.

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 17.—Indictments in seven cases against former Gov. James E. Ferguson, charging misapplication of public funds, were quashed today by District Judge James R. Hamilton. Dismissal was refused in two other cases against the former Governor, charging embezzlement and diversion of a special fund. Judge Hamilton overruled the defense's contention that the indictments are invalid because returned in vacation.

Salt Lake City Without Coal.

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 17.—Despite the fact that freezing weather prevails, there are 1519 families in Salt Lake City today entirely without coal, according to a report made today by C. B. Castle, chairman of the local fuel board. Families totalling 3152 said they had less than one ton of coal on hand.

CARPENTERS BUILD HORSES AND GUNS AT CAMP FUNSTON

Drill Materials Improvised by Gen. Wood to Offset War Department Slowness.

RED TAPE IS IGNORED

Lack of Army Blankets Met by Purchases of Quilts From Adjacent Towns.

By CLAIR KENAMORE.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAMP FUNSTON, Kan., Nov. 17.—The business of getting 50,000 raw men ready for war is what might be called "some" task, and it has been discovered that there are tricks even in this well-established trade.

When the drafted men began to arrive here it was found that there were not enough regulation army blankets on hand for them. Now, in the obtaining of army supplies there are a large number of formalities to be observed. Requisitions and approvals and O. K.'s without number, usually in triplicate, and final granting of the requistion by some mysterious higher power, this to be followed by asking for bids, opening bids, awarding contracts and, in the fullness of time, getting the goods if the fates are kind.

Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding the Eighty-Ninth Division here, decided it would be a kindly act to relieve many gentlemen of a lot of work, so he simply sent to nearby towns and cities and bought whatever blankets were in stock. They were not the army kind, and there were not enough of any kind, so he filled out with quilts and comforts, the large, thick ones with red and green figures on them. So the men were warm, and the protests of those who love a thing because it has always been done that way, will be heard later.

Next it was observed that there were no uniforms for the men. There were parts of uniforms, but the only thing of which there was a sufficiency was hat cords, which indicate the arm of the service in which a man serves.

Substitutes for Uniforms.

So the General took advice from his experience with bed clothing and bought substitutes for uniforms. These substitutes were overalls, of the dark blue color affected by street laborers. These were found to be not only good before the new uniforms arrived, but serviceable afterward for men doing work calculated to soil the spick and span service clothing.

Then, when it was time to begin drilling the men, it was observed that there were but a handful of rifles, not as much as one rifle to 10 men. But there was any amount of one-inch boards about, and carpenters galore. So patterns were made and wooden rifles sawed out, some with fixed bayonets, some without, but all sufficient to give the man a knowledge of the size and shape of his weapon, and to permit him to learn the manual of arms.

In a way, these are good "pieces" for the men. The men can not be eternally snapping them, and they can not go off accidentally and shoot off the Captain's ear. They do not get rusty and the breach bolt never sticks, and they are much lighter for a soft man to carry on a long hike.

As the new rifles from the armories come in, the wooden guns are replaced and the men find themselves with a knowledge of how to hold it already acquired.

There are three regiments of artillery, but no cannon wherewith to learn the trade of gunners. As the first thing to be acquired is the drill, the oficers bethought themselves of the success of the infantry with wooden rifles, and so wooden cannon were fabricated. Two buggy wheels with a six-by-six trailed over the axle was a gun, and the caisson was imitated in like manner. Gay young Lieutenants called these Crozier 75's, after Gen. Crozier, Chief of Ordnance, who, they thought, should have given them new French 75's at once. The wooden rifles were similarly named Baker 30's, in doubtful compliment to the Secretary of War.

Imitation Horses Rigged Up.

Some of the men from offices and factories had very vague notions of the general construction of a horse, and how one went about harnessing or saddling the animal. So the faithful carpenters were again called into service. Nail kegs with stout timbers run through them became horses' bodies. Legs of two-by-fours were attached to give a proper height and appearance, and heads and tails sawed from boards were attached to indicate the respective ends of the beasts. So the horse, gunners and the other drivers got their drills.

For some reason to the deponent unknown, the War Department elected to erect Camp Funston on Ogden Flats. These flats, according to the oldest inhabitants, sometimes are covered with four feet of water when the Kansas River goes out on a tear. So the engineers took thought of how to remedy this defect of nature and the War Department, and they are putting an eight-foot dyke around the sides of the flats not protected by hills.

So it will appear that these men will be soldiers yet, in spite of all difficulties which loom so large when they first appear. The greater part of the grumbling comes from the failure of men unseen from here to do things which it is felt here should be done at once. But this is the geographical center of the United States, and conditions along the seaboard, which doubtless account for these deficiencies, cannot be seen from here.

RED CROSS MISSION HASTENS EMERGENCY RELIEF IN ITALY

Maj. Murphy Announces Formation of Experienced Body of Men and Women.

ROME, Nov. 17.—Maj. Grayson M. P. Murphy, head of the American Red Cross mission to Europe, in a statement here, recited what the Red Cross is doing for relief in Italy.

We are rapidly forming an emergency organization composed of experienced men and women drawn largely from other theaters of war," he said. "We are shipping supplies, foodstuffs, blankets and clothing for refugees from our European warehouses, and have cabled to our home organization to use all available shipping space from America to Italy for the transportation of foodstuffs and of supplies which it is difficult to obtain here. We have forwarded funds to be distributed by our representatives or by local committees at Rome, Genoa, Bologna, Ancona, Florence, Naples, Bari, Venice, Milan and Leghorn."

In order to facilitate the movement of homeless refugees and make their journeys more bearable, we are arranging the installation of free canteens and soup kitchens at important points. We are arranging for the establishment of day nurseries and other facilities for assisting refugees. We now have in the field inspectors for the collection of first-hand information on which to base comprehensive plans for future operations.

"We have contracted for 75 motor ambulances, we have recruited our first section of ambulance drivers from those who have had experience at the French front. This section is proceeding from Paris in its own cars.

"In addition to the shipment of supplies and equipment, initial emergency appropriations amounting to more than $750,000 already have been authorized."

Three Murdered for Aiding Allies

VIRGINIA, Minn., Nov. 17.—It is conceded now that Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alar and M. Pritic, slain with an ax and knife as they slept in the Alar home Thursday night, were victime of a feud growing out of the war. The victims were Croatians and the note found in the Alar home was written in that language, and gave indication that enmity toward the victims for lending aid to the allies was the motive for the murders.

The AEOLIAN-VOCALION

The Phonograph of Today

STYLE-G
Price
$110

Delivered to you for an Initial payment of $10

THE phonograph of today is a beautiful instrument—beautiful to look at and beautiful to hear. Its fine lines, its delicate proportions, its rich case-woods, no longer reflect the conventional art of the cabinet designer. Instead, it is the unmistakable production of the artist and the atelier.

Its tone is no longer typical of the phonograph. Gone is the effect of stridency hitherto apparently inseparable from that instrument. Instead, this great, new phonograph holds a mirror to nature itself. Natural tones—vocal and instrumental—come from it, now rich and deep and strong, now soft and sweet and infinitely delicate.

And above all, the phonograph of today is no longer simply a machine of stereotyped performance. Instead it has become an instrument of personal musical expression. Playing automatically like other phonographs when desired, it offers in addition, the priceless privilege of self-expression in music which only those who play, or sing, have hitherto enjoyed.

The home of the "Phonograph of Today", which is now available to everyone, is at Aeolian Hall. Its name, already famous throughout the entire country, is the Aeolian-Vocalion.

No musical instrument ever made has met with such immediate and unbounded success as the Aeolian-Vocalion. The public and the musical world were waiting for just such a phonograph—nearer to nature in its reproductions, less stridency in its tone, more real beauty in its looks. And something else, which had not been anticipated, a phonograph which could be used when desired, as a real musical instrument for the expression of each one's instinctive musical emotions.

Let no one think that the Aeolian-Vocalion, because of its distinguished superiority, costs more than other phonographs of relatively comparable styles. For while its magnificent Art Styles cost more than phonographs ever have before—because there never have been phonographs like them before—prices of Aeolian-Vocalions in regular or conventional cases, are the same as phonographs of other make.

CHINESE MINISTRY RESIGNS; COALITION CABINET PROBABLE

Hsu Shi Chang, Former Viceroy of Manchuria, Slated as Successor of Premier Tuan.

PEKING, Friday, Nov. 16.—The entire cabinet resigned with Premier Tuan Chi Jui today, and it is considered probable that President Feng Kwo Chang will accept the resignations. Hsu Shi Chang, former Prime Minister, is expected to be named Premier to form a coalition cabinet, giving South and central China representation.

Hsu Shi Chang, one of China's oldest statesmen, was Viceroy of Manchuria under the old monarchy and Prime Minister during the administration of President Yuan Shi Kai. He resigned at the death of Yuan and when Hsun Tung, the young Emperor, was put on the throne last summer under protection of Gen. Chang Hsun, Hsu Shi Chang was appointed one of the guardians of the Emperor. South China has been seriously disaffected since the restoration of the republic.

ST. LOUIS WILL HAVE FIRST CLINIC OF KIND IN COUNTRY

Aim Is to Prevent Disease Believed to Be Cause of Locomotor Ataxia and Other Ailments.

St. Louis is to have the first clinic established in this country for the preventive treatment of a disease to which Health Commissioner Starkloff ascribes all cases of paresis, locomotor ataxia and numerous other ailments.

The clinic will be conducted in the Municipal Courts Building and will be in charge of Dr. C. M. Woodruff, chief diagnostician of the Health Department. Several specialists have volunteered their services.

The economic value of this clinic, Dr. Starkloff says, will become very great by reducing the number of patients at city institutions. Dr. Starkloff will begin a campaign among civic and charitable organizations to advertise the opening of the clinic, which will be within a week or 10 days.

JAPANESE CONFER WITH M'ADOO

Economic Mission Seeks to Broaden Commercial Relations.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The Japanese economic and financial mission, headed by Baron T. Megata, a Harvard graduate, conferred with Secretary McAdoo today, preparatory to studying American methods of war financing.

The principal purpose of the mission, Baron Megata explained, is to broaden commercial relations between the United States and Japan.

HIGHER RAILROAD PASSENGER RATES IN EFFECT JAN. 1

Raise in Missouri Authorized by State Public Service Commission.

BIG INCREASE IN REVENUES

Action Will Advance Companies' Receipts by Approximately $2,000,000.

New railroad passenger rates, approximately one-fourth higher than those which have been charged most of the time for the past 10 years, will go into effect on Missouri lines Jan. 1.

The increase, authorized in an announcement made Friday my the State Public Service Commission, will add to the railroad revenues an amount estimated at $2,000,000 annually.

One-way tickets are increased from 2 to 2½ cents per mile, round-trip tickets from 2 to 2.4 cents per mile, and provision is made for the issuance of 500-mile books good only on the issuing line at 2¼ cents, and 1000-mile books good on any line in the State at 2¼ cents.

2-Cent Law Enacted in 1907.

The two-cent fare law was enacted in 1907, and was in the courts until, in 1915, the Public Service Commission, which had been created in the meantime, granted an increase to 2½ cents on straight fares, with mileage books still to sell at two cents. This order was not put in force, owing to an injunction proceeding, and last April the Supreme Court upheld the commision's right to fix the rate. The commission then reopened the case for further evidence.

The railroads presented figrues showing that the nine large railroads of Missouri for the calendar year of 1916, did a business within the State amounting to $9,018,150.71. These roads are the Missouri Pacific, Frisco, Chicago & Alton, Burlington, St. Paul, Rock Island, Santa Fe, M., K. & T. and Kansas City Southern.

Cited Operating Deficit.

On this state of income the roads filed exhibits purporting to show that the operating expenses chargeable to intra-state business were $9,108,163.75 for these 10 roads, leaving a net operating defecit of $90,013.04.

Only two lines showed a profit for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1916, according to the figures furnished to the Commission. These were the Missouri Pacific, which made $120,145.48, and the Burlington, which showed a profit of $239,136.68.

The roads also contended that for this year the deficit would be even larger because of increased cost of labor on account of the Adamson law, increase cost of supplies and expenses added by new laws passed by the last Legislature.

On the basis of these increases the railroads estimated their deficit on this business would be more than $1,500,000.

Many exhibits showing increases in cost of supplies were introduced. Some of these ran up to 300 per cent, the average being 02.7 per cent. Testimony of railroad purchasing agents before the commission was that the exact figures on the increases had been obtained in actual orders placed by the roads.

The opinion in the case was written by Commissioner Blair and concurred in by Commissioners Simpson and Flad. All are appointees of Gov. Gardner. Commissioner Bean dissented, and Chairman Busby did not sit, having as counsel for the commission two years ago opposed the increase asked for by the roads.

P. W. Coyle, traffic commissioner of the Chamber of Commerce, said that the advance in rates would be a benefit to the State if it should result in better service. He said the Chamber of Commerce had held that the rates should be readjusted if they were shown to be too low, and that the recent readjustment of the rate between St. Louis and Chicago would prevent any charge of inequality of rates in different sections of territory.

Some railroad officials doubt whether the roads can be forced to issue the mileage books at 2¼ cents, as this might be held to be giving one class of travelers a lower rate than another.

PERSISTENT EFFORTS TO EVADE DRAFT END IN FAILURE

Man Who Twice Made Appeal to President Is Denied Exemption by District Board.

Persistent efforts to escape the draft, made by Henry Mollman of 4147 Pleasant street, ended in failure yesterday when the St. Louis District Appeal Board denied his plea for exemption.

He first claimed exemption on industrial grounds, as an expert accountant for the Kriegel Casket Co. This claim was denied by the district board, and his petition for a rehearing was also denied. He appealed to President Wilson, and passed a civil service examination for a position as clerk accountant with the War Department in Washington. He went to Washington, only to learn that the War Department would not take him, because he was subject to the draft. President Wilson overruled his plea for exemption. He then made a new plea for exemption, to enable him either to take his Government job or resume his former place.

WINKLEMAN STARS AS YEATMAN WINS FROM SOLDAN, 3-0

Proves He Is Best "One-Legged" Football Player in This City by Kicking Field Goal That Keeps Team in Title Race.

SOLDAN IS DANGEROUS ON THREE OCCASIONS

However, Each Time North Siders' Line Holds, With West Enders in Possession of Ball on the 5-Yard Mark.

Yeatman Gained Only 33 Yards by Rushing Against Soldan's 163

FOLLOWING is the story of yesterday's high school feature game between Yeatman and Soldan told in figures. It shows that Soldan gained 130 more yards of rushing the ball than did the winners.

	Yeatman.	Soldan.
First downs	6	14
Yards gained rushing	33	163
Forward passes tried	15	5
Forward passes completed	6	2
Yards gained on passes	88	40
Yards gained on intercepted passes	..	10
Punts	5	5
Yards run back on punts	40	10
Average yards of punts	38	31
Yards penalized	10	15
Fumbles	1	2
Recovered fumbles	..	1

When Ben Winkleman booted a place kick from the 20-yard line in the third period of the curtain-raiser at High School Field yesterday afternoon, he earned a twofold honor. First and foremost, he gave Yeatman the three points necessary to defeat Soldan, as the latter failed to score, thus retaining a clean slate for the gridiron season thus far. Second and hardly less important, he qualified for the unique distinction of being the best one-legged football player seen in these environs in many a day.

This Winkleman boy must be watched closely to appreciate fully his intrinsic worth to the team of when he is a member. Occupying a berth on the line, he gets none of the chances to prove the merit afforded the backfield players, principally because he seldom has possession of the ball.

But pull that left tackle back and there's something stirring every time! Figures on yesterday's contest prove it and in substantiation permit a citation of what occurred. To begin with, Winkleman apepared on the scene with his left hoof encased in a bandage. He limped perceptibly. Twice in the first period it was necessary to call time, while teammates helped Winkleman to his feet and walked him around to drive the pain from his injured foot.

On the third of such occasions, Winkleman was relegated to the side lines. Moreover, he had to be carried there. Benny missed the second period, but the intermission between halves brought him around sufficiently to permit a resumption of "strafing."

The story of the second and third periods is the story of the game. That Winkleman's absence minimized the defensive as well as offensive power of Yeatman is borne out by the figures on Soldan's gains by rushing. In the second quarter, Soldan gained 81 yards by plunging and rushing. The bulk of this gain was accomplished through the left side of Yeatman's line. Winkleman wasn't there.

Different With Winkleman In.

Soldan gained 23 yards by rushing, which was a loss of 58 yards from their performance of the preceding period. These figures are even more impressive when it is considered that Soldan did not attempt a forward pass during the third quarter. They essayed all their gains by the straight attacking method. But Winkleman was there.

The third period, wherein Yeatman scored the three points which won the game began impressively for the winners. Yeatman kicked off and Soldan returned the ball to their own 30-yard line. They made 10 yards and first down, but on the next play, fumbled and Yeatman obtained possession of the sphere on Soldan's 40-yard line.

After Waldo had plunged through for five yards, a pass, Winkleman to Waldo put the ball on Soldan's 20-yard line. On the next play, Winkleman was called back, which presaged something lively. Benny proceeded to boot a perfect goal from placement and the contest was won.

Scoring Chances Are Few.

The chances for scoring were few and far between. Yeatman got the ball to Soldan's 20-yard line in the first period, but lost it on downs. In the second stanza, matters appeared dark for Yeatman. Soldan started a march down the field shortly after the quarter opened and by making six successive first downs, got within five yards of Yeatman's goal. Here, however, the North Siders braced and Soldan lost the ball on downs.

Aside from Winkleman's feat in the

W. Collins Scoring Second Touchdown for Tigers at Francis Field

OHIO STATE WINS CONFERENCE TITLE, BEATING ILLINOIS

Two Field Goals by Harley and Courtney's Touchdown Bring 13-0 Victory.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 17.—By defeating Illinois, 13 to 0, this afternoon, Ohio State, for the second consecutive year, won the championship of the Western Conference. The defeat of Chicago by Minnesota, and Michigan by Pennsylvania, eliminates the only other unbeaten teams of the "Big Ten" and gives the Buckeyes undisputable claim to the supremacy of the West.

Ohio's scoring, coming only after strong resistance by the Illinois claimants, was represented by two goals from placement, by Harley, Ohio's All-American backfield man, and H. G. Courtney's touchdown in the last period, made on a forward pass from Harley. Harley also kicked goal from the touchdown.

Contrary to predictions, both teams used straight football in the main. The only variation came in the last period when forward passes gained considerable ground for each. It was a battle of no mean proportions from the start, with Illinois, however, failing to threaten seriously the Ohio goal. On two occasions they came within striking distance, but place kicks by Ingwerson and Sternaman failed, and their chance was lost.

Boesel Best Ground Gainer.

Ohio's offensive centered largely around Harley. Although he did not gain consistently when carrying the ball, he was conspicuous in almost all plays and outkicked Charpier on their exchanges of punts. Boesel proved the best ground gainer for the champions, running more than 25 yards through a broken field several times. Attacks by Sternaman and Charpier, gave Illinois most of her gains.

The Ohioans started their scoring early in the game, Harley place-kicking from the 17-yard line, after three minutes of play, the Buckeyes having rushed the ball 75 yards, to the 10-yard line. The ball remained near the middle of the field during the second and third periods, but early in the fourth, a series of line plunges and passes carried Ohio into Illinois territory and Harley tossed a forward pass to H. G. Courtney, who carried it across the line. Harley then kicked goal. With nine minutes of the last quarter gone, Harley again drove the ball between the goal posts from the 30-yard line.

GREAT LAKES TEAM WINS

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 17.—The Bluejackets from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station after being on the defensive for three periods scored a touchdown and a place kick in the last few minutes of play and defeated the Camp Grant football eleven here today, 9 to 6. Shiverick, former Cornell star made two drop kicks for the Army.

DENVER ROUTS COLORADO

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 17.—A game that was expected to be nip and tuck resulted in a complete rout for the Colorado School of Mines by the Denver University football eleven today. The final score was 51 to 0. Denver made a touchdown within two minutes of the start of play.

FORWARD PASSES NET FORDHAM 27-6 VICTORY OVER CORNELL'S ELEVEN

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Long forward passes, perfectly executed, and the dashing work of the visitors' back field, were responsible for Cornell's defeat here by Fordham today by a score of 27 to 6. Only in the first period, which was scoreless, did Cornell offer any real opposition. Cornell was within scoring distance several times during the game but was checked by Fordham's defense.

Erwig was the star for Fordham, running 70 yards after the opening of the final period. Hoffman's spectacular punting was a feature of Cornell's play. Cornell's single touchdown was the result of a blocked Fordham punt in the fourth period, Colvin falling on the ball back of the goal lines.

Lineup:

Cornell (6)	Positions.	Fordham (27)
Colvin	Left end	Fitzpatrick

St. Louis U. Wins By Drive in Fourth Quarter, 6 to 0

Baker Goes Over for Only Touchdown in Hard Battle With Rose Poly—Captain Connors Is Star for Billikens, Getting One Run of 45 Yards.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 17.—The St. Louis University football team by a successful drive in the last moments of the final period, won today's game from Rose Polytechnic, 6 to 0. Baker succeeded in pushing the ball over the lot for the lone touchdown, but failed to kick the goal. The game developed into an old-fashioned line-smashing contest, with the visiting eleven having the better of the argument.

The backers of the locals were given a heartbreaking thrill at the windup. After the visitors had succeeded in scoring, Rose Poly followed suit and carried the ball to within 10 inches of the goal, where it lay when the final whistle blew. The Engineers still had two downs in which to gain the remaining distance.

Rose Poly was compelled for the most part to play defensive and showed better in that department than at any time this season. Had this not been the case, St. Louis U. would have won by a much larger score as the offensive of the team was very good.

Connors and Baker Star.

Quarterback Connors and Fullback Baker were the best ground gainers for the St. Louis outfit, the former getting away once for a 45-yard gain around end.

Preceding the game and between halves, the 80 rooters, who accompanied St. Louis paraded about the field with a donkey which they brought as a mascot. In the evening they marched about the downtown streets. The summary:

The Lineup.

St. Louis (6)	Position.	Rose Poly (0).

With Mule as Company Billiken Rooters Go to Rose Game in Box Car

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 17.

OUR boys in France have nothing on the Dentists of St. Louis University. If you don't believe it, just ask one of them. Traveling for 15 hours locked in a box car without food and drink is an experience seldom enjoyed this side of the Atlantic. But then this is just what our future dentists lived through and as company they had one genuine army mule, who had been exempted from draft on account of old age.

They arrived here 60 strong Saturday and it is needless to say that they more than made up for their 15-hour lack of food and drink. "Red" Stockely and Jim Murphy assumed command in the Hoosier city and the natives were soon aware of their presence. Following a downtown parade in which Lennie, the mule, featured, they had the pleasure of seeing their team win.

Late in the evening it dawned on some of the more sober of the party that they were many miles from their bunking palace and immediately a search was begun for comfortable box cars homeward bound.

$45,000 Offer for Willard-Fulton Go

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 17.—Joe Hinton and Eddy Reddy, St. Paul fight promoters, announced here tonight that they would offer $45,000 for a fight between Fred Fulton and Jess Willard on the condition that Fulton wins over "Gunboat" Smith here next Tuesday night. New Year's Day is mentioned as a probable date.

Tom Andrews, Milwaukee promoter, has offered $40,000 for the same fight.

NORTHWESTERN WINNER OVER IOWA TEAM, 25-14; LAUN IS LOSER'S STAR

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Northwestern triumphed over Iowa, 25 to 14, in a bitterly contested game today. "Chuck" Laun, Iowa fullback, although suffering from injuries, scored both of his team's touchdowns. He entered the game with his head heavily bandaged and was forced to retire in the fourth period after being knocked unconscious.

Ellingwood, the Northwestern right half, plowed through the Iowa line for three touchdowns, and Arries scored the fourth. Both teams used forward passes with success.

ARRESTS FOLLOW RIOT DURING FOOTBALL GAME

OBERLIN, O., Nov. 17.—As a result of a free for all fight following the football game here today between Oberlin High School and the University School, of Cleveland, Coach Briggs and fullback Horton, of the University team, were badly injured. Briggs was struck on the head with a brick and rendered unconscious. Horton was struck on the head with an iron bar.

An argument over a decision during the game was resumed by both teams after the game. Spectators mixed in and a general fight followed. Two Oberlin colored men are being held by the police in connection with the fight.

Yesterday's Football Scores

AS forecast, Old Man Dope was hurried to the hospital last night, as a result of being run down and backed over by several "wild" football machines. He is said to be suffering from another green stick fracture of his calculations.

The teams which surprised the Old Top were Pennsylvania, which ran over Michigan and Darthmouth, which suffered a 27-0 defeat by Tufts, outraging all parking privileges on championship higway.

Noting anywhere in the book gave Tufts the right to beat anything but a drum—at least in title circles.

With several precincts not heard from the dope fared as follows: 35 victories, 12 upsets and 7 tied games, a percentage of .745. Following are the scores:

PENNSY SURPRISES, BEATING MICHIGAN BY 16 TO 0 SCORE

Quakers' Goal Line Is Never Seriously Threatened by Coach Yost's Eleven.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 17.—Pennsylvania handed Michigan a big surprise today and defeated the Western football eleven, 16 to 0. It was a hard, bitterly fought game, in which good and bad football was mixed by both sides. The defeat was Michigan's first of the year, she having won all eight games previously played. It was a great disappointment to the Yost followers. They felt confident of victory, particularly after Michigan's one-sided score against Cornell.

Fullback Howard Berry, the college penthalon champion, was easily the hero of the game. He scored 10 of Pennsylvania's points, outpunted Michigan's kicker and was in the thick of nearly all plays. He made three field goals in five attempts and also kicked a goal from touchdown. He was also a marvel in running with the ball.

Pennsylvania's goal at no time was seriously in danger. In the first two periods the teams were almost evenly matched, what advantage there was being with Pennsylvania, which showed a better offensive.

Straus and Weston Chased.

During the second period Halfback Straus of Pennsylvania, and Quarterback Weston of Michigan, got into a fight and both were banished from the game. This was a serious loss for each team, and Michigan followers pointed to the fact that after their quarterback's retirement the team did not play at its best.

Genebach succeeded Weston and in the third period he fumbled in trying to pick up one of Berry's punts and Pennsylvania secured the ball on Michigan's 10-yard line. The Quakers failed to gain and Berry broke into the scoring by toeing a field goal from the 30-yard line. Before the third period ended he kicked another.

In the final quarter, Berry tried a field goal from midfield against the wind and failed. The play went for a touchback. Michigan failing to gain, Wieman attempted to punt from his own 10-yard mark and the ball was blocked, Cleary falling on it behind the goal line for a touchdown. Michigan then played loosely and just before the game ended Berry kicked his third goal from the 15-yard line.

Only Two Passes Succeed.

Numerous forward passes were tried during the game and only two attempts were successful.

Hobart Light, left halfback for Pennsylvania also played a brilliant game. He was a power in carrying the ball either through the line or around the wings.

Pennsylvania was pretty well used up, playing being frequently stopped to fix up players. Michigan, on the other hand, seemed to be in fine physical condition. Little time was taken out by her players.

COE DEFEATS CORNELL (Ia.)

TIGER CUBS TRIM WASHINGTON 19-3, AFTER HARD FIGHT

Pikers, Outdone Nearly 5 to 1 in Ground Gaining, Are Helped by Many Penalties in Checking Scoring of Missourians.

By John E. Wray.

WHAT the crippled Missouri Tiger would have done to Coach Rutherford's Washington University football Pikers had the Columbia Bengal been feeling well, is a question best not asked, in the vicinity of any Washington University man, this morning.

It touches a raw and bleeding spot in the bosom of the Pikeway undergraduate who, along with the 6000 assembled friends and other knockers at Francis Field yesterday afternoon, had rather fancied that Missouri's battered gridiron men were in for a surprise.

It suffices, in explanation, to say that with six regulars absent and with the team's coach, Captain and other stars not even present, the substitutes battered the local men like an industrious cook trying to make a flank steak pass for a tenderloin.

The score was only 19 to 3 against the locals, but the true superiority of the visitors is best expressed by the figures, which show that the Tiger cubs rushed the ball 417 yards to Washington's 75, and lost 75 yards on penalties. One of these deprived the visitors of a touchdown, the referee calling back Viner, after he had crossed Washington's line in the second period, the official then assessing Missouri 15 yards for holding.

Washington Starts Badly.

For the first few minutes of play, in fact for the entire first period, Washington's line work was about as effective as the efforts of the old dame who tried to sweep back the tide. The Missouri machine dug holes in the Washington line like a steam trench digger in a hurry. The first touchdown, which was scored within five minutes of Missouri's kickoff was marked by a straight rush of 60 yards in which a 35-yard dash by Rider was the outstanding feature.

The second touchdown, which followed five minutes later, started with a 12-yard run-back of Washington's punt from the Missouri 35-yard line and ended, after a steady macerating of the Piker defense, when W. Collins smashed through for the second score.

One goal try was blocked and the other hit an upright, making the score, Missouri 12, Washington 0, with five minutes still to be played in the first period.

The bottom had dropped out of the hearts of everyone except the Pikers, who, strange to relate, got their second wind and came back with a gameness that spelled real class.

Tigers Miss Many Chances.

For the rest of the first quarter and on through the second and third periods, the Pikers held desperately, helped by Missouri penalties. The locals' defense reminded one of the St. Louis U. stand against Marquette. quette.

Twice in the second quarter and once in the third Missouri crossed the Piker goal line, after long "marches;" but in no case did a score result. At the start of the second period Missouri rushed the ball 40 yards to the panting Pikers' 20-yard line. Here a diversion in the shape of a forward pass over the goal line was attempted; but a Piker spilled the play.

Again, in this quarter, Missouri rammed the ball, in straight rushes, from Washington's 25-yard line to within three yards of a touchdown. Here Viner charged and butted his way through for what seemed a touchdown, until a cold-faced official called him back and assessed Missouri a 15-yard penalty for holding. Washington was fighting hard and, the ball being directly in front of the goal. Missouri tried a place kick which went wide. Missouri was charging down toward Washington's scoring territory again, when the half ended.

Pikers Hold on 5-Yard Line.

The third time Missouri crossed Washington's line without counting occurred in the next quarter. Again Missouri had steam-rollered its way 55 yards, without losing the ball, aided by a long run and Quarterback Stevens—who was in the game to his neck, by the way—only to be held for three downs within five yards of the Piker goal line. In desperation another forward pass across the line was tried, and again it failed.

Washington showed its first real ground-gaining flash in this period. Its attack by rushing attempts was ludicrous, almost. No interference developed and the Tigers smashed almost every play. Berger seemed the only man able to gain. Balked in this style of attack, Washington uncovered its forward pass assault. Getting the ball on its own 30-yard line, Foelsch heaved it 20 yards to Kling who took the throw perfectly and dashed ahead 30 yards more, making a total gain of 50 yards. More forward passes failed and Benway tried a field goal which went wide. Washington forward-passed several times during the period, but could not make good with it.

Starting the fourth quarter, Missouri ground its way from Washington's 35-yard line, sending Viner over for the last Tiger tally of the day.

Washington then began to wake up in earnest. Benway received the kick-off and dashed back, squirming in and out through many would-be tacklers, for a 35-yard gain. A forward pass, aided by Berger's plunge, netted a first down, Washington's only one of the day to be gained by rushing, but a bad pass lost 15 yards and forced a punt.

Penalties also compelled Missouri to kick, and Washington then began raging through the field like a Berserker full of mead. Forward passes and plunges brought the ball 25 yards up the field where the stonewall of Missouri held for three downs. Benway then dropped a perfect field goal from near the 30-yard mark.

Missouri was much the better team. It ran off its plays fast and accurately and had fine interference for the runners at times. Washington's pluck and stubborn resistance were its chief merits.

Battle Yesterday Was Tamest Ever Played Between Pikers and Tigers

YESTERDAY'S game will probably go on record as about the tamest Piker-Tiger melee that has been contested on Francis Field in many years. The play was hard throughout the four quarters, but was free from a great deal of the wrangling and element of personal encounter that usually characterizes the battles.

There were only two injuries, each team suffering one. These, however, were not due to rough play. Kremer had to give way to Harvey at right end in the first period after he had blocked Collins' attempt of a goal after touchdown. The ball struck him in the face, and three minutes after the play occurred his right eye was closed.

Rider, the Tiger left halfback, suffered a shoulder injury in the first period, and was replaced by Viner who moved over from fullback, making room for Hershel Collins, a brother of Left Halfback Bill, and also of the famous Clint Collins, who starred at Missouri two years ago.

Members of both teams were in good condition after the game.

Rules Cover the Case.

Many persons were at a loss to know why the officials gave Missouri first down on Washington's 20-yard line, after Urie had punted to Benway in the second period. Umpire Henry claimed that Meyers tripped a Bengal while the ball was in the air. The rules stipulated that the offensive team receives first down where the ball is downed by the defense in such a contingency.

Trick Play Goes Wrong.

A play in the third period which Piker followers probably never understood occurred when Marquard passed the ball back and no one received it. Foelch ran back and fell on the pigskin for a 15-yard loss. At the time the backs were shifting to their positions and it seemed as if Marquard had passed too early. However, the play was well timed by the center, but Berger failed to catch the ball.

About 6000 persons comfortably filled the Francis Stadium, both schools being well represented. About 350 Tigertown adherents came on special trains.

It seemed as if Washington should have had one touchdown. Foelch and Kling had just completed a long forward pass for the first substantial Maroon gain of the game. On the next play, Foelch made a half-lateral pass to Benway who was almost in open field. He got his hands on the ball and then dropped it. There is but little doubt that he would have scampered the remaining distance had he caught the ball.

MINNESOTA ROUTS MAROONS, 33 TO 0, IN 'BIG 10' BATTLE

ARNSTON SHINING LIGHT

Scores Two of Touchdowns and Makes Other Large Gains Through Stagg Men's Line.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 17.—Minnesota celebrated home-coming day with a 33-to-0 victory over Chicago, which eliminated the Maroons from the Big Ten Conference championship race. The Minnesota team, stung by defeat at the hands of Wisconsin, staged their comeback with a vim that completely bewildered Coach Stagg's warriors and kept them on the defensive throughout.

Using intricate shifts and fake formations, the Gophers battered gaps in the opposing line, with Lampi, Arnston and Carroll going through for consistent gains. Chicago, on the other hand, was never able to break through the Gopher barrier for material gains and for the most part Maroon plays were muddled before they were well under way.

Higgins, the Chicago fullback,, played a good defensive game, but was slow in getting started, and usually was stopped by the Gopher forward wall.

Maroon Forward Passes Fail.

None of the six forward passes attempted by Chicago connected. Three of Minnesota's nine passes were successful, and netted a total of 48 yards.

At the very outset the Maroons were forced to punt and Minnesota then marched steadily 65 yards for the first touchdown. Obtaining the ball a few moments later, the Gophers again advanced it to the one-yard mark, but the Maroon line stiffened admirably and prevented the threatened score. Line drives intermingled with two successful passes brought the second touchdown in the second period.

Arntson started the third quarter with a sensational 35-yard run around Captain Brelos' position. The charges of the Gopher backfield then were resumed and two more touchdowns chalked up before the period ended.

Arnston Again Goes Over.

In a last desperate attempt to score, the Maroons hurled forward passes in all directions early in the fourth period. One of these was intercepted and just before the whistle sounded Arntson brought the record crowd to its feet by flashing around the Maroon right end for the Gopher's final score.

Webster Defeats Charleston 22-6, Lincoln Starring

The Webster High School football eleven, 1916 county scholastic champions, eliminated the Charleston Mo. High School team as a contender for the State scholastic gridiron championship, by defeating the down state players, 22 to 6, on Webster Field, yesterday afternoon. Until yesterday the Charleston team had an unblemished record.

Allan Lincoln was the outstanding figure in the county eleven's scoring machine. Lincoln scored two touchdowns, kicked a field goal, and added on an extra point by a boot after touchdowns. In all he scored 16 of the 22 points scored.

The first score came in the second period when the husky fullback bucked the ball over the Charleston goal line for a touchdown, after he had put his team in scoring position with a 20-yard run. Goal was missed. Shortly after this play he kicked from placement at the 20-yard line and raised the lead to nine points. The ball had been brought to Charleston territory by successful exploitation of the forward pass.

Charleston broke into the scoring column in this period, when Fullback Goodin intercepted a Webster pass on his own 35-yard line and aided by some formidable interference rambled 65 yards for a touchdown. The goal was not kicked.

Webster made the lead a safe one by adding two touchdowns to the total in the following quarter. Wright, who replaced Vaughn at quarterback, intercepted a pass on Charleston's 15-yard line and shot over the line for a score. Shortly afterwards, Lincoln plunged over for his second entrance into the visitor's sacred territory. He kicked goal.

McKinley Eleven Wins Rough Game From Cleveland

Siebert Ejected From Contest That Ends, 21 to 7, in Favor of Crosby's Men.

Coach Matthews' Cleveland High eleven put up another of their justly celebrated fights in the second game of the twin bill at High School Field yesterday afternoon, but when the final reckoning was made, McKinley was the winner, 21 to 7.

McKinley made the sometimes fatal mistake of underestimating their opponents. On the first play after Cleveland had kicked off, McKinley introduced a joker which apparently was staged to ridicule Cleveland. The McKinley line turned their backs to the opposing forces and an end run was attempted from this formation. It didn't succeed.

Rough work developed in the second period when Eugene Gideonsen, McKinley's left guard, was knocked unconscious by a kick over the heart. He was carried from the field and into the dressing room, where a physician attended him. After the game, Coach Crosby announced that Gideonsen was progressing nicely and should be in shape for practice Monday.

This precipitated a spirit of retaliation on the part of McKinley and the two teams went at it for all they carried in stock during the remainder of the game.

A queer play occurred in the final quarter which is likely to result in the loss of Dutch Siebert, McKinley's star halfback, for the remainder of the season. Cleveland had attempted a drop kick, but it fell short and rolled behind the goal line.

Siebert Ejected From Game.

Siebert got the ball on the bound and as he did so, a Cleveland player came headlong into him. Siebert executed a perfect "stiff-arm," thus warding off the prospective tackler. According to Siebert, Umpire Tarney declared him guilty of "malicious slugging." The ball was behind McKinley's goal and was brought out to the 20-yard line and returned to play. Siebert was ejected, however, for the offense alleged by Tarney.

McKinley scored two touchdowns in the second quarter. Siebert counted the first on a plunge through right tackle, after McKinley had marched down the field. A pass, G. Thompson to Leeffler, put the latter across for the second touchdown toward the close of the half. G. Thompson kicked both goals and the score was 14 to 0 at the end of the second period.

Siebert went over for McKinley's third touchdown in the third period, after he had previously gained 25 yards on a pass from G. Thompson. The latter added the twenty-first point with a goal kick.

Cleveland made a concerted drive for scores in the final quarter, which bore fruit in the waning moments of play. Previously, they had lost the ball on downs on the 10-yard line, but this time Lippert went over for the touchdown and Cole booted the goal.

Bowdoin was second, with 40, Williams third, with 66, and Tufts fourth with 105. Goodwin of Technology, was first to finish in 23 minutes 8 seconds.

third period, there was nothing that offered an opening for a score.

The fourth quarter was an epic of sheer football grit. Twice Soldan wah within the 5-yard zone, with a touchdown in sight. An equal number of times they found the Yeatman line impenetrable and on both occasions lost the ball on downs. On the first of these, Soldan got to the 3-yard mark, then failed. Yeatman punted, but not out of danger.

Soldan to a man was after a touchdown. And it's safe to say that with five more minutes of play they would have obtained the desired end. After Yeatman had punted out, Soldan got the ball on the 30-yard line. Then started another march and when the whistle blew Soldan was on the 5-yard line, ready to again throw brute strength against winning spirit in a final effort for victory.

While Yeatman won, the best they offered in the way of offensive football was their passing. At this style of game, they held a decided advantage on their rivals, as the table showing the game in figures will attest. Soldan, on brute strength and plunging ability, attained brilliance. All told, however, the score indicates just about how evenly the two teams were matched. It was a great exhibition of football, cleanly played and a well earned victory for Yeatman.

LAFAYETTE RUNNERS WIN

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 17.—The Middle Atlantic States intercollegiate cross-country championship run over the Northampton Country Club to March Field course, this afternoon was won by Lafayette with Lehigh second, and Muhlenberg third.

BILLIKEN FRESHMEN WIN WHEN HART GRABS PASS AND SCORES TOUCHDOWN

An intercepted forward pass and subsequent 60-yard dash through a broken field, for a touchdown by Fullback Hart just one minute before the final whistle, turned impending defeat into a brilliant 6 to 3 victory for the St. Louis University freshman football eleven over the Western Military Academy team at Handlan's Park, yetserday afternoon.

The two teams had struggled bitterly to a scoreless tie for 57 minutes of the combat. Just three minutes before the completion of play, the plucky Blanchard, quarterback, dropped back to his 25-yard line and sent a clean placement over the goal of the Billiken yearlings.

St. Louis U. then kicked to the cadets on their 30-yard mark. Several line plunges were successful and the cadets started a new offensive on their 40-yard line. Here a forward pass was foolishly attempted. Hart ran from his station as safety man, grabbed the ball, and dashed through the entire Alton eleven. Goal after touchdown was missed.

ST. LOUIS TO MAKE BID FOR NEXT MIDDLE WEST TENPIN TOURNEY TODAY

Delegates of this city to the Middle West Bowling tournament will make a bid for the next rolling of the event at a meeting of the association to be held in Des Moines today. The local delegations carried with it invitations from Mayor Kiel, the Chamber of Commerce and Retail Dealers' Association. Kansas City and Omaha also are after the event.

The first bunch of locals departed last night and included Henry C. Menne, vice president of the association; Dr. Vitt, D. J. Sweeney, S. L. Drake and P. J. Eicher. They will roll tomorrow night as the H. C. Mennes and will compete in the doubles and singles on Monday.

St. Louis entertained the tenpinners in 1916 and set an entry record, which Des Moines failed to equal.

TUFTS FORWARD PASSES SURPRISE DARTMOUTH

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 17.—Tufts provided a surprise to New England football followers today by defeating Dartmouth, 27 to 0. Captain Drummey of Tufts circled the Dartmouth ends for a touchdown and threw forward passes to Jochim and Mitchell, which resulted in three more scores.

The Green, unable to work the forward pass successfully, resorted to old style football, but the Tufts line held firm.

Second District Navals Win From Harvard Informal

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 17.—Two spectacular plays in the second period gave "Cupid" Black's second district naval reserve team a 14 to 0 victory over the Harvard informal eleven today.

Charles Barrett, the former Cornell star, now playing half back for the navy team, ran 40 yards around left and on the next play hurled a forward pass 15 yards to Hite, who was standing behind the Harvard goal line.

Soon after the next kick-off Green, former Navy right end, picked up a Harvard fumble and carried the ball 20 yards for the second touchdown.

STAG TO STAGE AMATEUR BOXING TOURNEY TODAY

A large number of entries have been received for the amateur boxing tournament to be staged at the Stag Athletic Club this afternoon. The Southern A. C., Columbian A. C., South Broadway A. KEEN KUTTERS WIN IN MUNICIPAL LEAGUE, 2-0

The Keen Kutters won their first game in the Saturday Division of the Municipal Soccer League yesterday afternoon at Fairground, 2-0, defeating the Union Electric team. Dependahl and Fogg shot the goals for the winners.

In the other contest, the Bank of Commerce defeated Eden Seminary, 3-2. Hegarty, two, and Lavin scored for the winners and Hein and Eggers, of the winners, for the losing aggregation. Eggers booted the ball through his own goal.

20,000 SEE CONTEST.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 17.—Soldier boys from Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, Ohio, before 20,000 persons here today defeated the soldier eleven from Camp Sheridan, Montgomery, Ala., 13 to 0.

COMMITTEES OF A. A. U. TO HOLD MEETINGS TODAY

Status of Athletes Now in National Service Will Be Main Topic Discussed.

NINE COME FROM N. Y.

Party Headed by Secretary-Treasurer Rubien Put in Appearance Last Night.

Plans that will allow the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States to work hand in hand with the Government, will be made when the different committees of the A. A. U. hold their annual meeting, starting at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Missouri Athletic Association. The gathering proper, which will last about two days, will be started at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

With the Government doing its share to stimulate interest in athletics among the soldiers, it is the opinion of the local A. A. U. heads, that this will be the main question brought before the delegates from the different associations.

New rules are expected to be adopted that will allow registered A. A. U. athletes now in the different branches of the national service to compete in meets without impairing their amateur standings.

Will Be Main Topic.

"The Government has gone in strong for athletics," said Thomas G. Watts, former president of the Western district and a vice president of the national body, "and I think that it is up to the A. A. U. to help along. For this reason, I am confident that this will be one of the main items of business to be discussed at the local meeting."

Justice Bartow S. Weeks of New York, chairman of the Legislative Committee, has several new rules that will be put before the delegates for adoption, all of them relating to the status of athletics now in the service.

It is understood that the Municipal Athletic Association also will put several matters before the committees. These probably deal with the view of bringing the two organizations closer together.

Committees Meet Today.

The more important committees that will hold their meetings today will be the legislation, records and registration. Records made in the outdoor meet here will be voted upon.

The complete program for the day is for the delegates to gather at the Missouri A. A. at 9 o'clock for a tour of the city. A stop will be made at the Sunset Hill Country Club at 1 o'clock for luncheon and then return to the Cherry Diamond.

Many of the delegates arrived here last night, including a party of nine, headed by Secretary-Treasurer F. W. Rubien from New York. It is figured that between 60 and 75 delegates will be here to attend the meeting.

SPORT SALAD By T. C. Davis

Uncertainties of Knitting.

NOW I sit me down to knit
Some garment for a soldier's kit.
And I can hardly wait to see
Just what it will turn out to be.

I tried to knit a sweater-coat
Some soldier's comfort to promote;
But when it was received in France
It proved to be a pair of pants.

One time I knit a pair of sox
And shipped them over in a box;
The man who got them threw nine fits,
Then wrote and thanked me for "those mitts."

And so I knit the whole day long
And turn out something, right or wrong.
It's quite an interesting game
To knit a thing and guess its name.

NEBRASKA DEFEATS KANSAS, CLINCHING CONFERENCE TITLE

Outplayed in the First Half, Cornhuskers Score Two Touchdowns in Second.

JAYHAWK LINE TIRES

Resistance Offered by Defeated Eleven Surprises Football Followers.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 17.—Nebraska University's football eleven earned a 13-to-3 victory over the University of Kansas team here today, the latter crumpling before the Nebraska onslaughts in the third quarter, after having outplayed their opponents throughout the first half and led them in the scoring, 3 to 0, up to that time.

The game was the second and last the Nebraskans will play with Missouri Valley Conference teams, and gives them a clear-cut title to the championship.

Throughout the first half the Kansas line held well and the offensive play of the Kansas excelled, encouraging the Kansas rooters to hope for a victory, but in the third period the Nebraskans started a grinding drive that netted two touchdowns and swept almost at will through the Kansas line.

With the collapse of the line, the Kansas backs lost their ability to dash through for good gains and tried the aerial tactics that have stood in good stead throughout the season. The Nebraskans were prepared to meet this, however, and not one of the nine forward passes attempted by Kansas was completed.

The manner in which the Kansas line repelled assaults and Kansas backs found holes for good gains was the surprise of the game, which had been all but conceded to the Nebraskans.

In the first half Kansas gained 89 yards to Nebraska's 62 yards and made four first downs to Nebraska's three. The tide turned when Cook of Nebraska got away in a stiff-arming, 35-yard dash that gave the Lincoln eleven its first touchdown.

Hubka of Nebraska and Schellenberg of the same team were also able to produce good gains when called upon.

The lineup:

Nebraska (13).	Position.	Kansas (3).
Rhodes	Left end	Laslett

MILLERS AND RESERVES PLAY FEATURE OF SOCCER LEAGUE TWIN BILL TODAY

The Ben Millers, leaders in the St. Louis Soccer League, are scheduled to play the Navy Reserves in the first and feature contest of today's double-header at Cardinal Field. The Innisfails and St. Leos fight it out in the closing clash. Tom Lyster will referee the opener and Bill Bascom the final battel. Kickoff at 2:15 o'clock.

Pete Ratican's kickers at present have a two-point lead over the Navals and a victory for Pete Ratican's men would place the two on even terms. However, a win for the present pacemakers would put them far in front of their nearest competitors.

There also is a lot of interest in the final contest, as the loser will drop to last place, the two being tied at present.

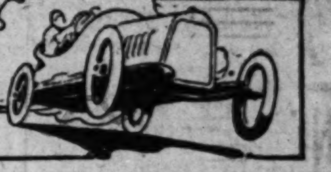
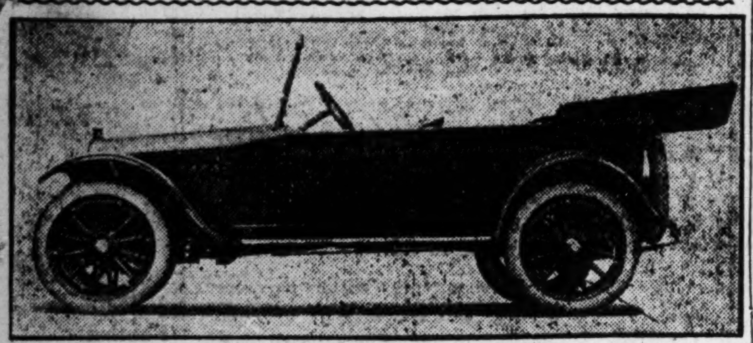
AUTOMOBILE NEWS



The Hupmobile's "Comfort Car"



MOTOR CAR TRADE WILL CO-OPERATE WITH WAR BOARD

Many of 455 Plants Will Be Partly Used for Production of Munitions and Army Trucks.

The Government has appointed as an Automobile Industries Committee, A. W. Copeland, Hugh Chalmers and John R. Lee, men widely experienced in the automobile business.

This board is to co operate with the War Industry Board in arranging for the use of automobile plants and accessory plants for the production of munitions.

A large number of automobile manufacturers, in response to the call for their services in co-operation with the new committee, are keen to produce munitions in addition to their regular lines of automobiles, which all manufacturers will continue to build to a full amount, depending on market conditions.

There is certain, the committee believes, to be some reduction in the number of passenger cars produced, based on Government requirements, and with a view to creating the least hardship on more than 27,000 retail dealers of automobiles, who maintain sales establishments and garages in almost every village and town in the country.

SHOWS SAMSON TRACTOR

N. F. Sutton, the St. Louis manager of the General Motors Truck Co., is showing the new Samson three-wheel farm tractor, which is being built by his company. The company recently purchased the big plant at Stockton, Cal., which has been manufacturing Samson tractors for a number of years.

This tractor, which sells for $1750, in addition to doing all regular farm work, has a power takeoff for driving threshers and other farm machinery.

R. A. Sweet, manager of the tractor department of the General Motor Truck Co., will be in St. Louis shortly to arrange demonstrations.

G. C. Barcus, president of the St Louis Grant Motor Car Co., is visiting Grant dealers in Missouri and Illinois and reports that they are increasing their orders.

NEWEST HUPMOBILE IS A "COMFORT CAR"

The Comfort Car, as its makers designate the new Hupmobile series "R," is now on exhibition in 500 cities, having been announced to the public for the first time Nov. 15. In St. Louis the Weber Implement and Auto Co. is showing it. It is a light car, although by no means a small one. Its wheel base is 112 inches, but its tonneau is equally as large, and its driving compartment is actually longer than in the preceding model.

The new car is distinctly a Hupmobile, yet there is about it such a degree of individuality that motorists may not immediately appreciate the family resemblance. The windshield has been slanted and a slightly sloping speed line from back of the rear seat to the top of the radiator is incorporated in the body design. The color is "Hupmobile" blue, somewhat lighter than in previous models. The hood, fenders and running gear remain black as before. By means of the perfected "floco" process now in use in the Hupmobile factory, an absolutely uniform finish of high luster and extreme durability has been attained.

The term "comfort car" is derived primarily from the unusual degree of riding and driving comfort produced by improved cushions and seat construction, spring suspension and unusual ease of all control operations. But that comfort in this case has also a much wider application is instantly apparent. It is needless to emphasize the fact that appearance, performance, economy of operation and durability are all "comfort" qualities when viewed from the standpoint of mental satisfaction.

Economy in the new Hupmobile has been worked out along the lines approved by Mr. A. C. Bedford of the Petroleum Board at Washington, who suggested in a late bulletin a 20-per-cent reduction in the consumption of gasoline as not only a desirable but a necessary mark for all automobile makers to aim at during the coming year. Pre-heating of air before it reaches the carburetor, heating to insure perfect gasification between the carburetor and cylinders, adjustments to obtain the leanest possible mixture and the assurance of a fat, hot spark at ordinary driving speeds, are four of the major points emphasized by Mr. Bedford. These points have been amply and adequately covered by the builders of the series "R."

ACCESSORY MEN TO HEAR JUDGE ANDERSON

The "Business Interchange Meeting" of the Motor Accessory Trade Association, at the City Club, Tuesday night promises to be one of the most interesting in its history.

Judge Thomas L. Anderson of St. Louis will deliver an address on "Business and Patriotism." There will be a display of advertising posters under the charge of L. E. Allmon, chairman of the Publicity Committee. "Winter Business" will be discussed by L. A. Safford of the McQuay-Norris Manufacturing Co. The "Origin of Oil" will be told by A. R. Chappell of the Imperial Oil Co., and Capt. John Berry will talk on "Ballooning in War Times." A director will be elected to fill a vancy on the board. Half a dozen new members will be propsed by W. L. Ferrier of the Membership Committee, and the Aeolian Company has arranged a concert under the charge of G. H. Phelps.

The Ollie Haupt Motor Co., now at 4127 Olive street, has closed a lease for the building at the southeast corner of Olive and Whittier streets. The company is an authorized Ford dealer.

CAR BUYING SHOWS INCREASE IN CANADA

Estimates of Canada's taking of automobiles this year reach 100,000, which is an increase of 500 per cent from the number bought three years ago, and 85 per cent more than the normal increase for 1913 and 1914, it was stated by Sales Manager William King of the Brandle Motors Co. of St. Louis yesterday, who added: "This showing is made in the face of a constant crusade in that country for economy and the steady withdrawal of man-power and money during the past three years.

"With a population of 7,500,000, Canada has more than 150,000 automobiles, or one for every 50 persons. One-half of these cars are in Ontario, which is one to every 33 persons. The figures given are from Government sources, and they show that Canada occupies third position with regard to the cars in actual use, and point to the auto as the leading peace industry of that country.

"Compared with the United States, the figures show 14 states having fewer cars in proportion to population than has Ontario, and in this connection it should be borne in mind that the initial cost of the cars as well as its upkeep cost is 42 per cent greater in Canada than in the United States.

"Owing to the wide average distribution of motor cars in this country, it is unlikely that any such increase as is shown by Canada is probable," King stated, "but if business can continue even in the same proportions as it was prior to the entrance of the United States into the war, the industry will be able to boast a very firm basis."

The Singer Auto Traffic Signal Co. has leased the building at 3917 Olive street for its office, salesroom and factory for the Singer traffic signal.

"Bargain" Time in Automobile Buying

Today prices of all motor cars are at the low-point. Climbing costs of material and labor are inexorably drawing the time near when new and far higher prices must be set.

So the wise buyer will purchase his Saxon "Six" at $935 now.

In performance, in beauty, in value, you'll find Saxon "Six" the best "buy," dollar for dollar, in the field of cars ranging in cost from $800 to $1150.

It is a big car, an able car, a roomy car for all five passengers. And it is a "Six."

Contrasted with a "four" Saxon "Six" belongs to a higher class as far as performance is concerned.

In high quality features it will match any car costing $200 or $300 more.

Automobiles Keep Men and Merchandise Moving

Railroads are strained to their limit today to supply transportation for man and merchandise.

The automobile has stepped into the breach, and is the second greatest factor in meeting the national need for more—more—more transportation.

You must keep your car fulfilling its part of the need,

—keep it ready day or night to do its part in your transportation service,

—keep its "feet" well shod,

—give it the tires that have stood, and are continuing to stand, the test of mileage,

—the tires that give low mileage cost and high anti-skid service.

Put United States 'Royal Cord' Tires on your car—make comparisons for yourself.

"Use your car, passenger or commercial, more and more to relieve the transportation pressure on the Nation's railroads and merchants' delivery service."

SHIP DORRIS CARS TO EAST'S WAR ZONE

The Dorris Motor Co. of St. Louis is now making regular shipments of seven-passenger touring cars to France. They are shipped to the United States expeditionary forces there, for the use of the army.

Boxing for foreign shipment is a careful process. The floor of the box is of 2x6 oak planks with heavy oak sills. Sides and top are of match lumber, and the boxes are lined with insulated paper. In preparing the cars for boxing, the rims and tires and windshield are removed, the top folded, and the 130-inch wheel base is thus gotten into a box 15 feet long by six feet high and six feet four inches wide. The axles are bolted to the floor and the springs are compressed by the lid to prevent vibration.

REO

The Reo Four Convertible Coupe

JUST BECAUSE MORE LADIES drive this Reo Roadster, is no reason why it isn't also the ideal man's car.

IN FACT IT IS so regarded by thousands of professional and business men.

THE REASON YOU SEE SO MANY ladies driving this Reo model is because of its wonderfully simple control.

BUT THE REASON why it is so popular with business and professional men is its matchless dependability and low upkeep.

WITH A "CONVERTIBLE COUPE" as we call our demountable "All Seasons" top, this model fills all needs and meets all climatic conditions.

THE ROOF MAY BE demounted in the spring and the standard cloth top substituted for the summer season—but 99 per cent of owners prefer the solid roof all the year 'round.

THE GLASS PANELS can be removed in a few minutes and stored away.

THEN THE "JIFFYS" are ready on the instant for a sudden storm or the occasional raw day in spring and fall.

THE JIFFY CURTAINS are concealed 'neath a flap in the top. You never know they're there 'till you need them. Then—in a jiffy they are applied, and without leaving your seat.

DEMAND for this season has been hopelessly in excess of the output ever since we introduced it.

BUT IF YOUR ORDER is in our hands at once, we can promise you a definite—and a fairly prompt delivery.

BUT DON'T DELAY—today won't be a minute too soon.

RECEIVED 69 COAL CARS LOADED WITH AUTOS

What is probably the record shipment of automobiles in St. Louis was unloaded during the week by the Vesper Buick Auto Co., which consisted of 69 coal gondolas containing 187 Buick automobiles of each one of the six models handled by the company.

The arrangement for this shipment was made by F. W. A. Vesper, president of the company, recently, when it was discovered that the Buick Motor Co. of Flint, Mich., was buying its coal supply from Southern Illinois mines and the coal cars were being returned empty.

Special permission from the transportation commission was required to use the coal cars for automobile loading. This permission was granted with the understanding that the cars would be unloaded in St. Louis and immediately returned to the coal fields. As promptly as the coal was received in Flint, the gondolas were prepared for automobile loading, and were shipped in two sections, all coming over the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad.

EXGUENCIES OF WAR DEVELOP MOTOR CAR

A great deal has been said of the wonderful advance in motor design, which the war has brought about. Every great crisis which the world passes through necessitates greater perfection machinery, and has always been met by inventive genius. The aeroplane, truck and engine for great British tanks have been developed and many lessons are learned from them.

The Paige company, represented locally by the Newell Motor Car Co., have taken into consultation with them two engineers who have assisted in developing the great truck and aeroplane engines used on the Western front, and by taking their knowledge have made perfections all the way through their cars.

For instance, the Paige "Six-55" motor has been entirely revamped and every idea known to mechanical engineering in greater efficiency and perfection has been installed.

The crank shaft with all its reciprocating parts, such as pistons, connecting rods, etc., is put in running balance by a very ingenious device. There is no use in having a balanced crankshaft unless that balanced crankshaft has all its reciprocating parts in balance with it.

The pistons have been made longer, and an improved oiling system for greater economy has been devised.

On account of the low test gasoline used today, a superheater has been placed on the intake manifold, which works on the same principle as a steam superheater, increased power, and making smoother running through more efficient carburation.

During October the Post-Dispatch printed 63,976 want ads, 5198 more than the two morning and the nearest evening newspaper COMBINED.

TO BUILD NEW CUT-OFF.

State surveyors last week surveyed the lot at the northeast corner of Washington avenue and Grand avenue, which is to be a cut-off to extend Washington avenue east into Washington avenue west. It is promised by the Street Department that this work will be pushed as rapidly as possible so that the cut-off will be completed in the early spring.

An objection raised among automobile men is that the house at the southwest corner of Theresa avenue and Washington avenue will obstruct the view of motorists coming east over the new cut-off, and that greater safety would be conserved if part of this house were torn away.

Before The Price Goes Up Buy Your GRANT SIX

WHEN the present price of the GRANT SIX is increased it is not at all likely that you will ever again be able to buy a Six so cheaply. The man who buys a GRANT SIX right now is certain to save $100 and probably more.

In all the list of popular-priced cars there is not the equal of the GRANT SIX in economy, in riding comfort, in ease of control, in sturdiness.

The building of a car of the GRANT SIX quality at so low a price will long remain one of the distinctive achievements of the industry.

Its overhead-valve engine, full-floating rear axle, cantilever rear springs, and its splendid electrical equipment, are not only unusual features in a car of such low price but have made the GRANT SIX a serious competitor of more expensive cars.

We do not know how many more GRANT SIXES we can get from the factory at the present price. Order yours now.

MAY FORM ASSOCIATION OF STATE AUTO DEALERS

F. W. A. Vesper returned Thursday from Denver, where he went as representative of the National Automobile Dealers' Association to address the Colorado dealers, who formed an association, known as the Rocky Mountain Automobile Trades Association, comprising dealers of Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico.

This is one of the first of the state associations being formed for affiliating with the national association.

Upon returning to St. Louis, Mr. Vesper was a guest of the Kansas City Dealers' Association at their noonday meeting, Wednesday, and spoke to them on the national situation. Also at that time a plan of State organization in Missouri was discussed, and it is probable that within a short time a committee representing both the Kansas City and St. Louis associations will be appointed and meet for the purpose of discussing plans for the establishment of a State association.

This is one of the matters that is assuming considerable importance in view of the present agitation at Washington with reference to the curtailment of automobile production and other questions of importance to the automobile trade.

M'NAULL TIRE TO EXPAND

Principal tire dealers and agents from all parts of the country will convene in Toledo this week as guests of the McNaull Tire Co., to witness the wonderful strides being made by the parent concern and to learn of plans to increase the production on a large scale.

The occasion is the annual convention of all of the McNaull dealers and agents. Plans which are to be announced at the convention include the construction of additional factory buildings of the most modern type to provide for the phenomenal increase in business. Another announcement is a national advertising campaign which is to begin in the near future.

An elaborate program of entertainment is being prepared, beginning with a monster pageant of all the trucks and passenger cars in the City of Toledo equipped with McNaull tires. This promises to be an eye-opener to many of the delegates.

BOUGHT NASH CARS BEFORE SEEING THEM

So confident are motor car buyers all over the country as to the kind of a car that would be produced by the Nash Motors Co. that a sizeable number of orders were received at the Nash factory from enthusiastic admirers who had never seen a Nash car.

Eight orders were booked in Memphis before a Nash six arrived in Tennessee. Four cars were sold in Battle Creek before a single person in the Food City had seen a Nash. As long ago as last August, six weeks before the new car was officially announced, two Nash six sedans were sold to individuals in Jacksonville, Fla., and Columbia, S. C., "sight unseen."

Twenty-three dealers in one state bought Nash sixes without seeing them, and in virtually every state in the Union Nash sixes were sold to dealers and customers before the cars were seen. This is eloquent testimony of the eagerness with which the Nash six has been welcomed, both by motorists and the trade.

OVERLAND ANNOUNCES NEW LIGHT FOUR SEDAN

There will be more people riding in closed cars this year than ever before. A fresh impetus to the closed car business is the prediction just made by Paul A. Smith, general manager of the Overland St. Louis business, on the announcement of a new convertible five-passenger sedan on the Model 90 Light Four chassis at $1240.

This is a car that, although fashionable and modish, is practical and economical throughout — a car adaptable for social duties or for business purposes. Yet, it is in the price class of a number of so-called popular-priced open touring cars.

This new Overland Sedan has the lines and the luxurious appearance that enable it to take its place with closed cars of much higher cost.

"To call this Overland Light Four Sedan a 'closed car' would but half describe it," says Smith. "In a trice it can be made an open touring car. It combines the luxury and protection of the closed car and the airy freedom of the open car. And its riding comfort is remarkable. Big tires and deep, well-shaped upholstery are partly responsible for this, but the big reason lies in the cantilever rear springs. No other type absorbs the road shocks so completely or eases over rough roads so smoothly."

ONE NOT INTERRED IN OLDFIELD'S GRAVEYARD

Barney Oldfield, who this season has celebrated his sixteenth year as an automobile race driver by campaigning a novel mount featured by an inclosed egg-shaped body, has seen many of his racing cars carried to the highest crest of fame and then dropped to the trough of obscurity.

If there were a graveyard for racing cars, Oldfield would have to bury his discarded mounts. Having a big heart and being somewhat of a sentimentalist, he probably would mark the last resting place of these steel thoroughbreds of the past with tombstones, carved with the following inscriptions:

"The 999. My first car, at the wheel of which I became famous."

"The Bullet. Fast while she lasted, but not strong enough to stand the awful punishment."

"The Green Dragon. Laurel-crowned on dirt track and on the stage. Record breaker extraordinary and co-star with Elsie Janis and Barney Oldfield in the musical comedy "The Vanderbilt Cup."

"The Darrac. Winner of the first Vanderbilt cup race."

There is one of Barney's old cars, however, that is not ready for interment. That car is famous Old Glory, built for Oldfield in 1909 by the National Motor Car and Vehicle Corporation of Indianapolis, and having the American flag painted on each side of the hood. Old Glory is just as fast and sturdy today as when the veteran American race driver rode to fame in it. The car is owned by Robert J. Gill, an attorney of Baltimore, and rules the boulevards of Maryland's metropolis and the highways adjacent to that romantic city.

WAR HAS INTENSIFIED NEED FOR MOTOR CARS

"Proof that the automobile is now regarded by the public as one of the greatest and most indispensable of utilities is more prolific every day the war grows older," says J. C. Kardell of the Kardell Motor Car Co., Dort distributers in St. Louis.

"There are forcible and insistent pleas for economy both from official and unofficial sources, constant agitation favoring retrenchment in the buying of luxuries, sound-grounded arguments that every citizen's duty is to back the Government to the extent of every dollar he can spare. But despite this unprecedented upheaval, the demand—for Dort cars, at least—proves that the automobile cannot be spared from the accepted scheme of things.

"The professional or business person who does not own a car is today at a very decided disadvantage with competitors. The war intensifies this disadvantage because it takes so many tens of thousands of folks from their regular pursuits and automatically transfers their burdens to others."

SHIPPED TEN CARS FROM ST. LOUIS TO TOKIO, JAPAN

The Moon Moter aCr Co. of St. Louis on Friday completed the shipment of ten complete Moon Thousand Dollar cars to Tokyo, Japan. The chasses were shipped separate from the bodies. The reason for this is not known to the Moon officials, but they have previously shipped 95 chasses to the same purchasers in Tokyo.

It is reported to the Moon company that the Japanese are developing and widening the roads in their country, so as to make them available for automobile use, and that the utilization of the automobile there is becoming almost as widespread as it is in the United States.

ENTZ GOES TO NEW YORK ON SUBMARINE WORK

T. B. Entz, president of the Entz Automobile and Battery Co., will go to New York in a few days as engineer for the Gould Storage Battery Co., and will give his entire attention to submarine storage battery problems. Entz is a graduate electrical engineer and an expert battery man.

During Entz's absence from St. Louis the business of his company will be in charge of Earnest Board, secretary of the company and present superintendent of the garage.

The business of the Philadelphia Storage Battery Co. is in the hands of M. J. Kline.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

DRIVERS WASTE GASOLINE STARTING AND STOPPING

"Many good patriots every day are wasteful and even extravagant in the way they drive their cars—not that they drive too much, but rather that they do not follow the ordinary precautions which will make their car last longer and go farther at a minimum expense," said Wesley A. Stanger of the Mitchell Motors Corporation of St. Louis.

"For instance, did you ever notice how some drivers take turns? A honk of the horn, a rush of air, and they're gone, if the road is clear. If it isn't, the brakes lock with a slam, the wheels slide, there's a smell of burned rubber, the clutch is disengaged, the motor races it's head off. And what does this all mean? Useless wear on tires, excessive waste of gasoline and oil, severe strains on the engine and certain damage to the brakes.

"The greatest racing car pilots the world has ever known slow down for turns on the track. They do that because they know how to get the utmost out of their steed. I cannot figure out why some passenger car drivers don't use the same good judgment.

"How much easier and more economical it is to allow the motor to slow down the car! This will save gasoline and oil, will lengthen the life of the brakes and will not work any hardship on the engine.

"On the other hand, I've seen many drivers who literally waste as much gasoline in stopping and starting as they probably use on the whole trip.

"It's absolutely unnecessary to race a motor in making a stop. This practice wastes gasoline and oil and certainly doesn't help the motor. In starting all one has to do is to sped up the motor just enough to pull away from the curb smoothly."

CHANDLER HIT HIGH SPOTS IN DISPATCH RUN

There is no disputing this fact—that the 200 miles of road which interlies Salt Lake and Ely, Nev., is the worst 290-mile stretch which could be found anywhere in this country.

This was the relay link to which Frank Navin, Chandler owner and employe of C. A. Quigley, was assigned by those in charge of the United States Motor Courier Corps run from Washington, D. C., to San Francisco. It was over this stretch that Mr. Navin drove his veteran Chandler car—it has gone 20,000 miles—and carried the Government's dispatches without any mishap in the remarkably short time of 13 hours and 52 minutes, with a total time going of but 15 hours.

Under the rules of the relay trip drivers were to be allowed to have a follow-up car—a machine running behind in the event of trouble. When we had arranged to go I asked Navin whether he thought we might need a helping car.

"No," he said, quite positively. "That old Chandler of mine will get there all right—you need not worry about that."

So it happened that the Herald-Republican courier machine was one of the few relay cars which made its run unassisted.

HOW THE CLOSED CAR HAS DEVELOPED IN USE

Some idea of the remarkable strides made by the inclosed car within the past few years is gained by a recent announcement of the Franklin Automobile Co. that 25 per cent of their production planned for the season of 1917-18 is made up of this type.

In the year 1907 the first Franklin inclosed car, a limousine, built to fill the demand for a certain large city trade, was brought out. Not until 1914, however, did the inclosed car business gain any particular volume. That year the Franklin company produced its first sedan, or inside-drive inclosed car. People gradually set aside the idea that inclosed cars were limited to chauffeur operation and this type at once became a popular fixture. The Franklin company, appreciating the self-evident advantages of the inclosed type for general use, proceeded to develop the industry for the production of them, and may be considered the pioneer in their introduction to the market for utility purposes. The Syracuse firm produced 189 of these cars in 1914. In 1915 the output had been increased to 406, in 1916 to 444, while for this calendar year a total of 2465 sets a new Franklin record

ELGIN SEDAN IS HERE

The new six-cylinder Elgin sedan is being shown by the Wilson Motor Car Co., at 3118 Locust street. In this car comfort has been made the paramount feature. It has wide doors on either side, with Yale locks, with wide aisles between seats. The tilted steering wheel gives the driver ample room.

The car is unusually roomy for five passengers and has a hot air heating device, and the regulation protected rain vision and double ventilating wind shield. All of the windows disappear in the sides of the body, transforming it into an open car when desired.

To Push Automobile Sales.

H. H. Hawke, until recently in the sales department of the Chalmers Motor Car Co., Detroit, as special representative, has resigned to accept the managership of the wholesale department of the De Luxe Automobile Co., Oldsmobile distributers in an extensive territory covering Illinois and Missouri.

The acquisition of Mr. Hawke can be looked upon as a forecast of Oldsmobile activity in this territory commensurate with the remarkable record of Oldsmobile sales and the record made by this company in general motor affairs during this season.

Asking You To PAY More
Wouldn't GIVE You More

A THREAT to add two or three hundred dollars to the price of the Chandler wouldn't make the car better. And actually adding to the price wouldn't make it better.

The definite Chandler policy, consistently followed throughout the history of the Chandler Company, keeps Chandler value highest and Chandler price lowest.

No other car selling for less than $2000 offers you so many distinctively high-grade features of design and construction:

Bosch High-Tension Magneto.
Solid cast-aluminum motor base extending from frame to frame.
Annular ball-bearings in transmission, differential and rear wheels.
Silent chain drive for motor shafts.

And the famous Chandler motor, in its fifth year now, refined from time to time in the past but without radical changes, continues as the greatest of all sixes.

The Chandler has passed and left behind a long line of other makes of sixes because it does give so much more for so much less.

CATTLE MARKET SHARPLY HIGHER; HOGS ARE FIRM

Reported for the Post-Dispatch by the National Livestock Commission Co., National Stockyards, Ill., Nov. 18, 1917.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last week.	Week before.	Last year.
Cattle	27,500	40,000	38,600
Hogs	73,000	41,500	86,000
Sheep	8,600	6,200	8,400

Cattle receipts were moderate last week, and from all indications the big runs of grass cattle are a thing of the past. This should cause a permanent, active demand for all classes. Compared with the close of the previous week, steers of all varieties, whether killers, stockers or feeders, were 25c higher, while the rank and file of butcher cattle sold fully 50c higher.

Choice to prime beef steers are quoted at $14.75 to $15.75; good to choice, $12.50 to $14.50; medium to good, $9.25 to $11.25; common to medium, $7.75 to $9.25; common off-colored light killing steers, $6.50 to $7.50; good to choice stockers and feeders, $7.75 to $8.75; medium to good, $6.75 to $7.75; common to medium, $6 to $6.50; good to choice stock cows, $6.25 to $6.75; good to choice stock heifers, $7 to $7.50; choice to prime fat yearling butcher cattle, $11.50 to $14.50; good to choice, $9.50 to $11.50; medium to good, $8 to $9.50; common to medium, $7 to $8; choice to fancy heavy beefcows, $9 to $10; good to choice, $8 to $9; medium to good, $7.50 to $8; cutters, $6.25 to $7; canners, $5.50 to $6; good fat beef bulls, $8.50 to $10; heavy sausage bulls, $7.50 to $8.50, and light sausage bulls, $6.25 to $7.25.

Although hog receipts last week were almost double that of the previous week, the market held to a pretty firm basis throughout, and closed generally steady with the close of the week before.

On yesterday's market choice hogs 180 lbs up were quotable at $17.30 to $17.65; mixed hogs 160 lbs up, $17 to $17.35; 120 to 150 lb pigs, $16.50 to $16.75; lighter pigs, $15.50 to $16.50; best rough hogs, $16.75, with half-fat roughs at $14 to $15.50.

While the supply of sheep and lambs was slightly in excess of the previous week, the demand was sufficient to take care of all offerings, and support an advance of fully 50c to 75c on lambs, with fat sheep 25c higher.

Good to choice lambs are quotable at $16.50 to $17.25; medium to good, $15.75 to $16.25; culls, $13 to $14; fat sheep, $10.75 to $11.25; choppers, $8.50 to $9 and canners, $5.50 to $6.50. Fat goats, $6.50 to $7.75, with fat kids at $8 to $10.50.

DAIRY PRODUCTS IN DEMAND AND FIRM ON LOCAL MARKET

Poultry Offerings Light—Potato Market Remained Dull and Weak—String Beans Scarce.

Butter and egg prices were firmly maintained on the local market yesterday, both articles meeting a good demand, with offerings of the latter running very light. Live poultry receipts were scant and in general a firm market prevailed, and advances noted on spring chickens and broilers. Turkeys, however, showed a sharp decline—shippers have been the principal suport of the market, and with big price reductions in East, their limits were necesarily on a lower plane.

Potatoes continued dull and weak under excessive offerings, while sweet potatoes met a fair demand at steady prices. Onions ruled weak under quiet demand. Pears and grapes were dull and weak with the offerings of the latter mostly out of condition. Yesterday's prices are as follows:

Butter, Eggs and Poultry.

EGGS—Fresh, firsts, 40c to 41c per doz. in shipping order; return cases ½c less; inferior quality discounted, according to condition.

BUTTER—Creamery extras, 44½c; firsts, 41c, seconds, 39c; ladies, 35½c; packing stock, 31c.

LIVE POULTRY—Fowls (hens), 18½c less than 4 pounds, 15c; spring chickens, 20c; broilers, 25½c; cocks, 15c; turkeys, 25c; turkeys, culls, 15c; ducks, 18c; geese, 15c to 17c; spring guineas, per dozen, $4.50; old, $3.50.

COTTON CLOSES 20 TO 40 POINTS UP IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Cotton recovered a good part of yesterday's losses during today's trading. The rumors that had been circulating on the sharp break of late yesterday proved to have been unfounded and there was a change on today's advance which carried January contracts up to 27.50c, or more than $2 per bale above last night's prices. The close was a few points off from the best under realizing, but the tone was firm at a net gain of 25 to 41 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 21 to 34 points. Press advices indicated that the meeting in Washington yesterday had been for other purposes than that of considering price regulation and many of yesterday's late sellers were buyers on the call. There was still more or less nervousness, however, and early fluctuations were very irregular with the market sagging off several points right after the opening.

December reacted from 28.08c to 27.95c, and March from 27.25c to 27.11c, but the market firmed up again during the middle of the morning and reached the highest levels in the late trading. This bulge followed receipt of a telegram from the president of the exchange, stating the conference attended by Cotton Exchange officials in Washington had been called only for the purpose of discussing the collection of war taxes. December sold up to 28.23c and March to 27.30c, with the general list showing net advances of 29 to 48 points.

There was scattered southern selling and realizing which was absorbed by trade buying and the covering of yesterday's sellers. Negotiations are reported in progress by agents of American and British Governments to change the agreed Atlantic freight rates on cotton. It appears that complaints have been made by southern shippers that the rates of $5 from northern ports and $6.25 from southern ports are working to their disadvantage.

Cotton futures closed steady; December, 28.16c; January, 27.48c; March, 27.27c; May, 27.14c; July, 26.90c.

Paris Market Quiet.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Rentes, 59 francs, 75 centimes. Exchange on London (unofficial), 27 francs 82½ centimes. Five per cent loan, 87 francs, 70 centimes.

$552,000,000 IN GOVERNMENT LIFE INSURANCE APPLIED FOR Amount Represents Little More Than Month's Operation of War Risk Act.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Applications for more than $552,000,000 of life insurance had been received today by the Treasury Department. This represents a little more than one month's operation of the war insurance act, by which soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses in active service, in addition to family allowances and death and disability compensation provided by the Government without charge, may buy Government life insurance. The sum represents 64,168 applications.

The average amount of insurance applied for, counting officers and men, is $8603. Applications are coming in at the rate of approximately 4000 or 5000 a day.

Whole Wheat Flour on Fair List.

The Sensible "Six"

Here Is Motor Car Value Not Yet Equalled

In the Oakland Sensible "Six" is offered the same features, the same qualities that are to be found in other motor cars selling for better than $200 more than the Oakland.

This is a fact that no motor car buyer can overlook. Price alone should not determine the choice of an automobile, but price can well be considered after other demands are satisfied. You and every other motorist want certain things in a motor car.

You want power, flexibility and fuel economy.

You want dependability—the ability to give service under all conditions.

You want comfort and the refinements that make motoring pleasurable.

In the Oakland Sensible "Six" you will find every one of these.

The Oakland high speed six-cylinder motor with overhead valves gives power; it gives flexibility and it is economical (18 to 25 miles per gallon of gasoline). Its sturdy construction gives dependability.

Long semi-elliptic springs make every roadway smooth to the occupants of the Oakland. Its interior body appointments are designed for comfort—every refinement is included in its standard equipment.

And its price is only $990 (F. O. B. factory).

No car within $200 of the same price approaches its standard. Even costlier cars no more than equal it.

If you are interested in saving $200 on your motor car, let us demonstrate the Oakland Sensible "Six" to you.

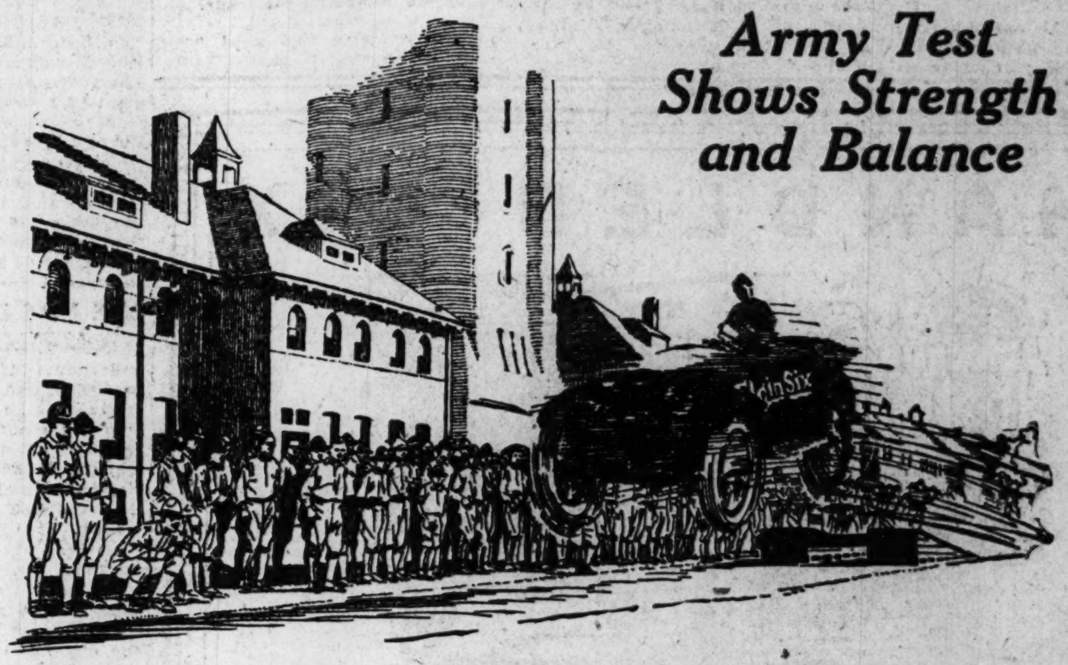
Army Test Shows Strength and Balance



Elgin Six Proves Ability to Jump Trenches

Hurdles 60 feet 5 inches through space, 4½ feet clear of the ground

U. S. ARMY officials and military experts at Fort Sheridan marveled at this wonderful performance that demonstrated the usefulness of the Elgin Six in modern warfare.

Speeding forty miles an hour, the Elgin Six leaped into space from the incline shown. Rising to a point 4½ feet above the ground it landed nearly 61 feet distant, undamaged and in perfect running condition, as shown by a technical examination.

This particular car is one of several Elgin Six stock touring cars that are making similar tests as part of their regular demonstrations in various parts of the country.

World's Record Jumper

The world's record long distance jump of 73 feet was made by an Elgin Six stock touring car at Belleville, Illinois, June 18, 1917.

Strength and Balance

No car could withstand such abuse, such metal-testing shock and strain, amounting to more than 18 tons of striking force, unless it were made of the best possible material, perfectly balanced and honestly built throughout.

The Elgin Six so combines light weight and strength as to secure absolute safety, durability and long life never before equaled in a car in its price class.

Elgin Six

"Car of the Hour"

The extraordinary demand that has required an increase in production from 724 cars the first season to 7,776 cars the second season PROVES that the car-buying public recognizes the superiority of the Elgin Six.

Highest Economy Honors

Perfect scores and highest economy honors have been won by the Elgin Six in many gruelling endurance contests it has entered.

25.6 miles per gallon average on a two days' trip in the Chicago Motor Club reliability contest is the astonishing economy record of three Elgin Sixes.

The new record breaking performance of the Elgin Six was in traveling 1,626 car-racking, stamina-testing miles between Chicago and Miami, Florida, in 67½ hours, over the steep, rocky, mountain grades of Kentucky and Tennessee, through the heavy sands of Georgia, and over the slimy, treacherous, swamp roads of Florida.

The U. S. War Department Elgin Six scout car and official road reporter traversed 6,202 miles of its 12,000 mile transcontinental run, averaging 19.4 miles to the gallon, from Chicago to San Francisco and return.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

VIOLENT SELLING CEASES IN STOCK MARKET, BUT PRICES ARE IRREGULAR

HIGHER FREIGHTS LIKELY

Indications Are That Interstate Commerce Commission Will Grant Increase.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"A good many people will think that Mr. Vanderlip overstated the case to the Interstate Commission yesterday—at least, in so far as he appeared to intimate that difficulties in raising money for corporations were peculiar to the railway companies. This is hardly the fact, as is proved by the very recent experience of strong industrial concerns, notably Bethlehem Steel.

"The argument might better have been rested on the paramount necessity that the railways, as an arm of the Government, in its war plans, should obtain the money necessary to their maintenance, whether they get it out of surplus earnings or from the money market.

"Much of the fortunes of the security market undoubtedly hangs on the Interstate Commerce Commission's decision regarding an advance in railway rates. The ramifications of the question are, in fact, unusually wide. Railway securities are the quarter in which the accruing capital of thrifty investors have by preference always been placed. Their price has declined severely, in the main, from causes other than unsatisfactory freight rates.

"But it is obvious that if, in addition to the diversion of investment capital into income, super taxes and Government war loans, the market value of such securities were by chance to be further depreciated because rates were not high enough to provide against the mounting outlay for taxes and cost of operation, it is not difficult to see what might be the effect on subscriptions to future war loans.

"When a would-be subscriber cannot raise his subscription money unless by realizing at a loss on such existing investments, he is apt reluctantly to give up the idea of subscribing.

Higher Rates Likely.

"This does not mean that it is any business of the Interstate Commission to go out of its way to help sustain prices. But it is at least bound to look at the surrounding circumstances, as every other Governmental price regulating board has done.

"It was possible for Mr. Hoover's commission to say that, since one dollar a bushel for wheat was enough to keep an industrious farmer, and would have been considered high enough for anybody before the war, the farmer should not sell his grain for more.

"The War Industrial Board was at liberty to say that $30 or $40 per ton for steel was a high enough price to keep a first-class mill running at a profit and that, therefore, that price should be the Government maximum. But the Food Board fixed a price above $2, not touched on the wheat market in the half century before this war, and the Steel Conference fixed the price at $47.50, not reached in the 25 years before 1916.

"No one expects the Interstate Commerce Commission to make any such concession in railway rates; the railways themselves have asked nothing of the sort. But the commission can, nevertheless, hardly overlook entirely the fact that the very conditions of price for labor and material, which were recognized in fixing Government prices for these other industries, prevail in the railway industry also, in addition to which, the railways have to face money market problems as the farmers certainly do not, and problems of vital service in the conduct of the war in the greater degree even than the steel markets.

The News From Russia.

"What influence today's real news from Russia, now that the curtain is lifted, will have on the general situation, it is too early to say. It was at least not unexpected, and there has for weeks been little doubt on one point—that financial judgment at any rate, had made up its mind that Kerensky had performed the one supremely important task, the restoration of political and economic order. This was the comment of both Lombard street and Wall Street at the time of the Korniloff demonstration.

"The single reassuring fact in today's dispatches, is their intimation that this failure to exercise strong and vigorous control was the reason for Russia turning against the Provisional Government. But if so, then financial judgment will now be equally based on the conclusion that no Bolsheviki Government can last, if it proceeds to put its fantastic notions into effect, and thereby increases anarchy.

"The markets, like the rest of the world, have yet to learn what is happening in this regard. It was a shrewd and practical Russian Empress who wrote at a precisely similar juncture in the French revolution, that the one absolute certainty of the situation was the strong man, with the army behind him, who would rise as the reconstructor of public order.

Curb Review.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—With the restriction of buying power becoming so pronounced in all security markets, it was natural that lower prices should be established in many of the issues traded in on the Broad street curb last week, but the tone of that market was fairly steady, with a rallying tendency in evidence, and lower prices when established were effective in bringing in an increased demand, causing quick and substantial rallies.

The number of stocks traded in was unusually large, including issues that have been neglected for a long period, an instance being Kresge Stores, which was dealt in from 72 to 60 with a rally to 65. Cities Service which sold down to 186 ex-dividend, later rallied to 192, and Everett and Heaney was in good demand and after dropping to 20 rallied to 20¾.

There was steady buying also of Triangle Film, which was partly based on knowledge of developments which are expected to strengthen the financial position of the company and add materially to its earning power. Announcement in regard to these developments is expected within a short time.

Scripps Booth Is Weak.

An interesting feature of the week's market was the trading in Scripps Booth, which fell from 5 to 1. This stock, when it first appeared on the curb, was traded in around 62. Chevrolet ranged from 65 to 54 and United Motor sold down from 16 to 14¼. Wright-Martin yielded from 7⅝ to 6¾, rallying to 7¼, and Curtiss Aeroplane sold at 27 to 26. Air Reduction was one of the weak features, yielding from 72 to 65. Aetna Explosives was firm with transactions at 5⅝ to 6⅝.

"The oil stocks were irregular, Houston Oil being strong and advancing from 17 to 19½, while International Petroleum declined from 11⅜ to 10. Midwest Refining had the widest range, declining from 117 to 106. Merritt yielded from 25¾ to 21½. Cosden sold at 7⅝ to 7¼.

Mining stocks were fairly active and were in good demand during the greater part of the week, although the high-priced issues reflected liquidation apparently due to weakened Stock Exchange accounts.

Emma Consolidated sold at 7-16 to 9-16, there being steady accumulation, based on an extent on the report made by the mine manager to the directors, which showed much progress, including the determination of the full extent and size of the Emma Bonanza, which is now under production, and attaching importance to tests now being made by diamond drills to establish the extent of other ore bodies belonging to the company.

Mason Valley was weak for a time, declining from 5 to 4, with a rally to 4½. Butte Copper and Zinc sold at 6½ to 5¾. New Cornelia was exceptionally strong, moving up from 14½ to 15¼. There was initial trading in Gibson Consolidated Copper, which showed activity and strength in the last half of the week, selling at 2.

Bonds were irregular, with Russian 5½s ranging from 62 to 66¼ and reacting to 63, and the 5½s advanced from 53 to 59, later reacting to 55. Canadian Government 5s were firm, with salesat 94½ to 94 94⅞.

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—"It is a trying week which ends today, with the chief relieving influences in the general tension the allied victories in Palestine and at Passchendaele, and the growing activity of America at the front. On Russia and Italy the best informed financial circles profess absolute inability to give an intelligent view.

"On the whole the city is prepared for continued chaos in Russia, and with possibly worse phases before the real turn for the better comes. With conditions what they are, the economic distress in Russia during the winter must be very great. Nevertheless, it is firmly believed that there will, in any case, be sufficient division of political forces in the country to prevent the effective conclusion of a separate peace.

"As for Italy, events are likely to develop more rapidly; but it is wholly impossible to forecast the direction which they will take. Two facts, as financial London reads the outlook, emerge from the week's developments. One is the probability of prolongation of war beyond previous expectations; the other, the likelihood of increasing power to the United States in the general war plans.

War to Be Prolonged.

"The City, which takes the long view, is inclined, after making all allowances for recent developments, to consider the growing co-operation of America and England as more important than all other factors. This is because it believes that the unity and combined power of the English speaking races will not only finally settle the war, but will determine the character of peace guarantees against another war and the manner of the reconstruction, both social and financial.

"Propoganda for the new war bonds shows signs of increasing vigor. In view of your plans for war savings certificates in small sums, your people schould be interested in knowing that £126,375,000 of our own similar issues have been sold since they were introduced early last year.

"This is a very reassuring fact, because such subscriptions represent actual new money, which would not have come into bank deposits, but represent the proceeds of private thrift.

"The Scandinavian exchanges have been affected this week by numerous influences, including peace rumors at Stockholm. But they were also probably manipulated in connection with a remittance to London of £6,000,000 sterling, against purchase of a large paper company by Scandinavian interests."

HIGHER PRICES THE RULE IN THE CORN PIT

Warm Weather Gives Buyers the Edge in Trading on Local Exchange.

Corn futures displayed considerable firmness in trading on the Merchant's Exchange last week, largely as a result of continued warm weather, which caused reports that the new crop was in poor condition, owing to excessive moisture in the grain. Trade also was bullishly influenced by continued high prices for cash grain and light movement from the farms, despite the record-breaking yield of corn forcasted by the Government.

At the moment interest in future trading centers largely in the price movement of the December option in Chicago before the option expires, as on the movement of this delivery may depend the changes in the other options until after the first of the year.

The price of Chicago December corn now is $1.20, and there is a maximum on trading of $1.28. With corn selling at $1.75 to $2, it is apparent that December must rise to $1.28 before the last day of trading, unless the cash market breaks to where deliveries can be made by shorts.

A rule of the Board of Trade has been that a trader in December corn can sell short and buy in, but cannot buy before selling; hence there must be a considerable short interest in the market for December corn, that will have to buy their way out in the pit before the option expires; and the only sellers that can supply grain for them to cover contracts are holders of long corn who bought before the ruling on selling was placed in operation. These long holders are said to be some of the biggest traders in Chicago.

If contracts cannot be adjusted below $1.28 in the open market, all trades must be settled automatically at that price on the last day of December, no matter what the cash market may be at the time, if it is above that price.

Oats were very strong throughout the week, and were influenced by large purchases for army needs. Export demands and small receipts also were market factors.

CORN MARKET SHOWS FIRMNESS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Corn prices averaged slightly higher today, in the absence of any pronounced selling pressure. Warm weather, with predictions of showers, tended to handicap the bears, as opposite conditions would improve the quality of the new crop. Car scarcity acted also as a factor in hardening values.

Opening quotations, which ranged from ¼c off to a like advance, with January $1.17¼ to $1.17½ and May $1.15¼ to $1.15⅝, were followed by a modest advance all around.

Hopes of larger receipts next week eased the market somewhat in the late dealings. Closing prices were steady, January, $1.17¼ to $1.17¼ and May $1.15⅝, with the market as a whole ½c off to ½c advance compared with yesterday's finish.

Moderate rallies which took place in provisions later were not well maintained.

Curb Bargains

At the present ridiculously low quotations we advise the immediate purchase of the following standard mining securities:

Acme Copper $1.75
Consolidated Copperminès 7.37½
Magma 35.00
Hecla 3.75

The above are real meritorious issues. By reason of the present unsettled market conditions, the prices are extremely low and these issues should be eagerly taken by shrewd, conservative investors.

We have prepared analytical reports on these companies that are free for the asking.

BIG BEAR OIL CO. STOCK BEST BUY IN WYOMING

Drillers and Refinery men of Casper, Wyoming, have bought over $30,000 worth of Big Bear stock. We are now in such excellent financial condition that we will soon stop selling Big Bear stock. Buy now at 12½ cents per share. This may be your last chance. We expect to strike the big oil sands in Well No. 1, down 1700 feet, in three weeks. Have no debts, own two rigs, truck, $14,000 worth of casing, paid over $10,000 on drilling contract, hold lease on 520 acres in famous Big Muddy pool and 160 acres in Cheyenne River pool, and have over $13,000 in banks and over $36,000 coming in in next three months. This rapid financing is due to the fact that it is a co-operative company, no officer receiving any salary or commission. Your money goes for actual drilling. Officers are efficient and reliable men. Because of the rapid sale of this stock, we offer it now at 12½ cents per share, reserving the right to reject your subscription and return your money if your subscription comes in after oil is struck or stock withdrawn from market. Stocks now selling for $40, at the start sold for 10 cents a share. Capitalization is only $500,000; stock full paid and non-assessable. Sold on monthly payment plan if desired. Drilling in the famous Big Muddy field, where all wells drilled to Wall Creek sands, with two exceptions, are over 500 barrels daily capacity. One 500-barrel well should make this stock sell in the dollars. If you want some stock at the 12½-cent price write at once. Get literature, bank references and map. Wm. G. Krape Inv. VILLA, AT BORDER, TELLS OF NEW PLAN TO 'SAVE REPUBLIC'

Bandit Leader, in Ojinaga, Asks All Carranza Soldiers to Join Him.

PRESIDIO, Tex., Nov. 17.—Wearing his campaign costume of hip boots, high Panama hat and flannel shirt, Pancho Villa is again in the saddle in Mexico at the head of a new revolutionary movement, which he calls El Partido de la Convention. His headquarters have been in Ojinaga, opposite here, since his troops captured the town from the Federals Tuesday night.

Villa now wears a black beard, a relic of his recent trip through Mexico to confer with his chieftains and heads of other movements who he claims to have corelated under his leadership for the first time in more than a year.

Villa today authorized the following statement for the Associated Press:

"Upon taking possession by force of arms of this town, which I found in the power of the so-called Constitutionalists, who criminally defended it for Venustiano Carranza, the traitor and despot, I think it my duty to make the following declarations in order that once more my aims and motives may be shown to the world to be patriotic and noble.

Plea to All Mexicans.

"First of all, I have no personal ambitions, but my earnest desire, which I have already expressed, is that my people may obtain unity and my country peace. To that end, I bring together the principal revolutionists who since 1910 have been striving to attain that end. Contrary to everything they have said of me, I wish to make it known that I will strive with valor and decision against the enemy, but I will be magnanimous in victory, the proof of which was the recent occurrence here of turning over to the Carranza Consul in Presidio, Tex., the Carranza wounded, who were made prisoners in Ojinaga, and also release of prisoners taken, incorporating them into our army because they decided they were on the wrong side.

"I wish now to make a solemn call to all Mexicans in general, and in particular to Carranza soldiers, to notice how I have conducted myself in comparison to the conduct of Francisco Murguia, in the State of Chihuahua, because these chiefs assassinate, rape and torment all those who fight against them, and are taken prisoner. In comparison to this, I offer all guarantees to friend and foe alike. I wish here also to make a formal and energetic protest before the Mexican nation and the world, of the inhumanity of the laws of suspension of guarantees just decreed by Carranza. I offer all guarantees that the said Carranza government has without conscience declared void. The Mexicans who are honorable and patriotic can come then to my side without fear, so that we may all unite and save the republic.

Denies He Asked for Peace.

"The papers of Mexico and the United States recently published in sensational form the notice that I was asking for peace with Carranza. I declare emphatically that this notice is false. Furthermore, I will never ask of Carranza more than before. Patriotism and justice above all. Because of this, I have striven, and will strive without rest, until I obtain it for all, whoever they may be, and above all my desire is to see the desert, the plains and mountains rise with men tired of the infamy of Carranza and his Ministers, and, repeating history, rise up against the traitors and punish them as they deserve.

During last July I made a statement which appeared in the American papers in which I invited Gen. Francisco Murguia to personal combat on ground of his own choosing, and to this day I have had no answer.

Seeks to "Unite People."

"I think the said General considers it beneath his dignity to accept the challenge, but the reason that guided me in my offer was to give him a chance to put an end to me, as he had often boasted he would do if he could get his hands on me. I am still waiting for the acceptance of my challenge, because he will be convinced that the outcome of this meeting will be on the side of right and justice, which are my guides.

"He has said many times that I am fighting for fortune only, but I wish to make it public on this occasion that I have never fought for fortune's sake, and it is absurd and ridiculous to accuse me of it.

"I repeat that my strongest desires are and will be to make happy and to unite the people of my country."

Villa and his personal command are spending the night in the hills south of Juarez, while Ojinaga is guarded by the troops of Porfirio Ornealas and Edelfonso Sanchez.

No attempt to cross the border was made today and none has occurred since Villa took Ojinaga. No fighting in the field has been reported.

Gen. Jose Murguia, commander at Juarez, was notified today that the present Villa movement had Juarez or Chihuahua City for its objective.

CATTLEMEN RESIST RATE RAISE

Taking of Testimony in Freight Advance Case Concluded.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Taking of testimony in the hearing of the 15 per cent advance freight rate case before the Interstate Commerce Commission was completed today, with the introduction of witnesses by shippers in an effort to show that the financial condition of the railroads is not as serious as had been contended and that an increase in freight rates now is unwarranted.

Representatives of Southwestern cattle interests testified that an increase in rates, even in Eastern territory only, would work a hardship on the industry which, they said, had been abnormally bad for two years. A telegram from Ike T. Pryor, president of the American Cattle Raisers' Association, stating that the supply of calves this year would be 40 per cent below normal, was read. Arguments will be heard Monday.

Central Hotel, Fourteenth and Chestnut streets. The girl told the police that Poe had brought her to St. Louis under promise of giving her a job at his home as a domestic.

Pastor's Sentence Affirmed.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 17.—A sentence of from three to 10 years in the Penitentiary against the Rev. S. S. Kregger because of misconduct when he was superintendent of the Greenville Orphanage, an institution of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was affirmed by the State Supreme Court here today.

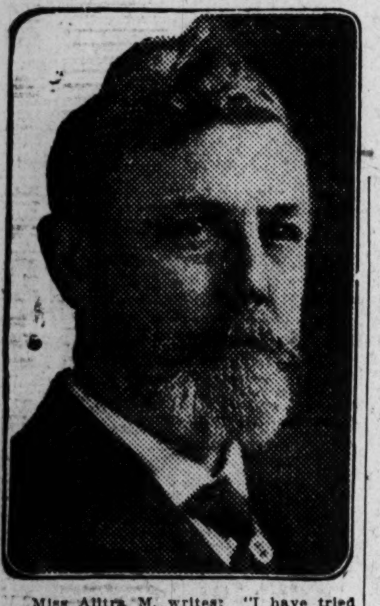
The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker



The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood streets, Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

Miss Alltra M. writes: "I have tried a number of fat-reducing remedies with no avail. A friend tells me that your prescription enabled her to reduce 24 pounds. Is it (five-grain arbolone tablets) safe for me to use likewise?"

Answer: If the simple directions are followed, five-grain arbolone tablets are safe in the reduction of abnormal fat. Thousands have been benefited that I know of.

C. M. C. asks: "Please relieve me of a coated tongue, foul breath, headache, constipation and general ill health."

Answer: If habitually constipated, you should take three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur) and arouse the organs which eliminate waste material from your body. These tablets purify the blood and improve the health by acting on the liver, kidneys and bowels. Obtain in sealed tubes with full directions.

John C. asks: "Will you please tell a young man how to increase his weight. I am so thin that it embarrasses me?"

Answer: If you have no serious organic trouble, I believe the regular taking of three-grain hypo-nuclene tablets will cause an increase in the weight of you or anybody who is abnormally thin. Don't expect to do so in a week or two. It takes time, but the help is worth time and money too.

John C. L. writes: "I find my strength and nervous system failing me. I do not recuperate as of yore. My food and rest seem not to benefit as they should. Am weak, despondent and unable to perform the duties which I formerly did, while my ambition for work is slowly going."

Answer: I think a powerful, harmless tonic and nervine medicine will rejuvenate and restore the functions of digestion, assimilation and elimination by invigorating the nervous system. Obtain three-grain cadomene tablets, packed in sealed tubes, and take as per directions accompanying.

"Morris" asks: "I have suffered with a chronic cough for almost a year, and catch a fresh cold every few weeks. Nothing the doctor gives me helps, so I write to you."

Answer: You need a thorough laxative cough syrup, one that not only relieves but surely drives it from the system. The following regularly used will oust any curable cough or cold promptly: Obtain a 2½-oz. bottle of essence mentho-laxene, mix it with a homemade sugar syrup or honey as per directions on bottle.

J. W. W. asks: "Can you prescribe a reliable treatment to get rid of dandruff, itching and feverish scalp?"

Answer: I know you can get instant relief and permanent results by using plain yellow minyol as per directions which accompany each 4-oz. jar.

Henry J. C. writes: "Something seems to be wrong with my system, and I don't know what it is. I have huge puffs under my eyes, my eyes are bloodshot in morning and my feet and ankles are swollen. Sometimes I have chills and feel weak and tired most of the time."

Answer: Your eliminating organs, such as liver and kidneys, are in need of treatment. Begin taking balmwort tablets at once. Get them in sealed tubes with full directions of any well-stocked druggist.

NOTE: For many years Dr. Baker has been giving free advice and prescriptions to millions of people through the press columns, and doubtless has helped in relieving illness and distress more than any single individual in the world's history. Thousands have written him expressions of gratitude and confidence similar to the following:

DR. LEWIS BAKER, Dear Sir: For the enclosed coupon and 2c stamp please send me your "Great Guide Book to Health and Beauty." I am not a regularly trained nurse, but have cared for invalids more than forty years, and would be glad to learn many things from your book for their benefit. I have cured myself and nearly 50 others with your wonderful prescription for Rheumatism, and am now taking the Balmwort Tablets for liver and kidneys. Thanking you, I am

Yours sincerely,
MRS. M. T. HUDGINS,
Orange, Texas.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

HEALTH HINTS.

SUB.—Cracked palms: After thoroughly washing hands at night with soap, rinse well and dry. Then rub palms with melted mutton tallow containing few drops of camphor.

X. Y. Z.—Head noises may be benefited by a small electric battery used in the ear. Apply a little 6 grains of ammoniated mercury to half an ounce of white vaseline to the nostrils twice a day. An operation shelling out the tonsils and adenoids and compressing the turbinate bone of the nose, is better. See Answers Oc. 8.

MRS. L. M.—At 170 blood pressure, massage may be taken safely. High blood pressure doesn't always mean the same unalterable thing. It may be a sign that the arteries have stiffened to such an extent that the heart has to overexert itself in its capacity of pump in order to get the blood through the arteries in sufficient volume and with sufficient speed. It may mean obstruction, and therefore diseased conditions in the kidneys. It may mean an improper condition of the blood itself—viscosity—the old-fashioned "thick blood" comes to life again as a reputable scientific fact. It may mean that the heart has become too big for its job, as when an "athlete's heart," trained to push a big stream, keeps on trying to do so when the demands of office work don't require it. And it may result from excessive pumping of the heart, due to excessive mental stimulation in the form of worry, or continuous mental or nervous strain. "Ice King" Morse was let out of Atlanta penitentiary because army surgeons found his blood pressure was about 250 millimeters, and had been very high several months (the normal is about 120 or 130.) Under those conditions they were justified by experience in telling President Taft that Morse would not live long if he were kept in prison. Avoid protein in food. Strouse blood-pressure diet: Cream soups, except cream of peas and beans. All kinds of fresh and stewed fruits. Vegetables: Potatoes, squash, carrots, beets, cabbage, cauliflower, sauerkraut, Brussels sprouts, lettuce, spinach, celery, romaine, watercress, artichokes, cucumbers, tomatoes, mushrooms, asparagus, radishes and onions. Sugar, in abundance. Bread: White bread toast, zwieback, crackers. Cereals of all kinds. Beverages: Water, milk, cocoa and buttermilk. Meat should not be allowed more than once a day, and then only in small quantity. Quantity of milk should be limited.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

STRANGER.—Lemon Pie: Make rich crust and bake first, pricking it all over carefully to avoid blistering. Set aside while filling is being made. Put into earthen stew crock 1 teacup granulated sugar. Grate over it the yellow rind of 1 lemon, being careful not to remove any of the white underneath. Cut lemon and squeeze juice over the sugar and grated rind. Mix 1 tablespoon (heaping) of cornstarch and a few spoonfuls of water. Add also 1 whole egg and yolks of 2 others, well beaten. Stir all together thoroughly. Pour over same 1 large teacup boiling water. Set on stove until it thickens, watching carefully and stirring at need. Cool somewhat and turn into the crust. Beat the 2 remaining whites, which must be kept very cold, to a stiff froth, add a heaping teaspoon of sugar, spread over top. Return to oven until of a delicate brown.

MISCELLANEOUS.

B. T. R.—Phone paper dealers. Mrs. Margaret Sanger lives at 246 W. 14th st., New York.

GRATEFUL.—Camouflage, Camoo-flazh; acent cam. The word itself, translated freely, means to conceal. Guns hidden beneath a mattress of interwoven leaves, supported by poles—"camouflage;" animated stacks of straw containing observers, who inch forward whenever possible, telephone wires trailing over the fields behind them—"Camouflage;" immense dummy cannon, mounted in conspicuous places, with stuffed gunners clustering about them, to draw the fire of the enemy—"camouflage;" in fact, anything and everything to throw dust into the eyes of the foe. Whole trains, backed on sidings, loaded with supplies, have been painted out of the landscape. Buildings, bridges, all the numerous and necessary impediments which go to make up the needs of vast armies have been "lost" to the enemy airman by the scientific use of broken color. Photographs have from time to time filtered through the censor to this country, showing the covering of white tents in the open country with mud; of the soldiers on the various fronts in their winter coats of white goatskins or sheepskin, invisible against the snow; destroyers painted with wavy lines and irregular masses of light and dark color; small things which give one an inkling of the various activities of the camouflage.

ANXIOUS.—Collocalia is the scientific name of the swallow-like bird that builds the edible nest, but to the general public it is better known under its common name of swift or swiftlet. The swiftlet is found in various Oriental regions, such as Java, Borneo and Ceylon. The nests are sliced and put into soups of various kinds, being prized as luxuries by the Chinese; both on this account and because of their unique origin they have been the subject of not a little inquiry. The nest when clean and of the best quality, has a white color of a somewhat fibrous texture. It is small, shallow and bluntly conical. E. L. Layard has vividly described those of the Ceylon species, noting the vast numbers which hang close together on the side of dim caves, the varying quality at different seasons, and also the nonsense that has been talked about them. "The white nests," he says, "are supplied entirely by the inspissated saliva of the bird, and are the first produced. They are taken and sold for their weight in silver. The next made by the birds are mixed with rootlets, grasses, etc., and often show traces of blood from the efforts of the birds to produce the saliva. These are esteemed second quality. The third nest is composed of extraneous substances cemented together for the rock with a little saliva—these are generally left for the bird to breed in, and are destroyed at the end of the season to compel the birds to build fresh white ones after their powers are recruited by a year's rest and stimulated by the breeding impulses." At the breeding season, the sublingual salivary glands in these swiftlets become enlarged and very active. They pour forth a viscid secretion, which soon hardens in the air. This is the chief constituent of the white nests. The first supposition was that of Horne, who supposed the secretion to be gastric; Bernstein, however, showed that it was salivary, and this is without doubt true in spite of more than one assertion as to vegetable character of the nest.

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my dear husband Edward Keller, who died Nov. 17, 1915.

Dearest Edward, how we miss you
Since from us you passed away,
Sad our hearts, but sweet the memory,
As we think of you today.

Sadly missed by
WIFE, MOTHER, SISTERS AND BROTHER.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Anna M. Kolley, who departed this life Nov. 11, 1916. Just one year ago you left us, how we miss you mother dear and remember all your kindness as we drop a silent tear. Sadly missed by her loving husband and daughters.

CHARLES KOLLEY, MRS. CARL E. HOLDEN AND MRS. JOSEPH VOTRUBA.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of our dear son and brother, Willie Dunwody, who departed this life so suddenly two years ago, Nov. 17, 1915.

Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear son and brother loved by all.
We never thought that on that day
Our dear Willie would be called away.
We miss his coming footsteps,
We miss him everywhere;
And our home is not what it used to be
Since our dear Willie is not there.

Sadly missed by his MOTHER, SISTER AND NEPHEW, NETTIE DUNWODY.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our sister, Anna Wacker, who departed this life one year ago, Nov. 13, 1916. May the name of Anna Wacker and memories of her beautiful life be engraved upon the hearts of those who loved her.

Forget you, no, we never will;
It was a bitter pain, a shock severe, to part with you we loved so dear.
It left us broken hearted.
Day by day we sadly miss you;
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sadness that's within our hearts concealed.

Sadly missed by
SISTER AND BROTHER.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my dear husband and our dear father, Henry Eirich, departed this life Nov. 17, 1916. Gone, but not forgotten.

Mother Is Right When She Exercises Unusual Care in the Selection of a Nurse.

A nurse is not altogether capable without a personality that affects the child in the right manner. The nurse can help unfold the child's better qualities or—sad to say, develop the others. Nurse hunting is too important to consider lightly. Let a POST-DISPATCH WANT AD bring mother the right kind of applicants to select from.

Phone the want—call 6600 Olive or Central—or leave the ad with your nearest druggist.

Demand Strong for Chow Dogs for Pets

The Chow is a dog that is acquiring a large measure of popularity in the large cities especially. He makes a fine pet. He is of rather small size. Has an abundant coat of beautiful hair, somewhat woolly. He is of a medium shade of brown, with slight variations in shade. His tail is carried practically on his back. He has a face of medium length, ears quite erect. He surely is an interesting little fellow. He always attracts rather more than his share of attention when he appears on the street, and he is an aristocrat, bringing a good price at the dog shop or in the fancier's kennel. The city dog stores usually want about $100 for a fair specimen, not a show specimen, and the demand is reported to be strong.

PROPER FEEDING ADDS TO PROFIT ON TURKEYS

Simple Methods Alone Needed to Insure Gain on Holiday Trade Fowls.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 17.—Simple methods of feeding will save considerable loss for the poultry producer who has been accustomed to market turkeys and geese without any special fattening, according to N. L. Harris, Superintendent of the Kansas State Agricultural College poultry plant.

The goose especially is easily fattened. The old-time method was to tie several geese to a stake in some quiet shady place and give all the finely ground grains they would eat readily. In from one week to 10 days the birds would put on large amounts of fat at a small outlay for grain. In recent years it has been the custom to place a few geese in a small yard with ample shade. A wet mash composed of 60 per cent finely ground corn meal, 30 per cent shorts and 10 per cent beef scrap is given. When possible the mash should be mixed with sour or buttermilk. By this method rapid gains are realized.

The turkey, being somewhat of a wild fowl, does not take kindly to small pens, and is usually fed on the range. Birds that are to be marketed for the holiday trade are given all the cracked corn they will eat twice a day. When freezing weather comes early and destroys insect life it is advisable to furnish some form of meat feed, such as commercial beef scrap, where birds can have easy access to it.

In case a local market is to be supplied it is possible to feed turkeys in crates. The birds are put in small crates in a quiet, protected building and fed three times a day on batter made of corn meal, low-grade flour, beef scrap and a small amount of bran mixed with buttermilk. This method is more expensive and only practical where special markets are to be supplied. The old range method of fattening is more desirable, as well as economical. Care should be taken to remove all breeding stock from the birds selected for market, as it is not desirable that those to be kept over should become too fat.

Produce Eggs at 17¢ a Doz.

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture at the Experimental Farm, Beltsville, Md., during the past year has proven conclusively that if you make your hens LAY instead of allowing them to LOAF you should be able to produce eggs at a food cost of about 16¾c per dozen, even at present feed prices—AND YOU CAN MAKE THEM LAY.

You may not do quite as well as the Government's experts but you can come mighty close to it by mixing daily with a good egg-making ration, at a cost of one cent a month per hen. Do this and we guarantee your flock will produce the extra eggs that bring the big profits.

Pratts Poultry Regulator is a concentrated tonic and conditioner—not a food. It makes the ration more effective, therefore cheaper. It strengthens and tones up the entire system in a natural way—sharpens the appetite and improves digestion—enriches the blood—regulates the bowels—insures perfect health—makes the egg-producing organs do full duty—brings a profitable egg-yield.

Our dealer in your town has instructions to supply you with Pratts Preparations under our square-deal guarantee—"Your money back if YOU are not satisfied"—the guarantee that has stood for nearly 50 years.

RABBIT EATS CHOICELY BUT FROM WIDE MENU

Bunny Will Consume Almost Anything a Goat Eats if Food Is Sanitary.

The feeding of rabbits is simplicity itself. There is nothing technical or complicated about it since rabbits will thrive on so large a variety of food. The old rule has it that rabbits will eat everything a sheep will eat, and the author of that rule might have added that they will eat almost everything a goat will eat, which it must be admitted "takes in a lot of territory." But while rabbits will eat nearly anything and everything that is edible, this does not mean that they will eat their food in any form or condition. They are fastidious as to their food, and are unwilling to eat anything in an insanitary condition.

To feed rabbits most economically a grower should select a well balanced variety of those feeds that are cheapest in his particular community. When one considers the great number of things a rabbit will eat, this will not seem a difficult thing to do. One rabbit breeder says that among the various things he has fed his rabbits, are the following: Cabbage, beets, purslane, carrots, tomatoes, lettuce, dandelion, clover, alfalfa, chard, bean and pea vines, stalks and husks of green corn, celery, cane, barley, oats, corn, kafir, buckwheat, sunflowers, pig weed, twigs of trees, rape, thistles, lilac bushes, wild lettuce, apples, and plums. This is only a partial list, he says.

A good ration for winter would be a grain such as oats, some cut clover or alfalfa hay, and beets or carrots for succulent feed. Any of the other feeds mentioned could be given and there would be an advantage in doing so because of the variety provided. But such feeds as the rabbits have not been used to should be given in small quantities, otherwise they may overeat. If to be added as a regular part of the ration, such a food should be fed sparingly at first, and the quantity gradually increased. A handful of grain a day should be enough for any rabbit, for that part of his ration. Oats and barley mixed make a good combination, or oats and bran. It is a good plan to feed bran in some form most of the time. They should have access to salt at all times, and there should be clean water for them always.

Rouen Duck Really Is Domesticated Mallard

Rouen ducks originated in France, as indicated by the name, but it has been in the hands of English breeders that they have attained their present large size and beauty of plumage. They are very large in size, the drakes weighing up to 9 to 11 pounds, and the ducks 8 to 10 pounds. In England the Rouen is very popular. In America it can scarcely be said that there are any popular ducks except the Pekin, though many fine specimens of the Rouen may be seen in this country. It must be admitted that the Rouen does not grow so rapidly as the Pekin, therefore the latter is ready for the market at an earlier age. As a table fowl the Rouen is unsurpassed. It is a hardy duck, perhaps hardier than the Pekin. It likes a home of woods and water. Both the drake and the duck look like the wild mallard in color, though in the best specimens the colors are more beautiful, and of course it is larger than the wild mallard. The Rouen is doubtless really a mallard duck domesticated and improved. The head of the drake is a dark, lustrous green. There is a white ring around the neck. The breast is claret in color, shading into light steel gray. The back and top of wings are brownish gray, penciled. The wing bar is a beautiful blue, edged with white, and this in turn is edged with velvety black. The color of the female is more sober, but in the best specimens the color is beautiful, when finely and correctly penciled. In general the color is a penciling of lighter and darker shades of brown. Few domestic fowls are more beautiful than the Rouen duck. It would be unfortunate if interest in this duck should be allowed to lapse entirely.

St. Louis Poultry Show Premium List Ready

The St. Louis Poultry Breeders' Association's premium list will be out on Nov. 20. The managers have endeavored to make this as attractive as possible, and believe, from the requests that are coming in for copies, that they will have the largest entry of birds ever shown in St. Louis.

Word has been received that Judge Edward Joynson of Brickeys, Mo., formerly of Lancaster, England, will be able to assist with our judging this year, and he has been assigned to the regular staff.

The leading poultry houses and seed houses of St. Louis will be able to furnish copies of the entry lists as they will have a supply on hand. James J. Long, 4115 Louisiana avenue, is secretary.

O'Fallon, Ill., Poultry Show.

Premium lists have been distributed by the directors for the eighth annual exhibition of the O'Fallon, Ill., Poultry Association at O'Fallon, Dec. 11, 12, 13, 14. H. C. Poigner is secretary.

NEW YORK PAYS MANY PRICES FOR ITS EGGS

Cost Is Based on Freshness, Color, Size and Uniformity of Product.

In New York the most astonishing range of prices prevails for eggs. The difference between the best and the poorest eggs—all claimed to be good, of course—is as much as 30 to 35 cents per dozen on any one day. Recently in New York eggs could be bought for 49 cents. For others 85 cents were asked. The differences in eggs in New York are great in size, color and uniformity, as well as in age. The highest priced eggs are selected individually, all white, uniform in color, larger in size than the average and strictly fresh. Brown eggs of similar size and freshness bring from 5 to 10 cents less.

The cheapest eggs are rather small in size, of various colors and either storage eggs or not as "young" as they might be, but even these eggs are fairly good eggs, it being against the law to sell really poor eggs.

These refinements in classification in New York are due to the immense quantity on the market, to the character of the stores themselves and to the tastes and buying ability of the customers. In one store recently the best eggs sold for 85 cents. Next door in a grocery store of lower class eggs which seemed to be of the same quality sold for 65 cents. In New York there seems to be no longer a ruling or standard price for eggs. Prices appear to be quite arbitrary. While on the whole eggs sell usually for more in New York than in Western cities, yet it appears that in Chicago prices have been advancing more rapidly than in New York. This applies to eggs and to other food commodities.

Co-operative Selling Raises Egg Profits

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 17.—Kansas farmers can make the egg business more profitable by forming associations of 10 members and shipping their eggs to markets that pay a higher price than the local market will offer, asserts N. L. Harris, superintendent of the Kansas State Agricultural College poultry farm.

In an association of 10 farmers who crate and ship their eggs twice a week there would be no extra expense except the cost of shipping, which would not be more than 1 cent a dozen, and the farmer could get from 3 to 5 cetns more for his eggs.

One member of the association should keep himself posted in regard to the egg markets in surrounding towns and cities. Good markets can be found readily within a redius of 50 miles from the shipipng point at hotels, cafes, restaurants and grocery stores in the larger towns or cities. These places are glad to buy fresh eggs from the association, and will pay a good price for them. Merchants are especially eager to buy infertile eggs direct from the farmer and are willing to pay a premium for them because they do not spoil easily and there is little loss in handling them.

Messenger Pigeons Still Have Their Uses

In Europe on both sides of the war considerable use is made of carrier or homer pigeons. The telephone, the telegraph and the airplane have not caused the pigeon to be discarded. The Belgians probably paid more attention to pigeon flying than any other people before the war. The United States army has an officer in charge of pigeons. The British army has probably made the largest use of pigeons in this war. The difficulties attending the use of pigeons have increased, due to the carrying power of modern rifles. Of course the Germans try to bring down all the British pigeons in sight and many are lost in this way. When a small detachment of soldiers make a raid on enemy trenches pigeons are taken along, with the idea that if the soldiers do not get back and if other means of communication are not available, a pigeon may take back news from the soldiers who did not return. In one raid by Irish soldiers recently upon a German trench a number of pigeons were taken along. The only member of the party that ever came back was one lone pigeon carrying a message which did not give any real information, but which said that the soldier was tired carrying the pigeon coop and was turning the pigeons loose. The pigeons are said to become rather easily accustomed to war conditions and pay little attention to the sights and sounds of battle. They preserve their homing instinct, no matter what happens.

Whitewash Needed in Hen Houses in Winter

It is good to keep the interior of the poultry houses whitewashed at all times and it is most important in winter when it is likely to be neglected. It is important because the birds are confined more closely. It will make the houses lighter, and it will help to keep down lice and disease germs. It is cheap and easily applied. Use the following proportions: Slake one bushel of good stone lime in boiling water, keeping it covered while slaking. Add a gallon of salt dissolved in water, then add three pounds of ground powdered Spanish whiting and one pound of clear glue dissolved in warm water. Mix thoroughly with the slaked lime and let it stand for several days.

NO ARBITRARY HALTING OF NONESSENTIAL INDUSTRIES

They Will Have Hearing Before Elimination to Save Fuel and Rail Transportation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Arbitrary elimination of industries regarded as nonessential to save coal and rail transportation will be undertaken by the Government only after every business threatened has been given a full hearing.

This was made clear today by Robert S. Lovett, Director of Priority of Transportation, and Fuel Administrator Garfield, in statements replying to the recommendation of the Railroad War Board that coal and transportation be denied immediately to more than 500 commodities.

Lovett declared that he contemplated no early action designed to cut off transportation to any industry. He added, however, that conditions might change.

Dr. Garfield said: "If voluntary economy on the part of industrial and domestic consumers, added to the increased coal production of 1917, which will reach a total of over 50,000,000 tons, does not provide fuel enough for the war and to keep our people warm, there will come a time when some limitation will have to be imposed upon manufacturers of nonwar products. In such an event, the business world may feel sure that all the bearings of such limitations will be given thorough consideration and that the necessary coal will be obtained with the least possible interference with industry."

29,650 SOLDIERS PASSED THROUGH HERE IN OCTOBER

Several Companies of Canadians, Assigned as Instructors at Cantonments, Among Them.

Troop trains bearing 29,650 soldiers, among them several companies of Canadian Infantrymen and aviators, passed through St. Louis en route to American cantonments in the South and Middle West during October, according to a report made yesterday to the St. Louis Railroad Committee on National Defense by Dr. Rubens Humphrey of the Railroad Y. M. C. A.

Seventy St. Louis women, volunteer workers for the Y. M. C. A., have daily visited the railroad yards and distributed thousands of safety razors, cigarettes, boxes of candy, cakes and other comforts and souvenirs among the troopers.

The Canadian soldiers have been assigned as instructors to the military training camps in the Southwest. The Y. M. C. A. contributed to the comforts of these men materially, Dr. Humphreys said, by exchanging their Canadian money for United States Currency.

Woman engaged in providing comforts for the troops passing through St. Louis are divided into 14 committees. Two committees, divided into 8-hour shifts, are on hand daily to meet the trains. These shifts, on duty as early as 6 a. m., often work until 10 p. m. and later, visiting the soldiers.

ST. LOUISAN FIRST WOMAN TO HEAD MISSOURI TEACHERS

Kansas City Convention Elects Miss Tillie Gecks and Picks St. Louis for Next Meeting.

Miss Tillie C. Gecks of 3934 Cleveland avenue, primary supervisor of the St. Louis Public Schools, was elected president of the Missouri State Teachers' Association yesterday, by unanimous vote of the organization, at its meeting in Kansas City. She is the first woman who has ever been president of the State organization.

Miss Gecks has been connected with the St. Louis schools for five years. The next convention of the association is to be held in St. Louis Nov. 17 to 19, 1918. The other newly elected officers are: Vice presidents, J. M. Wood, of Columbia; W. H. Zeigel, of Kirksville, and L. Theilman, of New Madrid; members of Executive Committee, Misses Elizabeth Buchanan, of Kansas City, and Elizabeth White, of Nevada.

A telegram sent by the teachers' association to President Wilson said, "We regret that there are some in this country who think that freedom is not worth fighting for, and that even among our national lawmakers there are those who oppose the Government in its effort to prosecute the war successfully."

DOCTOR WITH 12TH ENGINEERS FIRST TO SEE THE TRENCHES

Dr. H. S. Crossen of St. Louis Is Collecting War Souvenirs and Has Nearly Truck Load.

Dr. Harry S. Crossen of 5423 Bartmer avenue, who is now behind the British lines in France with the Twelfth Engineers as a Captain in the medical reserve, spends most of his spare time collecting souvenirs of the war, according to a letter received by Maj. Kuhlman at Jefferson Barracks, from Maj. A. S. Bowen, chief of the medical staff of the engineers.

Referring to Capt. Crossen, Maj. Bowen writes:

"Now that I have put Dr. Crossen out with a couple of companies, he gets more enjoyment from the experience than any other two men. Between times he makes excursions about the country and comes back loaded with souvenirs, rifles, bayonets, gas masks, ammunition, shrapnel, fuses, hand grenades, pieces of shell and fragments of an airplane. He already has a packing box full, and will soon require a truck of his own at the present rate. He was the first one to see the front line trenches one quiet day."

Evangelist Dies in Illinois.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Nov. 17.—The Rev. Hay Bell, widely-known evangelist, died at a hospital here today, aged 54. He gave up law practice in 1880 to become a Presbyterian minister. One brother, Paul Bell, of St. Louis, survives.

BAKERS UNCERTAIN ABOUT BREAD PRICES AFTER DEC. 10

Large bakeries of St. Louis are uncertain as to the price at which bread will be retailed after Dec. 10, when the Food Administration's regulations prescribing the size of the loaf and the proportion of ingredients become effective. A. F. Welle, president of the American Bakery Co., which controls seven of the largest bakeries, said yesterday, however, he desired housewives to be prepared for a change in the texture and flavor of bread.

He pointed out that under the limitation upon the amount of sugar, milk and shortening to be used in bread the product will be less rich, but as nutritious as that made at present.

"The matter of price," he said, "will have to work itself out according to the cost of materials and labor in making the bread by the Government formula. There is likely to be a difference in the price at the store and delivered to the home, as the regulations provide for an extra charge for wrapping and delivery."

The regulations provide that the standard loaves must weigh one pound, two pounds and two and a half pounds. This must be the weight 12 hours after baking. One large grocery company, which operates a chain of stores, advertises that it already has adopted the "war formula." It is making a two-pound loaf, with a crease in the middle, so that it may be divided into two one-pound loves. The two-pound loaf sells for 14 cents.

SISTERS WHO WERE PUT OFF TRAIN SUE FOR $5000 EACH

Allege They Were Compelled to Carry Baggage Long Distance After Getting On Wrong Train.

Mrs. Susie Stoney of 3424 Morgan street, and her sister, Mrs. Mary Epps of Kansas City, each filed suit yesterday against the Frisco Railroad for $5000 damages, alleging that they were put off a Frisco train Sept. 25, last, late at night, between Shrewsbury and Lindenwood, and it was 11:30 p. m. before they found their way to a street car to return to the city.

Their attorney, I. H. Gamble, said that they bought Frisco tickets to go to Fairview, Mo., and were told that their train would leave Union Station at 8:50 p. m. This, he said, was the train from which they later were ejected by the conductor, who told them it was a through train and did not make connections with the train for Fairview. The plaintiffs say they were compelled to carry heavy baggage a long distance to an electric line.

DETECTIVES BEING SHAVED GRAB MAN WANTED HERE AS FORGER

Officers Jump From Chairs as Former Convict Walks Into Barber Shop.

Jesse B. Level, a former convict, walked into a barber shop near Union Station yesterday. Two detective sergeants who were being shaved recognized him. They jumped from their chairs and grabbed him.

Level had registered as "J. B. Wilson" at the Pontiac Hotel and was wanted for cashing a forged check in a restaurant at Delmar boulevard and De Baliviere avenue. He had been released from the penitentiary Oct. 2, after serving several years for forgery.

When the police searched him they found a pint bottle containing a mixture of whisky, rock candy and prussic acid. Asked what he intended doing with this Level said he had intended ending his life with it, if arrested.

MAN WHO FAILED TO QUALIFY AS BONDSMAN IS ON 8 BONDS

East St. Louis Justice Says He Felt Sure Clerk Would See That Women Appeared for Trial.

An investigation by a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday revealed that Christ Rohm, a clerk for the Illinois Central Railroad in East St. Louis, is on the bonds of eight women charged with being frequenters of resorts, although he did not qualify as a bondsman. The bonds of the women total $1000. Justice J. C. Brady accepted the bonds.

Brady admitted that Rohm had not qualified. He said he considered the charges against the women merely misdemeanors and that he felt sure Rohm would have them in court when their cases come up.

MAN HELD ON SHORTAGE CHARGE

Former Salesman, Brought From Kansas City, Denies Guilt.

Henry Huettemann, formerly of 3845 McDonald avenue, was brought back from Kansas City yesterday on a charge of embezzling $294.73 from the St. Louis Coffee and Spice Mills, for which he was a salesman. A surety company caused the arrest.

Huettemann denied the charge. He said he had given up his position about a year ago because of illness. He was not aware, when he left the city, that he was short in his accounts, he said, and offered to immediately make restitution.

NEW MEANS OF COMMUNICATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Advices received from Tokio today state that the Japanese Department of Communications has announced the invention of a method by which communication can be made freely between an ordinary telephone wire system and a wireless system.

An official, speaking of the invention, said it was the result of the studies of two experts, Tonegawa and Torigata. He added that a few years ago a similar attempt was made by an American expert who has not yet announced the completion of his invention.

FRENCH AMAZED BY U. S. DEMOCRACY

Poilu Mistakes Gen. Bullard for Sergeant and Gets Job as Gun Instructor.

By LINCOLN EYRE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

AMERICAN FIELD HEADQUARTERS, Oct. 30.—Nothing has contributed more toward the popularity of American troops in France than the democratic behavior of their officers. I witnessed a delightful sample of this the other day in the city in which Major-General Robert Lee Bullard has his headquarters. Privileged to accompany the General to a charity performance at the local theater, I was standing with him and two of his officers in the lobby during the intermission, when a poilu hove into view.

The Frenchman, who wore medals for valor, and stripes showing he had thrice been wounded, had evidently consumed a goodly quantity of wine. Afterward we learned it was his first day out of hospital, and naturally he had celebrated a bit.

"Ah, voila des Americaines!" he exclaimed joyously. "I'm indeed glad to see you, old chap," he went on, shaking the General's hand vigorously. "It's the first time Ive met an American, though I heard a lot about you in the hospital. Welcome to France! When are you coming into the trenches with us?"

Speaks Good English.

With that he plunged into a long account of his experiences, delivered in good English, which he said he had learned during a trip through the United States five years before.

Gen. Bullard listened smilingly and kept on smiling even when the Poilu clapped him on the back and called him his "side partner" and invited him to have a drink.

"Another time; thank you very much," said the General.

The soldier strolled off. In two minutes he was back again, but this time he drew himself up at attention and gave a flourishing salute.

"Excuse me, sir," he said, "they tell me you're a General. Is that true?"

"Yes, that's so," Gen. Bullard replied, still smiling.

"Well, then, sir, all I can say is I beg your pardon. I thought you were a Sergeant, sir, the same as I am. I'm not used to your American uniforms."

"What do you do at the front, Sergeant?" the General asked.

"I'm a machine gunner, sir."

"And you've been to America?"

"Yes, sir."

"Would you like to act as instructor to some of our machine gun men?"

The Poilu was overwhelmed. It must be explained that practically every man in the French army who speak English has applied for one job or another with the Americans. And he was an American Major-General, whom he had taken for a mere Sergeant, inviting him to do what hundreds of French officers are vainly asking for.

"You bet your life I would," the Poilu fairly yelled, again seizing the General's hand.

"Come to my office tomorrow and we'll be about it."

The Poilu came.

TWO MEN SECRETLY HELD IN CHICAGO BOMB INQUIRY

Arrested by Federal Authorities—One Is German Scene Painter in Auditorium Theater.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—After the arrest of two men, one of them a German named Mueller, employed as scene painter at the Auditorium theater, Federal authorities said tonight they thought they were on the trail of the persons who conspired to create a panic at the operatic performance in the theater last night by the explosion of a bomb. An examination of the bomb, which was made from a piece of two-inch pipe, revealed that it contained 15 buckshot, and enough gunpowder to have caused a considerable explosion if it had been ignited.

The Federal authorities refused to disclose the cause of the arrest of the two men, who are held in custody in some secret place.

"I think the placing of the bomb was the work of an insane joker or a crank," said Chief of Police Schuettler.

THREE BARRIE PLAYS ATTRACT SMALL CROWDS TO JEFFERSON

Although the three Barrie plays, produced at the Jefferson Theater the past week, were praised by those who saw them, the attendance was small to a degree which was disappointing to the management. Last night's audience, which did not more than half fill the lower floor, was said to be about as large as any previous one in the week, which began with Monday night's performance.

Barrie's play, "A Kiss for Cinderella," is to be at the Jefferson later in the season. The management hopes that if this play, which is perhaps Barrie's most brilliant work, does not suffice to draw people, the reputation of the star will do so. Maude Adams is the star in "A Kiss for Cinderella."

Nine Killed in Collapse of House.

MONTREAL, Nov. 17.—Nine persons are believed to have been killed tonight when an old house in Canning street collapsed. Several others were injured seriously. The bodies of a man and a girl, 13 years old, have been found in the ruins.

BANKER BUYS 140-ACRE HOME SITE IN COUNTY

B. B. Brinkman Pays $100,000 for "Brownhurst" Estate of Retired Capitalist on Denny Road, Including 3500 Orchid Plants and Extensive Orchard.

OTHER COUNTRY SALES ANNOUNCED

Range Company Official Becomes Owner of Large Site in Hampton Park, Constructed Through Consolidation of Four Adjoining Properties.

"Brownhurst," the imposing country estate of Daniel S. Brown, a retired capitalist, located on the west side of Denny road, has been purchased by Benjamin B. Brinkman, vice president of the Lafayette-South Side Bank.

The price paid, including 3500 orchid plants, which were sold separately, according to Cornet & Zeibig, who effected the sale, was $100,000.

The tract comprises 140 acres and is improved with a handsome stone residence with a large conservatory, and numerous outbuildings, including a chain of modern greenhouses.

There are also to be found on the premises fruit trees of numerous varieties, these having been carefully selected and planted by Brown 25 years ago, when he began the development of "Brownhurst." Artificial lakes and drives acentuate the charm of the place, which is attractively situated midway between Kirkwood and Sunset Inn.

The purchase was made by Col. Brinkman for investment and as a country residence, according to Ralph Coale, salesman for Cornet & Zeibig, who was active in the transaction.

Other Country Sales.

Other country homes recently sold by Cornet and Zeibig include Kellerbrae, the former home of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Keller, opposite the Midland Valley Golf Club, that of Paul Bakewell Jr., on the Clayton road; the Battle home, on the Ladue road, and the Clymer tract, the latter being purchased by the Log Cabin Club, which occupies it.

Deeds conveying the Nolker residence, at the southwest corner of Lindell boulevard and Taylor avenue, to Julius S. Walsh Jr., chiarman of the board of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., were filed yesterday. This house, which originally cost $150,000 and which is one of the show places of Lindell boulevard, will become the home of Walsh, who has turned it over to Marx & Jones, decorators, to whom he has given a free hand.

John S. Carter & Co. announce the sale of a beautiful tract of land comprosing nearly six acres, together with the modern 14-room residence of Herbert S. Gardner, locaed in the subdivision managed by them, known as Hampton Park, lying on the south line of the Clayton road, between Pennsylvania avenue and the Hanley raod.

Four Properties Consolidated.

The property was sold to E. R. Culver, vice president of the Wrought Iron Range Co. and was purchased from four separate owners. A tract of about one acre lying on the west side of Hampton Drive was acquired from L. B. von Wiese; the Gardner property, adjoining it on the south, comprising about one and one-half acres improved with a large modern dwelling, recently redecorated; also a tract of about one and three-quarter acres adjoining on the south acquired from Mrs. A. J. Ruhl, and a tract of about two acres adjoining on the south acquired from the Clayton Road Realty Co.

These extensive grounds will be improved, and when completed will comprise one of the handsomest suburban residence parks adjacent to the city.

The Fletcher R. Harris Realty Co. has affected a lease on the ground floor of the Jaccard Building, at Broadway and Locust street to the Gibson Co., for a women's ready-to-wear clothing store.

This store has long been considered one of the most attractive retail quarters in the downtown district.

$19,498,364 ADDED TO CAPITAL IN INDUSTRIES OF ST. LOUIS IN 10 MONTHS

Chamber of Commerce Industral Commissioner Says Figures Mark One of Greatest Advances the City Has Ever Made.

St. Louis has added $19,498,364 to the manufacturing capital represented in the industries of the city, erected and occupied 3,300,000 square feet of industrial space and reoccupied more than 2,200,000 additional square feet vacant for a more or less long period, during the first 10 months of 1917.

"This, I believe, marks one of the greatest industrial advances the city has ever made," said E. Gengenbach, Industrial Commissioner of the Chamber of Commerce, who announced the foregoing facts and figures following a conservative survey of strictly industrial expansion.

"This analysis of growth follows a preliminary and intensive campaign on still greater expansion based on an intelligent understanding of the entire situation. The figures given are the result of developed increases among home industries and it is notice to the world that St. Louis is successful."

Clothing, dry goods, etc	$ 2,448,600
Food products	2,425,000
Iron articles and machinery	3,083,354
Automobiles and accessories	1,526,000
Electrical	3,354,000
Chemicals	504,510
Publishing and printing	1,133,000
Forest products	362,000
Miscellaneous	4,662,000
Total	$19,498,364

Reflects Territory Growth.

"This expansion is based upon the growth and prosperity of St. Louis rich trade territory—the territory which encloses the center of all the principal agricultural industries, together with the leadership in oil, lead, zinc and timber," Gengenbach said. "The entire world today is bidding for these commodities, and to produce them requires machinery, clothing, housing and a vast variety of supplies. To manufacture and furnish these supplies is the industrial duty of St. Louis.

"There is a decided tendency on part of the majority of industries to considerably reduce the ratio of capital investment in buildings and ground, and increase the percentage of liquid asset and investment in machinery supplies and working capital, which means that an increasing number of industries will seek rental quarters. It is plainly evident that the real estate business has before it some highly important constructive work and that our realty people will be more closely identified with the industrial work than ever before. The problem before them is one that will bring out the widest knowledge and understanding of the St. Louis situation industrially. As a great distributing center, many industries will exist and grow here doing a less-than-carload business.

New Type of Structures Required.

"Modern manufacturing practice and the higher demands on speed and efficiency are calling for an entirely different type of structure than has existed for years. The immediate future should see much of our property east of Grand avenue replaced with modern daylight-type factory structures. With more than 5,000,000 square feet filled up this year, the opportunity for construction of such buildings seems evident. Industries today are all being pressed for production. They haven't time, nor liquid capital to stop for construction purposes, but make the property ready for immediate production and it is then available industrially. Side-track property, or course, is always preferable.

"The cost of building materials ought to be no permanent barrier; production of materials is rapidly increasing and the curvature of supply and demand are closer than for some time. Both are on a higher level, of course, but the answer to our increased cost is the increased return which enterprise can always develop out of modern facilities put into use. All around this is the most productive solvent, solid trade territory, and only partially developed.

"This country can be better served with respect to cost of production, fuel, transportation and materials from St. Louis than from any other city. With such figures as we have shown and other data concerning special industries, we are calling a personal attention to these facts of the manufacturing executives of more than 1000 of the largest industries in the United States."

ST. LOUIS FIRM GETS CHICAGO CONTRACT FOR FURNISHINGS

Stix, Baer & Fuller, proprietors of the Grand Leader, have been awarded the contract to furnish the Wrightwood apartments, in process of construction at Wrightwood and Pine Grove avenues, Chicago.

As was told in the Post-Dispatch, the owners of the Wrightwood apartments came to St. Louis several weeks ago at the instance of James M. Rohan, vice president of the Title Guarantee Trust Co., whom they had met in Chicago, to inspect the Westmoreland Hotel apartments, nearing completion on the south side of Berlin avenue, west of Union boulevard, and which have been furnished by Stix, Baer & Fuller. The result of their visit to St. Louis was that J. Goldsmith, manager of the House Furnishing Department of the Grand Leader, was summoned to Chicago and his firm was given the contract, providing for an expenditure of $40,000, to duplicate in the Wrightwood the furnishings of the Westmoreland Hotel apartments.

The unit apartments, such as the Westmoreland, according to Sigmund Baer, are destined to predominate in the larger cities.

"The Westmoreland," said Baer, "constitutes an ideal domicile for young couples, or for married persons without or averse to children. It is a hotel and apartment in one. The arrangements of the suites is superb, while all the rooms are outside rooms, affording abundance of light and ventilation. An attractive feature of the Westmoreland is a roof garden, which will be a source of pleasure to its tenants in the summer. The location, adjacent to Forest Park and in the midst of the most exclusive residential district in the city, is ideal."

The home of Sigmund Baer, which is noted for its sunken garden, is at the southwest corner of Union and Waterman avenues, almost within throwing distance of the Westmoreland apartments.

The Westmoreland is being erected by the Sam Koplar Real Estate & Building Co., a client of the Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co. The suites are being leased furnished or unfurnished.

VACANCIES ON SOUTH SIDE DISAPPEARING RAPIDLY

Overflow of Renters From West End Taking Flats, Says Ferd Dauemer.

According to Fred Dauemer, manager of the renting department of the Henry Heimenz Realty Co., the overflow of tenants from the West End is beginning to absorb the vacancies of the modern flats on the South Side, and as a result, rent signs in this section of the city are rapidly pisappearing. Renting of apartments on the South Side, especially in the Shaw's Lafayette addition and in Tower Grove Heights, is rapidly depleting the supply of homes of this type in this section. There is, however, an ample supply of modern houses and dwellings in this part of the city, which prospective renters will find attractive, and which it seems soon will be the only available kind of home.

FLOOR IN MORTON BUILDING LEASED BY HAT COMPANY

Martin Trepp, Real Estate Concern, Closes Deal for 7500 Square Feet of Space.

Martin Trepp Real Estate Co. has closed a lease for the eighth floor of the Morton Building, 1116-18-20 Washington avenue, to the Progressive Hat Manufacturing Co., which manufactures women's hats and men's and boys' caps. The firm is now located at 1006A North Eighth street, where it has 3000 square feet of floor space. The firm will take possession of the new quarters, which contains 7500 square feet, about Dec. 1.

This is the second loft leased in the Morton Building through the efforts of Martin Trepp Real Estate Co., which recently leased the second floor of this building to the Siegfried-Maltz Pants Manufacturing Co.

The lease was closed for the account of the Morton estate which was represented by the St. Louis Union Trust Co.

RECORD IN BANK CLEARINGS

A record week in bank clearings, with a total business of $189,723,401, was reported yesterday by the St. Louis Clearing House Association. The Saturday clearings alone were $27,046,609.

The previous record was for the week ending Oct. 20, when the clearings were $159,281,061. First payments on Liberty Bond purchases are largely responsible for the record clearings, bankers explained.

OIL INSPECTOR HERE TUESDAY

STURGEON, Mo., Nov. 17.—Omar D. Gray, State Superintendent of Petroleum Oils, reported tonight that in the week ended Nov. 17 his department had broken all records for collections in the nine years it has existed, with $10,311.48. Gray has instituted the inspection of oil measuring stations. Deputies have examined more than 300 of these stations in the last 20 days, and a shortage of 26 per cent was discovered, according to the report. Gray will go to St. Louis Tuesday to appeal to the railroad heads to help him make his department more efficient by reporting weekly the shipments of oil in barrels or carload lots to stations in Missouri.

$10,000 Fire in East St. Louis.

The plant of the All-Roofing Manufacturing Co., 1843 Converse avenue, East St. Louis, was damaged about $10,000 by fire yesterday afternoon, when sparks from a switch engine are said to have set fire to weeds near the plant. The fire spread to two warehouses containing material from which roofing paper is made. The fire will not interfere with filling Government contracts.

DRIVE PLANNED TO RAISE $25,000 FOR REALTY CONVENTION

W. A. Giraldin Accepts Finance Committee Chairmanship and Gets Support Pledges.

BLOCK SYSTEM CANVASS

Not Less Than 3000 Delegates Expected for Gathering Here June 17-20.

William A. Giraldin, president of the Giraldin Bros. Real Estate Co., a former president of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, now a member of the Police Board and president of the Rotary Club of St. Louis, has accepted the chairmanship of the Finance Committee of the local Exchange for the 1918 convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, which will be held here June 17 to 20 inclusive. Giraldin succeeds Theodore Hemmelmann Jr., who recently resigned the seat.

The goal of the Finance Committee is $25,000, with which to handle the largest convention in the history of the national association, as well as the largest convention to be held in St. Louis during the coming year. An attendance of not less than 3000 delegates is expected.

The committee has been assured of the solid co-operation of the Real Estate Exchange as well as the St. Louis Conventions and Publicity Bureau, and feels assured that it will also receive the co-operation of all the civic organizations in the city.

A meeting of the committee has been called for Tuesday, at 3 p. m., in the assembly room of the exchange, at which plans will be outlined for the campaign. Chairman Giraldin will appoint a subcommittee from the General Committee to work the block system in convassing "Real Estate Drive."

Exchange Board Memorializes Congress for Free Bridge Legislation.

The board of directors of the Real Estate Exchange, at its recent monthly meeting, adopted a resolution and the body of an act to be submitted to Congress for extension of the time for the completion of the municipal bridge approaches, and extensions or additions there to by the city of St. Louis within Illinois and Missouri.

The resolution recites that "certain railroad executives of lines coming into East St. Louis from the north and east have publicly declared that such lines, carrying more than 90 per cent of the annual passenger and tonnage traffic into and out of our city, cannot use the municipal Free Bridge with its present railroad approach extending to the southeast." It is accordingly proposed that the city of St. Louis he empowered "to exercise the powers of eminent domain in Illinois, for the purpose of extending the present Illinois railroad approach or building other approaches to the bridge."

MINERS SIGN CONTRACTS WITH 'AUTOMATIC PENALTY CLAUSE'

Action Forced by Missouri and Arkansas-Oklahoma Delegates Quitting Convention.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 17.—Working contracts embodying the much-disputed "automatic penalty clause" insisted upon by Fuel Administrator Garfield, were signed here tonight by the presidents of the Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kansas union mine districts and representatives of the Southwest Coal Operators' Association.

The action came after the delegates from the Missouri and Arkansas-Oklahoma districts to the miners' convention being held here had withdrawn from the convention and authorized their presidents to agree to the penalty clause. Alexander Howat, president of the Kansas district, then yielded and signed.

The new contracts carry the automatic penalty clause, which Administrator Garfield characterized by telegram today as "satisfactory." It provides for a board of representatives of operators and miners and that miners are to have $1 a day deducted from their pay whenever they close a mine before the board has passed upon the dispute, while the operators are penalized similarly $1 a day where they lock out the men.

The contracts also provide wage increases of 10 cents a ton, 15 per cent for dirt and deficient work and $1.40 per day for day work, retroactive to Nov. 1. To meet these wage increases and in compliance with the Federal fuel administrator's order, an increase of 45 cents per ton in the price of coal will be made also retroactive to Nov. 1.

ROBBED WHEN CRANKING TRUCK

Cleaning Company Driver, Held Up in West End, Loses $34.20.

Oscar Palmer, a driver employed by the Schuck Dyeing and Cleaning Co., delivered a parcel at King's highway and Forest Park boulevard last evening and was cranking his delivery truck when a man pushed a revolver, held him up, and took $34.20 from him. All but $1.50 belonged to the company.

The robber then, according to the driver's story to the police, ordered Palmer to finish cranking and jumped into the machine and drove south on King's highway. The machine was found on Forest Park boulevard, between Sarah street and Boyle avenue.

Money Hidden in Saloon Stolen.

Burglars stole $22.90 from the saloon of John Fitzinger, 2900 Pine street, Friday night. The proprietor had hidden the money in a cigar box behind several barrels of whisky. The front door of the saloon was broken open.

ANTHRACITE MINERS TO GET MORE PAY IF PRICE IS RAISED

Garfield Asked to Boost Cost of Coal So Men Will Get $40,000,000 a Year More.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Wage increases ranging from 15 to 44 per cent for Pennsylvania anthracite miners were agreed to by the operators here today, on condition the advances are absorbed in higher coal prices.

As soon as they had signed their tentative new contract the miners and operators asked Fuel Administrator Garfield to raise the price of anthracite to meet the increase. Dr. Garfield took the request under advisement and announced he would make a careful investigation before giving a decision. It is estimated that the wage increases would add about 45 cents a ton to anthracite prices, and give the miners about $40,000,000 more pay annually.

Fuel Administration officials would not say tonight how Dr. Garfield views the demand for higher anthracite prices. When bituminous producers and miners fixed a new wage scale recently he increased bituminous prices to absorb the raise, but bituminous prices had just been cut sharply in the Government's fixing of coal prices. Anthracite prices remained at about the same level under the price fixing.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

WOMAN HIRES MAN TO DIG FOR TREASURE INDICATED BY GHOST

Police Asked to Settle Dispute Over Wages When Employer Insists Riches Were Found.

Miss Anna Stumpf, 74 years old, of 2022 Sidney street, looked out her back window one day last week and thought she saw a white figure about seven feet tall in the rear of her coal shed. The figure pointed to the ground, indicating buried treasure, Miss Stumpf thought, and then disappeared.

So she hired Joseph Link, living next door, to dig a hole seven feet deep and seven feet square, dimensions corresponding with the height of the figure, in search of treasure. It took three days and he was to get $3 a day. He got paid for the first two days, but not for the third. Now Link's mother, a life-long friend of Miss Stumpf, refuses to speak to her.

The police were called in to settle the dispute. Miss Stumpf admitted she didn't pay for the third day, but contends that while she watched the digging from her window she saw Link uncover the treasure, tuck it under his coat and take it home. She will pay, she says, when the treasure is turned over to her. Link denies there was any treasure.

Chief Young was sought for instructions. He said he did not believe in ghosts, so the case was dropped.

HUNTER KILLED ACCIDENTALLY

Waterloo, Ill., Man Shot When Companion's Gun Is Discharged.

Victor Reinhold of Waterloo, Ill., was shot accidentally yesterday morning by Bartholme Stevens when hunting on Stevens' farm near Waterloo, and died a few hours later at the home of his parents.

Stevens and Reinhold attended mass early in the day at SS. Peter and Paul's Church before starting on their hunt. They were walking within three feet of each other, Stevens carrying his gun cocked, when it was discharged and the entire load entered Reinhold's left hip, fracturing the bone. Stevens ran to the home of Emil Kolmer and telephoned for his father, Joseph Reinhold, who took Reinhold home in an automobile. Coroner Fultz held an inquest. A verdict of accident was returned.

KNOCKED OUT WITH BALL BAT

Negro Struck by Bartender Identified as Man Who Shot Policeman.

Sam Franklin, negro laborer, of 3701 Vista avenue, was knocked unconscious with a baseball bat in a saloon at 3741 Vista avenue at 8 o'clock last night by the bartender, Risto Mirach, who said the negro abused and threatened him when he would not give the negro a dime.

The negro had a loaded revolver in his pocket. At the city hospital Patrolman Timothy Cronin identified Franklin as the man who shot him July 4, 1899, and served a term in the penitentiary.

KAISER SAYS "COLLAPSE" OF ITALIANS WAS GOD'S JUDGMENT

German Success So Great, Power Above Man's Was at Work, He Tells Troops.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 17.—Advices received here from Berlin say that the German Emperor, in addressing a Brandenburg regiment on the plains near the Tagliamento, recalled the soldiers' share in the battles of the Champagne at Verdun and Tarnopol. The Emperor said:

"But you have had a greater task, that of breaking through the Italian front near Flitsch and Tolmino—a heavy task considering the high mountains and the enemy's immense means of defense. Your success exceeds all calculations so greatly that a higher power than the power of man must have been at work. The enemy's collapse was the judgment of God."

In a later speech, the German emperor said:

"We are fighting for faithfulness, justice and truth, and it is these that will win."

German Kultur in Bel'jum

"There's not been manny imprors that kindly hearted as t' load a couple iv million guns an' jump overnight into a frin'ly land t' fetch it th' untold blessings iv kultur. You'd think th' Bel'jums wud be mad with jye. But th' ungrateful creatures are not! Th' blessing iv starvation leaves thim unmoved—or dead"

By ELLIS PARKER BUTLER
Author of "Pigs Is Pigs," "Philo Gubb," Etc.

ELLIS PARKER BUTLER.

MIKE FLANNERY, the agent of the Interurban Express Co., at Lindenwood, on the Frisco, seated himself on an egg case and filled his pipe.

"There don't be so much readin' in th' papers about Kultur as there was a couple iv years ago, Rudolph," he suggested.

"So?" said Rudolph inquiringly. "Why not?"

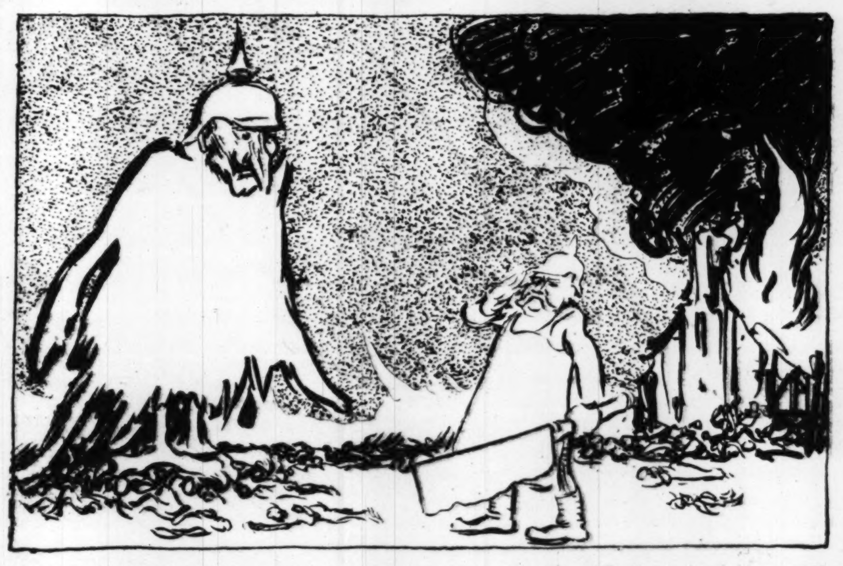
"No doubt 'tis because th' German ixpictation that in a few weeks afther th' war begun Kultur w'u'd be smeared over th' whole known wurrld met with no little adversity," said Mike. "Th' intintions iv th' Germans was extinsive. Th' preparations for givin' th' wurrld a coat iv Kultur was complete in th' extreme. Ivry sprinklin' carrt an' wather wagon in Germany was backed up t' th' Kultur hydrant an' filled t' th' bung, an' hitched behint th' steam roller known as th' Imperyal German Arrmy, which was t' haul thim acrost th' universe. Th' foremost profissors iv' Kultur mounted th' seats an' put their feet awn th' valves, ready t' souse th' uncivilized lands iv France and Ingland with th' Kultur juice.

"Unfortnitly, Rudolph, th' steam roller sprung a leak just beyond th' Belgian frontier and th' main paarts iv France an' England remain unkultured.

"Th' failure iv th' Kaiser t' spread th' tar-oil iv Kultur from wan ind iv Europe t' th' other is wan iv th' saddest cases iv good intintions gone t' pot on rechord. Whin th' war begun an' Kultur was but a wurrd in th' mouths iv high-brows, we little understhood it. There was thim so ignorint they thought 'twas but a new soort iv Dutch cookery, maybe. We know betther now, Rudolph.

"Had th' Frinch known what Kultur meant, as we know now, there w'u'd have been no war. Th' arrmy iv th' Kaiser w'u'd have been rayceived with open arrms and wan iv thim Frinch kisses that come in two sictions, wan awn each cheek. Had th' Frinch known Kultur as they now know it t' be they w'u'd have met th' Crown Prince at Verdun with a bouquet iv flowers, th' keys iv th' city iv Paris and a banquet iv th' finest stewed snails that iver succumbed beneath th' tireless pursoot iv th' dare-devil hunters iv th' Chomps Ulysses.

"But they did not know, Rudolph. With th' provinciality iv all peoples that reside over sivin miles from Broadway an' Foorty-sicond street, they were narrow minded. We must not be too harrd awn thim for that, Rudolph. Many iv th' finest minds in the wurrld were in similar ignorance. I did not then know what Kultur was myself. We had not then seen th' benivolint operation iv Kultur upon th' savage races residint in Bel'jum.



"Your Majesty I have th' honor t' raypoort that Kultur is now well settled in Bel'jum an' doin' fine."

"Luck'ly for our ignorance, Rudolph, th' Kaiser was able t' steam-roll acrost th' biggest parrt iv Bel'jum and thus permit th' sprinklin' carrts to give that benighted land a tarvia coat iv Kultur. That savage country is now soaked a foot deep with Kultur and in full profit iv its benefits. Th' change is wonderful.

"In a raypoort t' th' Kaiser made at a raycint date' th' Uber-Kapitan Langschnoot iv the 231st Kultur Brigade, says: "Your Majesty: I have th' honor t' raypoort that Kultur is now well settled in Bel'jum an' doin' fine. Th' majority iv th' wimmen an' old gintlemin we had t' shoot durin' th' early days iv civilizin' this barb'rous neck iv the woods has now been buried an' th' corpsey smell is a good deal less, although now an' then there is a rank odor from some unkultured reprobate that has crawled into a copse an' died iv starvation.

"'In this connection,' continues th' Uber-Kapitan, 'I wish t' assure Your Majesty that there is not a dang worrd iv truth in th' raypoort that we are boilin' down th' dead Bel'jums t' save their fat. There is no fat awn thim. As you well know, it is not Kultur t' waste good wood boilin' down Bel'jums for fat whin there is nawthin to thim but skin n' bones. Th' raypoort that we are so doin' is a slander awn Kultur. If thim that spread such raypoorts w'u'd first take th' trouble t' visit Bel'jum an' view th' boniness iv th' Bel'jums they w'u'd know betther. Th' investigations iv Profissor Hoch, furnished us befoor we lift Germany, prove that th' hog projuces fat much faster than th' Bel'jum male or female, and annywan acquainted with Kultur sh'u'd know we w'u'd not feed annything t' th' Bel'jums that th' hogs can eat.

"Your Majesty, th' state iv mind iv th' Bel'jums is now much gentler than a shoort time agone. Thanks to th' submarine worrk against th' Bel'jum Relief ships there is but little food over an' above what th' hogs need, an' there is hardly a child in th' land now able t' carry awn th' hidjus worrk iv lookin' askance at a German. In a few weeks more not wan iv thim will be able t' hold up its head. Th' Bel'jum mothers are givin' us less throuble now, manny iv thim spending' their time at th' graveyards.

"'Your Majesty, th' iducation iv th' male Bel'jums is proceedin' apace under th' auspices iv th' University Kultur Extinsion squads. Th' Departmint iv Travel Tours arranges each week for extinsive tours iv Germany and that parrt iv France now under th' blissid inflooince iv Kultur, and groups iv such male Bel'jums as have anny meat left awn their bones are assisted into high-toned cattle cars by a poke with baynit and given a gladsome trip t' th' German trenches, where they are allowed t' obtain exercise with pick and shovel before th' rayturn trip. Quite a few iv thim come back alive, and some iv these are able to stir hand or foot whin dumped from th' cars.

"'Th' lessions in agriculture are proceedin' as planned. Th' male and female Bel'jums are given continyus instruction in th' fields and th' products iv their labor sint to Germany, where it belongs. While th' children still give us some annoyance at night, we expict they will soon learn to go without food or sthop cryin' altogether. Th' taxes and assissmints placed awn th' folks and th' towns are paid reg'larly, and cause no complaint excipt from a few who are imejitly shot.

"'Your Majesty, if you have time t' write t' th' papers I wish you would explain th' truth about Miss Cavell an' a few other women we kultured. Afther th' shootin there was some complaints heard, but 'twas all from outsiders. There was not wan worrd utthered by Miss Cavell afther th' squad had proceeded t' Kulture her in the usual manner.

"So you see, Rudolph," said Mike, 'th ignorince iv the Frinch and other semy-civilized peoples has led t' a great injustice t' Kultur.

"There was thim that thought Kultur was th' horridjus ability t' raycite sivin pages iv German potery afther drinkin' tin mugs iv beer. There was thim that thought 'twas th' knowledge how t' mix sivin parts iv oxygen with three parts iv carbon an' make a new breakfast food. There was thim that thought 't was some cruel and courajus way iv teachin' th' multuplycation table. 'Tis no wondther th' worrld trimbled with fear whin th' Kaiser threatened t' spring annything like thim on us.

"Now we know betther. We know that Kultur is none iv thim hidjus things. 'Tis but a plisint, fatherly int'rest in th' welfare iv a friendly nation, such as th 'Germans have shown th' Bel'jums.

"'Tis a quare worrld, Rudolph! You'd think that whin th' Kaiser has gone out iv his way t' carry Kultur t' th' Bel'jums they w'u'd be grateful t' him, w'u'd n't ye? There's not been manny Imprors that kindly hearted as t' load a couple iv million guns an' jump overnight into a friendly neighbor land t' fetch it th' untold blessings of Kultur. You'd think th' Bel'jums w'u'd be mad with jye. But th' ungrateful creatures are not! Th' blessing iv starvation leaves thim unmoved—or dead.

"Th' Bel'jum mothers rayfuse t' shout 'Hoch der Kultur!' no matter how manny iv their babes die in their arrms. There's even some Bel'jums that wish th' German civilizers w'u'd go back t' Germany an' leave thim alone wance more in th' pitiful degradation iv health, happines and life in which they were sunk befoor th' Kaiser fetched thim th' blessing iv Kultur.

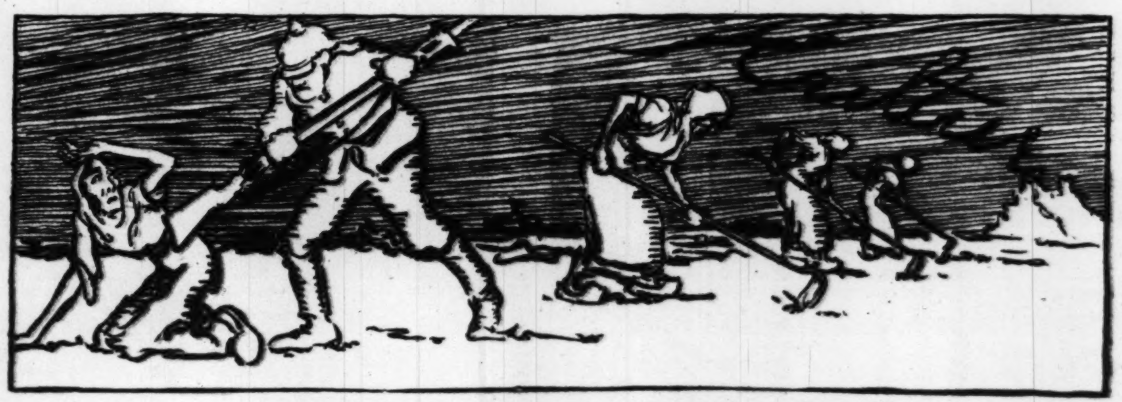
"Well, annyhow," said Mike, as he arose and picked up the egg case, "it has been a lesson t' th' Kaiser. He has learned that ginerosity does not pay. He set out, with an eager hand, t' carry Kultur t' th' whole worrld, but th' coldness iv th' Bel'jum people has wounded his tinder hearrt, and b' th' signs I see it looks like he has changed his mind."

"So?" queried Rudolph.

"It looks," said Mike, "like he has soured on th' job. It looks like he was makin' up his mind t' let thim Bel'jums remain unkultured afther next summer. It looks like he was goin' t' pack up his Kultur and take it back t' Germany. Manny iv th' ungrateful Bel'jums will be glad, but some won't care wan way or th' other."

"So?" queried Rudolph. "Some won't care?"

"Thim that starved t' death," said Mike.



"The lessons in agriculture are proceedin' as planned."

Next Sunday there will appear in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine another story by Mr. Butler, entitled "Mike Flannery on the Glory o War."

Wife Barrie Gave Away Would Now Return

Former actress wearies of Gilbert Cannan, who used his disruption of Barrie home as material for novel, and sues to divorce him—But creator of "Sentimental Tommy" is said to have repulsed ex-wife's overtures, saying "You would be happier away from me"—Barrie gave mate country house and annuity on divorcing her so that she might wed more youthful writer :: :: :: ::

Mrs. Mary Ansell Barrie-Cannan.

Sir James M. Barrie.

IT IS an old question, that as to which kind of love a woman prefers—the love of the poetic spirit which sees her not as she actually is, but through a rosy mist of reverence of his own idealizing; or that of the lover with cave-man instincts, who views her without illusion in all her own reality. To the one she is the fictitious 'phantom of delight' of Wordsworth's poem; to the other she is the one of whom he wrote:

"And now I see with eye serene
The very pulse of the machine."

A very good judge in this matter should be Mrs. Gilbert Cannan. Her first husband was the famous Sir James M. Barrie, whose sentiments concerning love in his novels are among the tenderest, most reverential and romantic in modern letters. Then she deserted Barrie for Gilbert Cannan, a clever young novelist, whose writings on love are characterized by cynicism, mockery and something like brutality.

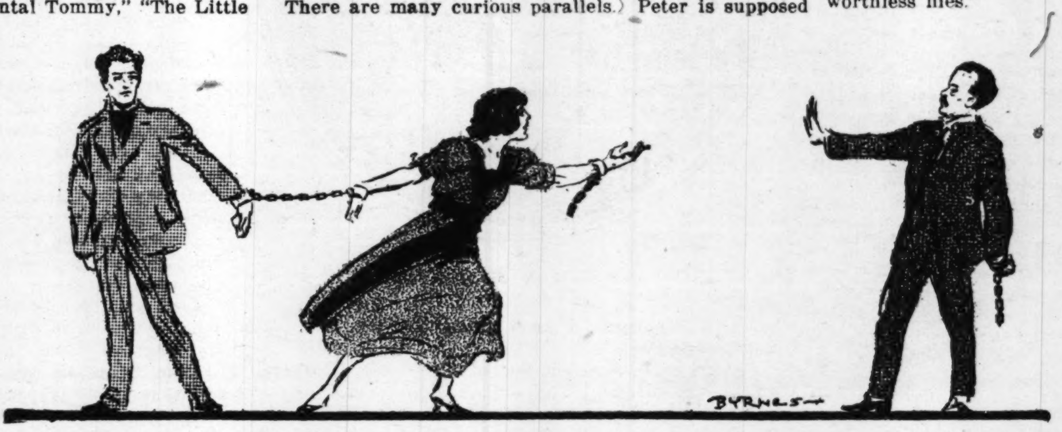
It was Barrie who wrote, in "When a Man's Single:" "There are far better and nobler things than loving a woman and getting her * * * so long as her happiness was secured, his misery was only an unusual form of joy." Contrast with this soaring and unselfish view of love, the definition which Cannan puts into the mouth of one of his characters: "What I calls bein' in love is when you're grovellin' to the woman one moment, and spittin' in her face the next."

After having tried the two types of love, what is Mrs. Cannan's decision? It is that the love of the dreaming poet is superior to that of the man of the world. At least, this is the construction placed by her friends upon the startling fact that a few days ago she filed suit in London to divorce Cannan, and announced her intention of returning to Sir James—if he will receive her.

At the present writing it appears, however, that a poet can turn as well as a worm, for he is said to have replied to his former wife's overtures:

"I think you will find more happiness away from me than with me. Therefore I must refuse to return to you." Notwithstanding, the wiseacres are finding food for gossip in the fact that Sir James was so in love with his wife that he attempted to win her back even after the divorce, and also in the significant fact that he has remained unwed for eight years since his domestic catastrophe.

This latest chapter in the heart-story of the gentle and poetic creator of "Sentimental Tommy," "The Little Minister" and "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire" adds a sequel as fantastic as even Barrie's rich fantasy could ever have conceived.



For the beginning, one must turn back about 20 years, when James Matthew Barrie, a struggling young author, had banked all his hopes on the production of his first play, "Walker, London." The leading female role was taken by a beautiful English actress, Miss Mary Ansell. The play was a success, and Barrie was generous enough to give much of the credit to the talent and zeal of Miss Ansell.

In the meantime she made the acquaintance of a young Scotch barrister, Gilbert Cannan, who had recently given up the practice of law and was seeking to win a career as a novelist and playwright—a career, by the way, in which he received not only encouragement but active and invaluable assistance from Barrie. Both men fell in love with her, but after a few years of undecision she decided to wed Barrie. The marriage occurred in Scotland, June 9. 1904.

The match was considered by all a most happy one. Barrie was rapidly advancing to an acknowledged place as one of the foremost British men of letters, which meant also his ascent to wealth. Mrs. Barrie was young and handsome, with a trained intelligence and a practical knowledge of the stage which must often have been of benefit to him. It appeared that Cannan was forgotten.

But about nine years ago he began to emerge as a clever writer, and Barrie was one of the first to recognize and welcome his talent. He received his young compatriot as a personal friend. and invited him several times to his country home, Black Lake Cottage, at Farnham in Surrey. Finally, when Cannan's flat in London was being decorated, Barrie sent him out to live at Black Lake Cottage until it was finished. Barrie himself remained in London at his work, but Mrs. Barrie was down in the country.

As a result of this visit Barrie's servants went to their master with a story that was soon to be a sensation on both sides of the Atlantic. He hurried to his wife.

"It is quite true," she told him coolly. "Gilbert is the only man in the world for me."

Barrie offered to forgive his wife if she would declare her repentance and promise never to see Cannan again. She refused, and to his appeals that she return to him replied that their relations under the circumstances would be only a sham. She requested him to divorce her.

When Barrie finally saw that her mind was made up, he determined to shield her in every way possible from the scandal about to break upon her. He went to Cannan and exacted an iron-bound oath from him that he would marry Mrs. Barrie as soon as she was divorced. As Cannan was poor, Barrie agreed to give his wife their handsome country house, and to make a liberal annual settlement upon her.

The suit was tried in London during October, 1909. Barrie himself, looking ill and careworn, testified that his wife had told him she loved another man. Mrs. Barrie did not defend the case, but was seen driving about London in her carriage. apparently cheerful and contented. After hearing only a few minutes of testimony from one of the servants, the Judge broke in with: "That is enough," and instantly granted an absolute divorce to Barrie.

Then, having divorced his wife, he showed the true Barrie whimsicality by making every effort to persuade her to marry him again. He is said to have offered to take her on a trip around the world, to grant any demand she might make, to settle $200,000 upon her. She repulsed him, and soon afterwards Cannan made good his oath by wedding her.

Cannan then used the entire episode as literary material for his first successful novel, "Peter Homunculus." The word homunculus means a tiny man, such as was fabled to have been created by the old alchemists and placed in a bottle. The hero, Peter Davies, is represented as a small man until the love of a woman recreated him.

There are many curious parallels. Peter is supposed to represent Cannan himself. He falls in love with Mary Dugdale, a beautiful actress, older than himself—Mary Ansell was an actress older than Cannan. Mary Dugdale has the leading role in the first play of Bertram Bond, as Miss Ansell had in "Walker, London," Barrie's maiden play; and afterwards marries Bond, as Miss Ansell wedded Barrie. Peter has a love affair with Mrs. Bond, who is represented as having wearied of her elderly husband, whom Cannan pictures as a brute in addition to his years. Barrie, of course, was always most tender and delicate in his domestic relations.

Gilbert Cannan.

In the novel, Peter defends himself in the following picturesque way and complains that the husband never forgave him for destroying his happiness:

"I loved, was loved. and snatched wild happiness. The man who held my fortune, my fate, from that moment cruelly ignored me. It was as though I had never existed for him—ghastly! I made the woman happy where he had failed. No forgiveness. I admitted no fault, nor she. We had known the best, and and for a space lived vividly. I would not bow to prejudice. Unwisely, for prejudice is strong, stronger than the law."

Various reasons have been given for Mrs. Barrie's faithlessness, aside from the fact that Cannan. in addition to his talent, was young and handsome. Some said that Mrs. Barrie, a woman of the world, languished under the quiet and laborious regime followed by her husband, and would have preferred to be romping in the Bohemian set. Others said that Barrie, for all his being a poet, has much of the Scotch thrift, and was not inclined to let the purse strings relax as widely as his wife would have desired. But there must be something in the view that a woman finds occupying a pedestal all the time rather tiresome, and sometimes wishes she were loved for what she really is instead of for what her husband, with the male's incorrigible imagination, dreams her to be.

At any rate. two men could hardly stand farther apart in their views of love than Barrie and Cannan, at least so far as their books show. Barrie wrote of a character: "He loathed the notion that women have a thirsty eye on man; when he saw them cheapening themselves before the sex that should hold them beyond price he turned his head and would not let his mind dwell on the subject." But to Peter Davies women are "liars and webspinners," and their love "webs to catch worthless flies."

"Love," Cannan continues writing, "is a strange beast that leaps out on you, out of the dark. It bears you down and down. * * * Love is the aversion and the god of humanity. They run from it, but they run in circles. It engulfs them, and they drown gladly. In the running is human comedy, and in the surrender is human tragedy. Love has a pale sister called Romance."

For eight years Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Cannan went their way, and Barrie went his. Rumors that he was to marry the charming American actress. Pauline Chase, whom he took in hand raised from a "Pajama Girl" to a star, proved unfounded, and she married Alexander Drummond, a young English banker. Barrie was knighted and became Sir James. The war came and he lost on the battlefield his foster son, George Llewelyn Davies, who was the original of "Peter Pan," and whom Barrie adopted on the death of the boy's mother, a daughter of George du Maurier, author of "Trilby," and herself the original of Grizel of the Crooked Smile. in Barrie's "Tommy and Grizel."

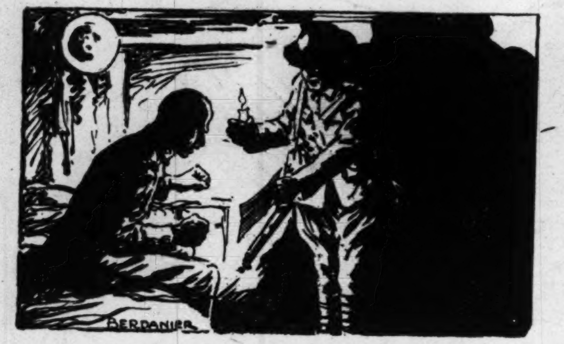
And now finally comes the filing of preliminary papers by Mrs. Cannan in a divorce action. If she has avowed to Cannan that she really loves Barrie and is serious in her reported intention to remarry her first husband—if she can get him—then it is possible that Barrie will have a remarkable revenge; that he will supplant Cannan as Cannan once supplanted him, and that Cannan, the former corespondent, will have the tables turned on him in behalf of the husband on whom he once turned the tables. The story would certainly make a unique novel, and perhans Cannan will seize upon it as material.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS IN CEYLON

MECHANICAL and industrial schools in Ceylon give instruction in plumbing, sanitary engineering, railroad shop work, telephone and telegraph inspection, shorthand, typewriting, pharmacy, medicine, chemisty and physics. Thirty-nine schools give instruction in carpentry, printing, bookbinding, shoemaking, tailoring, blacksmithing, lace making, dressmaking, embroidery, cooking and gardening. Nearly all of these schools teach lace making, but cooking is taught in only two, masonry in one, gardening in one, blacksmithing in one and shoemaking in two.—The Philippine Craftsman.

Getting Acquainted With the British Tommy

Maj. Ian Hay Beith, English soldier and author, has just produced a new book, in which he charmingly portrays what an improvident, pessimistic, but reckless, first-class fighting man the British private is—Here are some character sketches from the volume :: :: ::



This time the message said: "A Zeppelin is reported to have passed over Dunkirk at 5 p. m. yesterday afternoon, proceeding in a northerly direction.

IN THE literature which has been produced concerning the great war, that contributed by Maj. Ian Hay Beith, of the British army, occupies a prominent place. Unlike some other writers, Maj. Beith has the advantage of having been a participant in the history-making affairs about which he writes, and when there is added to that a rare facility of description the result is bound to make entertaining reading for anyone interested in what is occurring on the other side of the Atlantic.

But perhaps the chief value of Maj. Beith's work lies in his delightful presentation of the British Tommy as he is. This is true of his first war book, "The First Hundred Thousand," and also of the second, "All In It," which has just been published by the Houghton-Mifflin Company. The latter, which ends with the Battle of the Somme, is a continuation of the former, which ended with the battle of Loos.

For the benefit of readers of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine, extracts from "All In It," chosen with a view of presenting a word picture of that unusual person, the British Tommy, are here presented. They will be found to be filled with a refreshing humor.

GUNNERS are peculiar people. When professionally engaged, no men could be more retiring. They screen their operations from the public gaze with the utmost severity, shrouding batteries in screens of foliage and other rustic disguises. If a layman strays anywhere near one of these arboreal retreats a gunner thrusts out a visage inflamed with righteous wrath, and curses him for giving the position away. But in his hours of relaxation the gunner is a different being. He billets himself in a house with plenty of windows; he illuminates all these by night and hangs washing therefrom by day. When inclined for exercise, he goes for a promenade across an open space labeled: "Not to be used by troops by daylight."

* * * In this respect he offers a curious contrast to the sapper. Off duty, the sapper is the most unobtrusive of men—a cave man, in fact. He burrows deep into the earth, or the side of a hill, and having secured the roof of his cavern against direct hits by ingenious contrivances of his own manufacture, constructs a suite of furniture of a solid and enduring pattern, and lives the life of a comfortable recluse. But when engaged in the pursuit of his calling, the sapper is the least retiring of men. The immemorial tradition of the great corps to which he belongs has ordained that no fire, however fierce, must be allowed to interfere with a sapper in the execution of his duty. This rule is usually interpreted by the sapper to mean that you must not perform your alloted task under cover when it is possible to do so under fire. To this is added, as a rider, that in the absence of an adequate supply of fire you must draw fire. So the sapper walks cheerfully about on the tops of parapets, hugging large and conspicuous pieces of timber, or clashing together sheets of corrugated iron, as happy as a King.

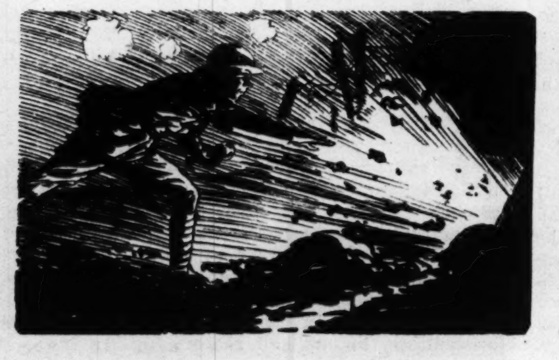
When steel helmets were first issued, they were greeted with profound suspicion. Though undoubtedly serviceable, they were undeniably heavy, and they were certainly not becoming to the peculiar type of beauty rampant in "K (1)." Private M'A. deposited his upon the parapet, like a foundling upon a doorstep, and departed stealthily around the nearest traverse, to report his new headpiece "lost through the exigencies of military service." Private M'B. wore his insecurely perched upon the top of his tam-o'-shanter bonnet, where it looked like a very large ostrich egg in a very small khaki nest. Private M'C. set his up on a convenient post and opened rapid fire upon it at a range of six yards, surveying the resulting holes with the gloomy satisfaction of the vindicated pessimist. Private M'D. removed the lining from his and performed his ablutions in the inverted crown.

"This," said Col. Kemp, "will never do. We must start wearing the dashed things ourselves."

And so it was. Next day, to the joy of the battalion, their officers appeared in the trenches, self-consciously wearing what looked like small sky-blue wash-hand basins balanced upon their heads. But discipline was excellent. No one even smiled. In fact, there was a slight reaction in favor of the helmets.



He hurled the grenade into the opening.

Right on the cross-roads in the center of the village, just below the fingers of a sign post which indicates the distance to four French townships, there hangs a large, newly painted board, bearing a notice in black letters six inches high. Exactly underneath the board, rubbing their noses appreciatively against the sign post, stand two mules, attached to a limbered wagon, the property of the A. S. C. (Army Service Corps). Their charioteers are sitting adjacent, in a convenient shell hole, partaking of luncheon.

"That was a rotten place we 'ad to wait in yesterday, Sammy," observes Number One. "The draft was somethin cruel."

The recumbent Samuel agrees. "This little 'oller is a bit of all right," he remarks. "When you've done strarfin' that bully-beef, 'and it over, ole man."

He leans his head back upon the lip of the shell hole and gazes pensively at the notice board six feet away. It says:

VERY DANGEROUS.
DO NOT LOITER
HERE.

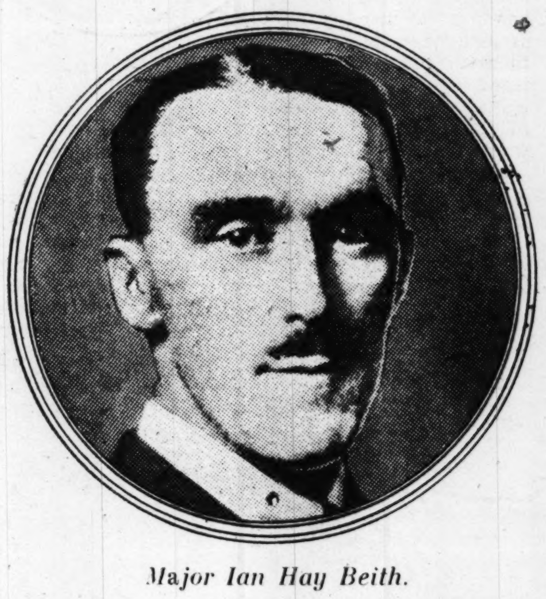
Number Nine Platoon had been bombing, hacking and digging all day. Several of them were slightly wounded—the serious cases had been taken off long ago by the stretcher bearers—and Cockerell's own head was still dizzy from the fumes of a German gas shell.

He lined up his disreputable paladins in the darkness, and spoke:

"Sergt. McNab, how many men are present?"

"Eighteen, sir." The platoon had gone into action 34 strong.

"How many men are deficient of an emergency ration? I can make a good guess, but you had better find out."



Major Ian Hay Beith.

Five minutes later the Sergeant reported. Cockerell's guess was correct. The British private has only one point of view about the portable property of the State. To him—as an individual—the sacred emergency ration is an unnecessary incumbrance, and the carrying thereof a "fatigue." Consequently, when engaged in battle, one of the first (of many) things which he jettisons is this very ration. When all is over he reports with unctuous solemnity that the provender in question has been blown out of his haversack by a shell. The Quartermaster-Sergeant writes it off as "lost owing to the exigencies of military service," and indents for another.

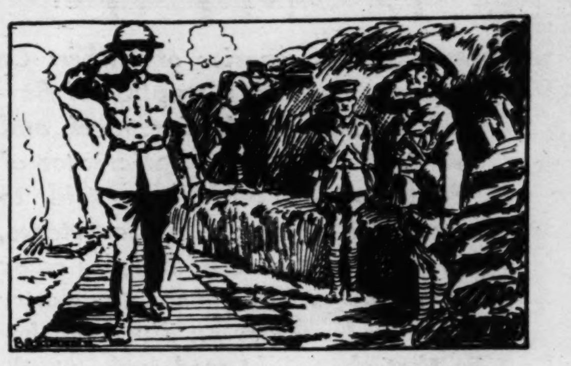
Orders were issued for a flying matinee, or trench raid. * * * It was a brilliant success. But the element of surprise was visited upon both attackers and attacked. To the former the contribution came from the well-meaning but somewhat addlepated warrior, Private Nigg, who formed one of the raiding party.

Nigg's allotted task was to "comb out" certain German dugouts. For this purpose he was provided with bombs. Shortly before 2 o'clock the party crawled over the parapet and crept steadily, on hands and knees, across No Man's Land. Fifty yards from the enemy's wire was a collection of shell holes. Here the raiders disposed themselves and waited for the signal.

Now, it is an undoubted fact, that if you curl yourself up, with two or three preliminary twirls, after the fashion of a dog going to bed, in a perfectly circular shell hole, on a night as black as the inside of the dog in question, you are extremely likely to lose your sense of direction. This is what happened to Private Nigg. Suddenly, with a shattering roar, the feint-artillery bombardment broke forth. Next moment Angus McLachlan and his followers rose to their feet in the black darkness, scrambled out of their nests and dashed forward to the accomplishment of their mission.

When Nigg, who had paused a moment to collect his bombs, sprang out of his shell hole, not a colleague was in sight. At least, Nigg could see no one. However, want of courage was not one of his failings. He bounded blindly forward by himself.

Try as he would, he could not overtake the raiding party. However, this mattered little, for suddenly a parapet loomed before him. In this same parapet, low down, Nigg beheld a black and gaping aperture—plainly a loophole of some kind.



The next day, to the joy of the battalion, their officers appeared in the trenches wearing what looked like small sky-blue wash-hand basins balanced on their heads.

Without a moment's hesitation, Nigg hurled a Mills grenade straight through the loophole, and then, with one wild screech of "Come away, boys!" took a flying leap over the parapet—and landed in his own trench, in the arms of Corporal Mucklewame.

So the first fruits of the raid was Capt. Ayling of the "Emma Gees." He had stationed himself in a concrete emplacement in the front line, the better to "observe" the fire of his guns, when it should be required. Unfortunately, this was the destination selected by the misguided Nigg for his first (and as it proved, last) bomb. The raiders came safely back in due course, but by that time Ayling, liberally (but by a miracle not dangerously) ballasted with assorted scrap iron, was on his way to the first aid post.

There was a mixed assemblage at the "Estaminet au Clef des Champs." Mr. Spike Johnson, a resident in peaceful times of Stratford-atte-Bow, the recognized humorist of the Sappers' Field Company, attached to the brigade, was pleased to be facetious.

"It won't be no good you Jocks (Scottish troops) goin' over no parapet to attack no 'Uns," he said, "after what 'appened last week."

This dark saying had the effect of arousing every Scottish soldier in the "estaminet" to a state of bristling attention.

"And what was it," inquired Private Cosh with heat, "that happened last week?"

"Why," replied Mr. Johnson, who had been compounding this jest for some days, and now saw his opportunity to deliver it with effect at short range, "your trenches got raided last Wednesday when you was in 'em. By the Brandyburgers, I think it was."

The entire symposium stared at the jester with undisguised amazement.

"Our—trenches," proclaimed Private Tosh with forced calm, "were never raided by no—Brandyburrgerrs! Was they, Jimmie?"

Mr. Cosh corroborated, with three adjectives which Mr. Tosh had not thought of.

Spike Johnson merely smiled, with the easy assurance of a man who has the ace up his sleeve.

"Oh, yes they was!" he reiterated.

"They were not!" shouted half a dozen voices.

The next stage of the discussion requires no description. It terminated, at the urgent request of Madame from behind the bar, and with the assistance of the military police, in the street outside.

"And now, Spike Johnson," inquired Private Cosh, breathing heavily but much refreshed, "can you tell me what way Gairmans could get intil the trenches of a guid Scots regiment withoot bein' seen?"

"I can," replied Mr. Johnson with relish, "and I will. They got in all right, but you didn't see them, because they was disguised."

Cosh and Tosh snorted disdainfully, and Private Nigg, who was present with his friend Buncle, inquired:

"What way was they disguised?"

Like lightning came the answer:

"As a joke! Oh, you Jocks!"

Cosh and Tosh (who had already been warned by the Police Sergeant) merely glared and gurgled impotently. Private Nigg, who, as already mentioned, was slightly wanting in quickness of perception, was led away by the faithful Buncle, to have the outrage explained to him at leisure. It was Private Bogle who intervened, and brought the intellectual Goliath crashing to the ground.

"Man Johnson," he remarked, and shook his head mournfully, "youse ought to be verra careful aboot sayin' things like that to the likes of us. 'Deed aye!"

"What for, ole son?" inquired the jester indulgently.

'Naithing," replied Bogle with artistic reticence.

"Come along—aht with it!" insisted Johnson. "Cough it up, duckie!"

"What for?" Bogle's voice dropped to a ghostly whis-

THE WAR-WRECKED ROMANCE OF -- EMMY DESTINN AND DINH GILLY --

Former Metropolitan singers, engaged to be married, were in Austria when the conflict began and he was promptly interned by her countrymen on account of being a French subject — How he refused to sign a parole and how she has vainly made efforts to have him released — She finally was forced to leave her home in Bohemia and occasionally sings at relief affairs in Belgium :: ::

Emmy Destinn, as opera goers know her.

Miss Destinn when she was taking out American naturalization papers.

WORD has recently come from the obsecure Austrian prison camp at Raab where Dinh Gilly, the Metropolitan baritone, is interned. The man who formerly knew the plaudits and the luxuries of a New York operatic success is jailed in this poor place with thousands of other military prisoners, and is without the commonest comforts. After more than three years, the singer has managed to get word out of the enemy country to an old friend in New York, and an effort is to be made to succor him.

In this way another item is added to the list of misfortunes which has been written over the life of this Algerian singer since the war began—a record that has always possessed a rare romantic quality, since it also engaged the fate of Emmy Destinn, the Bohemian soprano and long favorite of New York opera goers. Nor is the word that has come from Dinh Gilly silent about her. He says that she has lately been deported from her home in Bohemia and is singing occasionally in Belgium to poor and distressed audiences.

The misfortunes of Gilly and Emmy Destinn will likely remain as one of the epic love stories of the war. When the conflict broke out in the late summer of 1914 Miss Destinn and Gilly were both under contract for the ensuing season at the Metropolitan. They had both returned to Europe after the spring closing of the opera house and were expected to return in September, 1914, for a well-booked concert tour together. A week before her expected arrival Miss Destinn cabled, canceling all her engagements and her contract with the Metropolitan—apparenty at a loss of nearly $100,000 for herself. Explanations followed.

When war was declared Miss Destinn had gone to her home in Prague, Bohemia, and Gilly was visiting her. She was allowed to leave the country and supposed that Gilly would follow. In France she learned that the baritone had been arrested as a French subject and ex-soldier, subject to military duty in France. Gilly was born in Algiers, of French and Arab parents. More than that, he had served in the French army. Austria decided that he must share the fate of other enemy subjects and go into a concentration camp.

Miss Destinn now revealed what had already been suspected by her intimates. She was engaged to marry Gilly and had intended to celebrate her nuptials on their return to America. With her fiance in the hands of his enemies—and her countrymen—she gave up all thought of her professional engagements and went back to Bohemia, certain that she could move the Austrian Government in Gilly's behalf. She was one of the first artists of her own country and she naturally had powerful friends. It would be no very difficult matter to have the man released.

But the soprano was counting on the civil Governors of Austria. She found the military regime which she encountered on her return a very different sort of institution. Prussianized Austria was not to be reached or moved by her pleas, and Gilly had to go along into prison. She immediately set to work to move every influence which a notable artist and a woman of high accomplishments and prestige may bring to her aid. In vain. The best she could get was an offer of Gilly's freedom under certain conditions. When Gilly was brought from camp he was conducted into the presence of a military authority having discretion in the matter of enemy aliens and told that he would be allowed to leave the country on Miss Destinn's representations if——

A document was passed over for his signature. It was the usual parole declaration under whose terms a released prisoner undertakes not to bear arms against the enemy country releasing him at any time during the war in progress. He also signs away, in case he should violate the parole, all right to his life, all honors of war, should he be recaptured by his enemies. This is one of the ancient and time-honored usages of war. But it did not please the temperamental singer.

"I have no intention of enlisting in the French armies," he said. "But no one can tell what might happen."

Dinh Gilly went back to his prison camp without further words.

Unfortunately, his bit of frowardness reacted upon Miss Destinn. When she thought she might be able to do something in her sweetheart's behalf by leaving the country, Austria sternly forbade her going and instructed her to stay quietly at her home in Prague. Here she remained more or less a prisoner, doing occasional war work and trying all the time to relieve Gilly.

Apparently there was trouble in Bohemia, for soon afterwards the treatment of the great soprano took on new rigors. She was watched and restricted. Finally, it is said, she was commanded to leave Bohemia. Whether she actually had taken a part in the Bohemian uprisings, whisperings of which have trickled through the Austrian censorship, is not to be said at this time. In any event matters grew worse instead of better for both her and her baritone fiance.

Now, it seems, the favorite of the opulent audiences of New York and Berlin is grudgingly allowed to display her voice for the benefit of the impoverished Belgians.

A less devoted woman than Miss Destinn might have avoided the misfortunes that have overcome her. Instead, she voluntarily went back to Austria, against the warnings of her friends and at a heavy money sacrifice and there got herself into woes by her very assiduity in behalf of a man who would not compromise when his freedom was at hand.

What Mme. Destinn has done is in keeping with her character as it is known to all her American intimates. She is one of the serious and devoted artists of the operatic corps. She takes her work to heart, is a constant student, has broadened out in several intellectual lines and has a musical background greatly superior to that attained by most of the successful divas. Her Riverside Drive apartment contains a fine library in addition to her art collections, and her home in Prague is said to be one of the Bohemian show places.

She has ever been a simple artist, proud of her peasant origin, without the slightest pose and barren of the usual fatuous temperament.

Dinh Gilly attracted a deal of attention in New York when first his curious name was displayed. That was in the halcyon days of Andreas Dippel. But Gilly, despite his name, proved to be a real artist and was soon one of the Metropolitan's favorite baritones. His father, a French officer, met and married the daughter of one of the old Arab families. The boy was brought up in an Oriental home and French schools, so that his early training was an odd mixture of the East and West. His father placed him in the army, where he served his two years. But he disappointed the paternal wish that he become an officer. Instead he began his musical studies, originally much against the will of "the Colonel."

Dinh Gilly.

He was fairly successful from the start, so that in the end his military father had to admit that perhaps it was better to be a famous singer than an officer.

Gilly often appeared in opera opposite Destinn, and here, supposedly, their friendship began.

The real name of Miss Destinn is Emmy Kittek, Destinn having been assumed by her for operatic purposes. She began her artistic career as a violiniste, but when it was discovered that she possessed a voice of unusual quality and power she decided to play the violin only as a pastime.

A few years ago she applied for American naturalization papers. At the time she announced that she was 36 years old, weighed 170 pounds and was about to become the bride of an Arab. She added:

"I have contemplated this step for two years (referring to the naturalization) for I love this country and hope to make it my real home. I love your American women and I like your men."

Determining Stenographic Costs.

NINE business houses out of every 10 employing five or more stenographers or typists are purchasing this labor at a cost of at least 10 per cent above what it should be.

A typist's worth cannot be estimated by casual observance. A 10 per cent or even 20 per cent difference in the amount of work turned out in a day's time is difficult to check up under ordinary methods, yet the difference means a 10 or 20 per cent difference in the payroll.

In order to give an accurate index of the productive capacity of every stenographer or typist, there has recently been introduced a typewriter cyclometer, which may be readily attached to any typewriter. By taking a reading of the cyclometer in the morning and again at closing time, it is immediately possible to check up the day's work of each stenographer or typist.

Many of the largest business houses are using a cyclometer, some of them even going so far as to make up their payroll solely according to cyclometer readings.

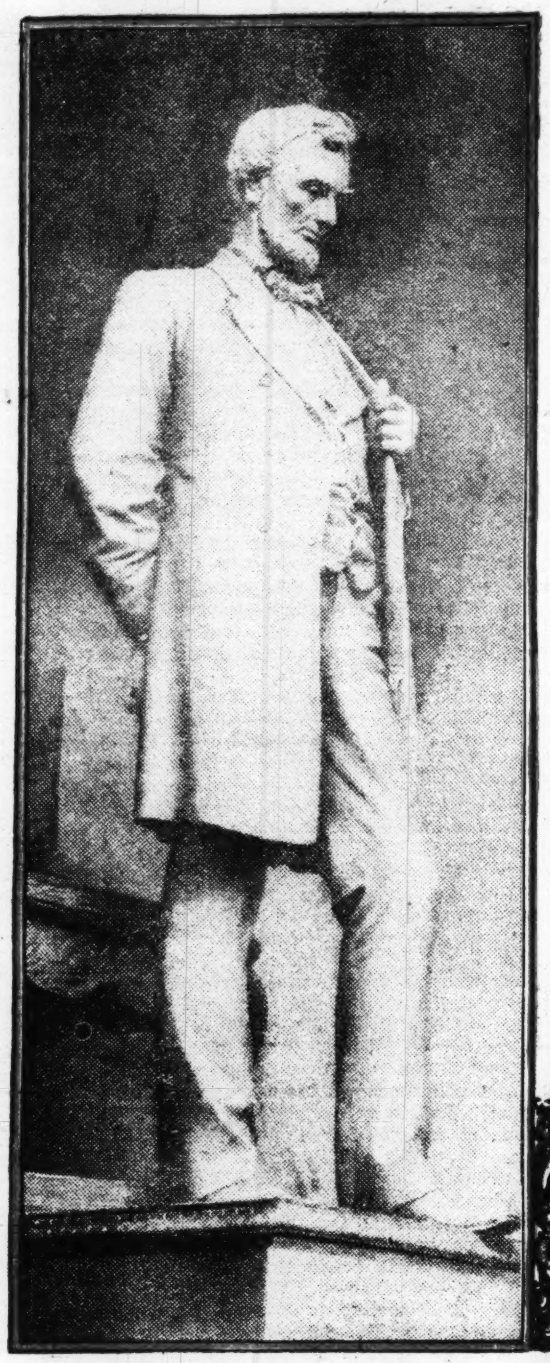
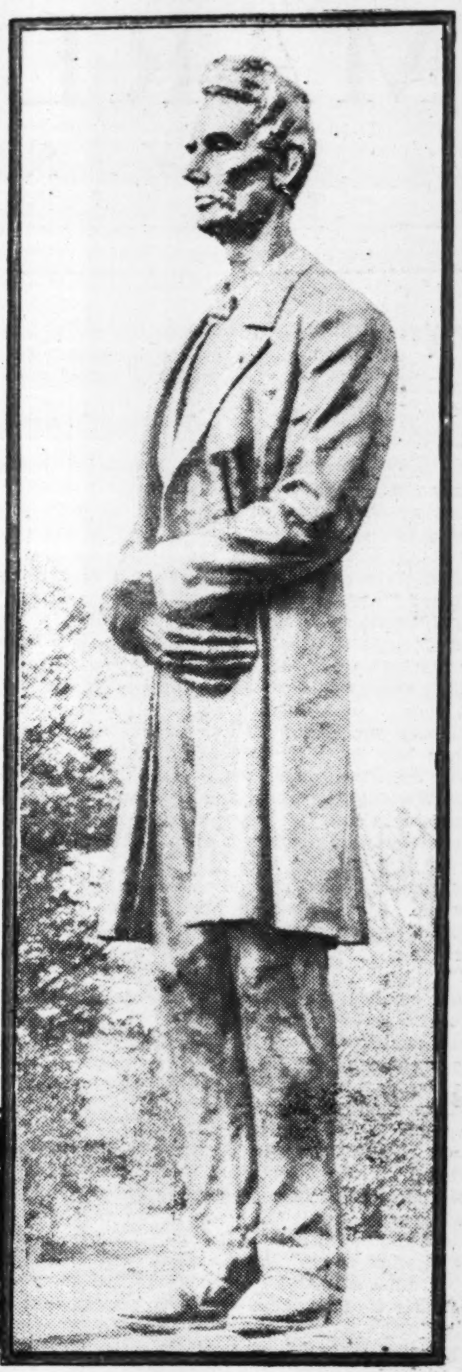
The Battle of the Lincoln Statues

War rages as to which of several figures shall be model for monument of emancipator to be erected in London—Barnard work, pronounced "grotesque and defamatory" by President's son, "is a veracious portrait of Lincoln at his worst," says St. Louisan who knew him—St. Gaudens statue "idealized to the point of falseness"—Hitherto unpublished photograph, owned in St. Louis, declared one of the best likenesses :: ::



The St. Gaudens statue, said to be the most majestic figure of Lincoln yet made.



The Barnard statue, called "a calamity in bronze."

AS in a former age there raged a "Battle of the Books," so today, among American art connoisseurs and public men, there is being fought a bitter "battle of the statues." The question at issue is which of several celebrated figures of Abraham Lincoln shall be reproduced in replica for the statue of the martyred President which the United States is to present to England, and which is to stand in London, adjacent to Westminster Abbey and the House of Parliament.

The suggestion, not yet officially adopted, that George Gray Barnard's statue, erected in Cincinnati, shall serve as the model, has aroused particular fury. Robert Todd Lincoln, son of the President, indignantly protests that this work is "grotesque as a likeness and defamatory as an effigy;" and similar criticism was voiced by Senator Lodge, Col. Henry Watterson and the late Joseph Choate. The statue has been denounced as "a calamity in bronze."

The charges brought against the Barnard statue are summed up by the Art World Magazine, which is bitterly hostile to the work. They are: The statue shows false proportions throughout; the shoulders are narrow, sloping and consumptive; the figure absolutely lacks grace; the enormously long, scrawny neck gives the impression of an anaconda struggling out of a hole in the ground; there is a sourness of expression and a cadaverous accentuation of Lincoln's lack of flesh in the face; the hands are enormous and utterly untrue; the "Adam's apple" is more prominent than the nose or chin; the feet are such as no human being, unless born a degenerate, ever possessed; the hands are pressed over the stomach as if Lincoln had the colic; the trousers look more like two legless stovepipes than human legs draped in cloth; and the face falsely represents Lincoln as a melancholy, distrust-inspiring weakling.

Much jocularity has been aimed at the sculptor because he admits having used as a model a man whom he met in Louisville, who was 6 feet 4 1-2 inches tall, who was born not far from Lincoln's birthplace, and who had been splitting rails all his life.

Barnard replies that he attempted to depict the real Lincoln and his personality as a symbol of democracy. "An imaginary Lincoln would be an insult to the public and a thwarting of democracy," declaims the sculptor. "No imitation tool of an artist's conception, but the tool God and Lincoln made—Lincoln's own self—must be shown."

As a witness in the controversy the Post-Dispatch summoned former Lieutenant-Governor Charles P. Johnson, one of the few surviving St. Louisans who knew Lincoln well. Like Sir Roger de Coverley, Gov. Johnson is of the opinion that there is something to be said on both sides. He declares first that the Barnard statue is a remarkably veracious portrait of Abraham Lincoln. But it is also, he says, a portrait of Lincoln at his worst.

At the age of 81, Gov. Johnson is still in active possession of his faculties, and remembers vividly the various occasions when he saw the war President. He first knew him as a political speaker in Illinois. Then, soon after the outbreak of the war, he was sent to Washington by Gen. Nathaniel Lyon to get authority from Lincoln to muster the American Zouaves of St. Louis into the Federal service. Later he was one of a committee of Missourians who visited Lincoln at Washington in 1863.

"The Barnard statue," he says, "is an excellent likeness of Lincoln in repose, and Lincoln in repose was at his worst. There is no question that he was a remarkably homely man. This was true not only of his features, but he was uncouth and unpolished looking any way you took him. He was angular and awkward in his movements. He walked loosely, with something between a shamble and a stroll.

"Outwardly he had a certain lack of dignity, which came from his familiarizing himself with the hardy element of pioneer Illinois. I can remember the surprise with which we young fellows saw him in Belleville, Edwardsville and Alton. We were used to such courtly and polished speakers and gentlemen as Douglas, Trumbull, Yates, Baker and Shields. Lincoln mixed with the crowd, telling his jokes, and his dress was extremely careless.

"Only when Lincoln was aroused did you see the great qualities in him that were hidden when he was in repose. Then the intellectuality of the man, which the statue does not hint at, was revealed. As to the lugubriousness of the statue's expression, there was always a look of melancholy about Lincoln. To show the real Lincoln, I think the sculptor should have caught a composite of him at different times and in different moods. You can never get a real portrait of a man by giving his looks and features just in one particular attitude, mental and physical."

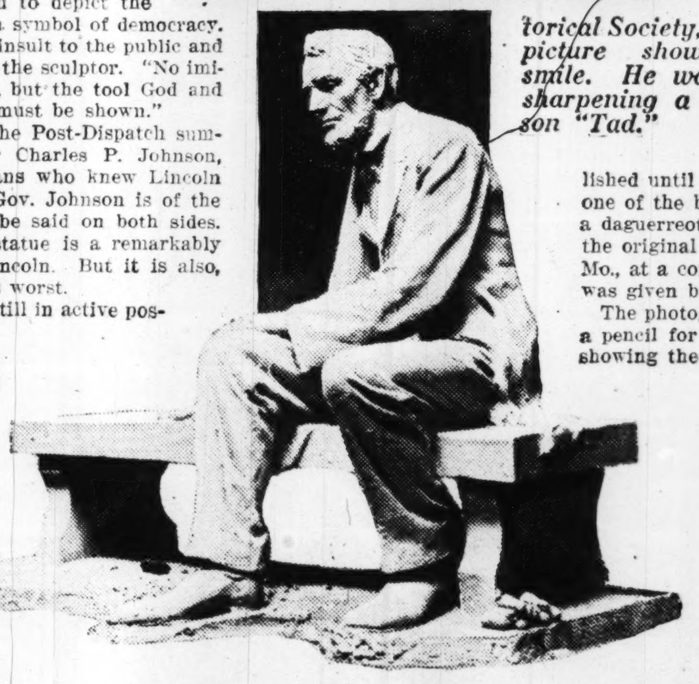
As to the famous St. Gaudens statue in Lincoln Park, Chicago, which many would choose as the original of the figure to be set up in London, Gov. Johnson declares it is idealized to the point of falseness. "The figure is too symmetrical, and the face too handsome," he asserts. "At his best, Lincoln never presented such a Jove-like front."

There was shown to Gov. Johnson a photograph of Lincoln, believed never to have been published until its reproduction on this page today. He pronounced it one of the best likenesses of the President he had ever seen. It is a daguerreotype, taken a few months before Lincoln's death, and the original was presented by a friend to R. Goebel of St. Charles, Mo., at a convention of photographers in Cleveland during 1870. It was given by Goebel to the Missouri Historical Society.

The photographer took Lincoln as he was in the act of sharpening a pencil for his son Tad. It is said to be the only picture extant showing the Lincoln smile.



The Borglum statue at Newark, N. J.

The Art World, producing photographs dating from 1854 to the year of Lincoln's death as evidence, proclaims that so far from being ugly, "Lincoln had one of the grandest faces ever modeled by a benign providence." This journal admits that "he was not an Adonis, and did not have the matinee-idol face of his assassin, the actor Booth. "But he was a plain man, not ugly; simple, not common; rugged, but not a rough-neck."

The photographs show, says the magazine, that Lincoln's proportions, in consideration of his great height, were as perfect as those of any man; that his neck was normal in length and thickness; that he had considerable grace; that his shoulders were broad and square, instead of sloping; that his hands and feet were, if anything, small for so large a man; and that, at least after he was 45 years old, he dressed in the height of fashion.

Kenyon Cox, the painter, believes the St. Gaudens statue to be a better likeness than Barnard's, but adds that even if the latter work were a perfect verisimilitude of Lincoln, the fitness of such a presentation would be open to grave question, considering Lincoln as he is held in the hearts of the people of America. "Mr. Barnard," he confesses, "is a man of talent, who has done what he tried to do, but I do not think he tried to do the right thing. In trying to accent the 'popular' Lincoln he has made something like a caricature."

A defender of Barnard's idea is found in Edward William Thomson, author of many well-known poems about Lincoln. He says: "Father Abraham, whose aspect I remember with the poignancy of a worshiping

MARLITT'S SHOES

BY ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

I

THROUGH the open window the spring sunshine fell on Calvert's broad back. Tennant faced the window, smoking reflectively.

"I should like to ask a favor," he said. "May I?"

"Certainly you may," replied Calvert: "everybody else asks favors 365 times a year."

Tennant, smoking peacefully, gazed at an open window across the narrow courtyard, where, in the sunshine, a young girl sat sewing.

"The favor," he said, "is this: there is a vacancy on the staff, and I wish you'd give Marlitt another chance."

"Marlitt!" exclaimed Calvert. "Why Marlitt?"

"Because," said Tennant, "I understand that I am wearing Marlitt's shoes—and the shoes pinch."

"Marlitt's shoes would certainly pinch you if you were wearing them," said Calvert, grimly. "But you are not. Suppose you were? Better wear even Marlitt's shoes than hop about the world barefoot. You are a singularly sensitive young man. I come uptown to offer you Warrington's place, and your reply is a homily on Marlitt's shoes!"

Calvert's black eyes began to snap and his fat, pink face turned pinker.

"Mr. Tennant," he said, "I am useful to those who are useful to me. I am a business man. I know of no man or syndicate of men wealthy enough to conduct a business for the sake of giving employment to the unsuccessful!"

Tennant smoked thoughtfully.

"Some incompetent," continued Calvert, "is trying to make you uncomfortable. You asked us for a chance; we gave you the chance. You proved valuable to us, and we gave you Marlitt's job. You need not worry: Marlitt was useless, and had to go anyway. Warrington left us today, and you've got to do his work."

Tennant regarded him in silence; Calvert laid one pudgy hand on the doorknob. "You know what we think of your work. There is not a man in New York who has your chance. All I say is, we gave you the chance and you took it. Keep it; that's what we ask!"

"That is what I ask," said Tennant, with a troubled laugh. "I am sentimentalist enough to feel something like gratitude towards those who gave me my first opportunity."

"Obligation's mutual," snapped Calvert. The hardness in his eyes, however, had died out. "You'd better finish that double page," he added; "they want to start the color work by Monday. You'll hear from us if there's any delay. Good-by."

Tennant opened the door for him; Calvert, buttoning his gloves, stepped out into the hallway and rang for the elevator. Then he turned:

"Don't let envy make things unpleasant for you, Mr. Tennant."

"Nobody has shown me any envy," said Tennant.

"I thought you said something about your friend Marlitt"——

"I never saw Marlitt; I only know his work."

"Oh," said Calvert, with a peculiar smile, "you only know his work."

"That is all. Who is Marlitt?"

"The last of an old New York family; reduced circumstances, proud, incompetent, unsuccessful. Why does the artist who signs 'Marlitt' interest you?"

"This is why," said Tennant, and drew a letter from his pocket. "Do you mind listening?"

"Go on," said Calvert, with a wry face. And Tennant began:

"'Dear Mr. Tennant: Just a few words to express my keenest interest and delight in the work you are doing—not only the color work, but the pen-and-ink. You know that the public has made you their idol, but I thought you might care to know what the unsuccessful in your own profession think. You have already taught us so much; you are, week by week, raising the standard so high; and you are doing so much for me, that I venture to thank you and wish you still greater happiness and success.

"'MARLITT.'"

Calvert looked up. "Is that all?"

"That is all. There is neither date nor address on the note. I wrote to Marlitt, care of your office. Your office forwarded it, I see, but the postoffice returned it to me today. * * * What has become of Marlitt?"

Calvert touched the elevator bell again. "If I knew," he said, "I'd find a place for—Marlitt."

Tennant's face lighted. Calvert, scowling, avoided his eyes.

"I want you to understand," he said, peevishly, "that there is no sentiment in this matter."

"I understand," said Tennant.

"You think you do," sneered Calvert, stepping into the elevator. The door slammed; the cage descended; the fat, pink countenance of Calvert, distorted into a furious sneer, slowly sank out of sight.

II.

TENNANT entered his studio and closed the door. In the mellow light the smile faded from his face. Perhaps he was thinking of the unsuccessful, from whose crowded ranks he had risen—comrades preordained to mediocrity, foredoomed to failure—industrious, hopeful, brave young fellows, who must live their lives to learn the most terrible of all lessons—that bravery alone wins no battles.

"What luck I have had!" he said, aloud, to himself walking over to the table and seating himself before the drawing. For an hour he studied it; touched it here and there, caressing outlines, swinging masses into vigorous composition, with a touch of point or a sweeping erasure. Strength, knowledge, command were his; he knew it, and he knew the pleasure of it.

Having finished the drawing, he unpinned the pencil studies, replacing each by its detail in color—charming studies executed with sober precision, yet sparkling with a gayety that no reticence and self-denial could dim. He dusted the drawing, tacked on tracing paper, and began to transfer, whistling softly as he bent above his work.

Sunlight fell across the corner of the table, glittering among glasses, saucers of porcelain, crystal bowls in which brushes dipped in brilliant colors had been rinsed. To escape the sun he rolled the table back a little way, then continued, using the ivory-pointed tracing stylus. He worked neither rapidly nor slowly; there was a leisurely precision in his progress; pencil, brush, tracer, eraser, did their errands surely, steadily. Yet already he had the reputation of being the most rapid worker in his craft.

During intervals when he leaned back to stretch his muscles and light a cigarette his eyes wandered towards a window just across the court, where sometimes a girl sat. She was there now, rocking in a dingy rocking chair, stitching away by her open window. Once or twice she turned her head and glanced across at him. After an interval he laid his cigarette on the edge of a saucer and resumed his work. In the golden gloom of the studio the stillness was absolute, save for the delicate stir of a curtain rustling at his open window. A breeze moved the hair on his temples; his eyes wandered towards the window across the court. The window was so close that they could have conversed together had they known each other.

In the court new grass was growing; grimy shrubbery had freshened into green; a tree was already in full leaf. Here and there cats sprawled on sun-warmed roofs, sparrows chirked under eaves from whence wisps of litter trailed, betraying hidden nests.

Below his window, hanging in heavy twists, a wisteria twined, its long bunches of lilac-tinted blossoms alive with bees.

His eyes followed the flight of a shabby sparrow. "If I were a bird," he said, aloud, "I'd not be idiot enough to live in a New York back yard." And he resumed his work whistling.

But the languor of spring was in his veins, and he bent forward again, sniffing the mild air. The witchery of spring had also drawn his neighbor to her window, where she leaned on the sill, cheeks in her hands, listlessly watching the flight of the sparrows.

The little creatures were nest building; from moment to moment a bird fluttered up towards the eaves, bearing with it a bit of straw, a feather sometimes, sometimes a twisted end of string.

"It's spring fever," he yawned, passing one hand over his eyes. "I feel like rolling on the grass—there's a puppy in that yard doing it now"——

He washed a badger brush and dried it. Perfume from the wistaria filled his throat and lungs; his very breath, exhaling, seemed sweetened with the scent.

"There's that girl across the way," he said, aloud, as though making the discovery for the first time.

Sunshine now lay in dazzling white patches across his drawing. He blinked, washed another brush, and leaned back in his chair again, looking across at his neighbor. Youth is in itself attractive; and she was young—a white-skinned, dark-eyed girl, a trifle colorless, perhaps, like a healthy plant needing the sun.

"They grow like that in this town," he reflected, drumming idly on the table with his pencil. "Who is she? I've seen her there for months, and I don't know."

The girl raised her dark eyes and gave him a serene stare.

"Oh, yes," he muttered, "I see your eyes, but they tell me nothing about you. You're all alike when you look at us out of the windows called eyes. What's behind those eyes? Nobody knows. Nobody knows."

He dropped his hand on the table and began tracing arabesques with his pencil point. Then his capricious fancy blossomed into a sketch of his neighbor—a rapid idealization, which first amused, then enthralled him.

And while his pencil flew he murmured lazily to himself: "You don't know what I'm doing, do you? I wonder what you'd say if you did know? * * * Thank you, ma belle for sitting so still. Won't you smile a little? No? * * * Who are you? What are you?—with your dimpled white hands framing your face. * * * or is it my fancy and my pencil which endow you with qualities that you do not possess? * * * There! you moved. Don't let it occur again." * * *

He passed a soft eraser over the sketch, dimming its outline; picked out a brush and began in color, rambling on in easy, listless self-communion: "I've asked you who you are and you haven't told me. Pas chic, ca. There are thousands and thousands of dark-eyed little things like you in this city. Did you ever see the streets when the shops close? There are thousands and thousands like you in the throng—some poor, some poorer; some good, some better; some young, some younger; all trotting across the world on eager feet. Where? Nobody knows. Why? Nobody knows. Heigh-ho! Your portrait is done, little neighbor."

He hovered over the delicate sketch, silent a moment, under the spell of his own work. "If you were like this, a man might fall in love with you," he muttered, raising his eyes.

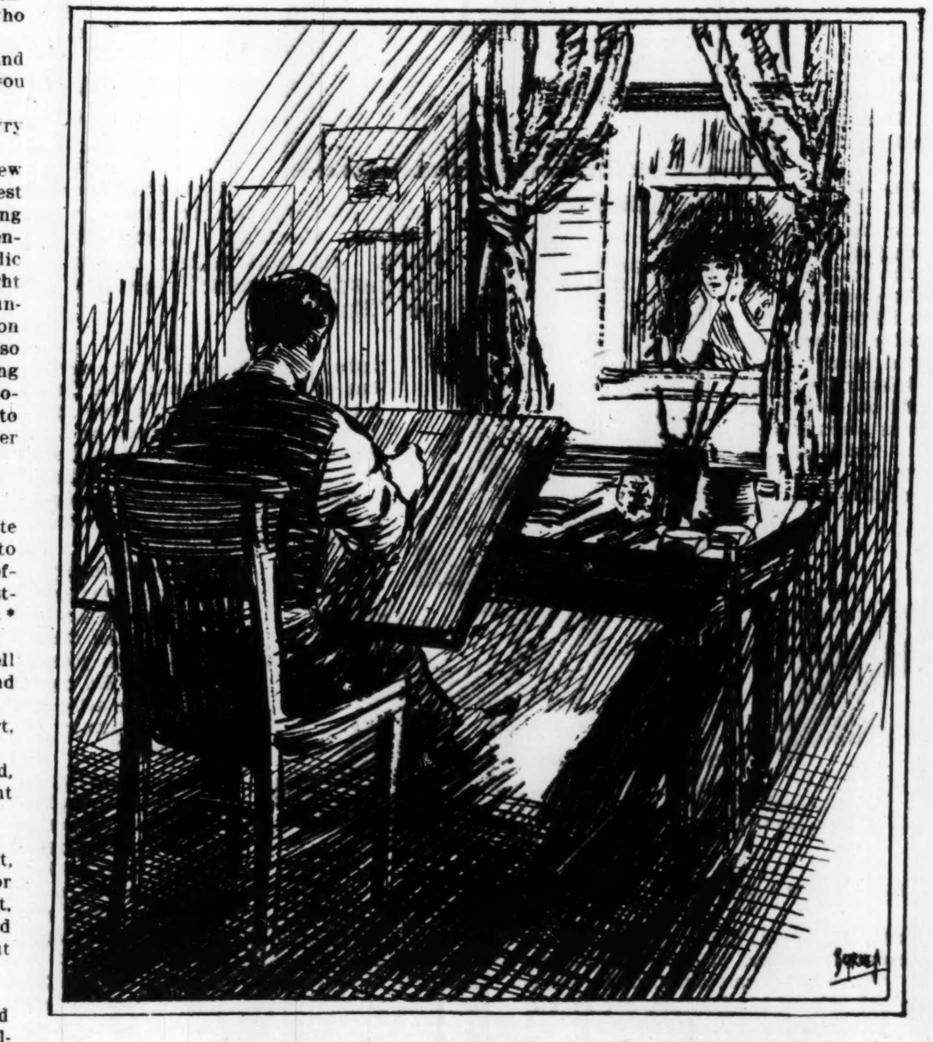
The development of ideas is always remarkable, particularly on a sunny day in springtime. Sunshine, blue sky and the perfume of the wistaria were too much for Tennant.

"I'm going out!" he said, abruptly, and put on his hat. Then he drew on his gloves, lighted a cigarette, and glanced across at his neighbor.

"I wish you were going, too," he said.

His neighbor had risen and was now standing by her window, hands clasped behind her, gazing dreamily out into the sunshine.

"Upon my word," said Tennant, "you are really as pretty as my sketch! Now, isn't that curious? I had no idea"——



The witchery of Spring had also drawn his neighbor to her window, where she leaned on the sill, cheeks in her hands, listlessly watching the flight of the sparrows.

A rich tint crept into his neighbor's face, staining the white skin with carmine.

"The sun is doing you good," he said, approvingly. "You ought to put on your hat and go out."

She turned, as though she had heard his words, and picked up a big, black straw hat, placing it daintily upon her head.

"Well—if—that—isn't — curious!" said Tennant, astonished, as she swung towards an invisible mirror and passed a long, gilded pin through the crown of her hat.

"It seems that I only have to suggest a thing"—— He hesitated, watching her.

"Of course, it was coincidence," he said; "but suppose it wasn't? Suppose it was telepathy—thought transmitted?"

His neighbor was buttoning her gloves.

"I'm a beast to stand here staring," he murmured, as she moved leisurely towards her window, apparently unconscious of him. "It's a shame," he added, "that we don't know each other! I'm going to the park; I wish you were—I want you to go—because it would do you good! You must go!"

Her left glove was now buttoned; the right gave her some difficulty, which she started to overcome with a hairpin.

"If mental persuasion can do it, you and I are going to meet under the wistaria arbor in the park," he said, with emphasis.

To concentrate his thoughts he stood rigid, thinking as hard as a young man can think with a distractingly pretty girl fastening her glove opposite; and the effort produced a deep crease between his eyebrows.

"You — are — going—to—the—wistaria—arbor—in—the—park!" he re-

WHEN EMMIE CAUGHT THE ...WILD FOX IN THE OZARKS...

"Sometimes," said the astonished Evart, "it shore looks like women ain't sense enough to know that a thing cain't be done and so they jist go ahead and do it"—Previously Emmie's Frank had observed that women wasn't thorough-goin' enough to vote and that he didn't believe they'd take the trouble to go ahead with a thing once they got it started.

By ALICE CURTICE MOYER-WING.

"AIN'T he a beauty? Real silver gray, I reckon. His skin will bring me a right smart price this winter."

"But how in the world did you catch him?" I asked in wonder. "It seems a remarkable thing for a woman to do—to bag a big, live, wild fox."

"'Specially after a passel of men had had a turn at tryin' fer him," laughed Emmie. "Well, ain't it often that a-way—a woman will jist step in and do somethin' that a man ain't had the time or the patience fer? The boys was up ever' little while last night, listenin' to the dawgs and goin' out lookin' fur 'em, but they didn't go fur enough. That is, Evert and Frank. Jim, he got up and set by the fire, but he didn't keer whether they got the fox or not. You'll know about Jim if you stay here today.

"We told the boys this mornin' at breakfast that the hounds would git him run down soon," Emmie continued, "but they 'lowed that we didn't know what we was talkin' about and said they didn't aim to fool with 'em no more; said they didn't believe it was a fox nohow. I didn't say nothin', but while Berthie was washin' up the dishes, with Annie pertendin' to help her—you'll know about Annie, too—I jist slips off to look around a little bit fer myself. I tuck off my shoes so's I could run fast, and tuck Ned, my pet shepherd dawg, with me, 'lowing he'd be useful.

"I jist knowed in reason that it was a fox and I shore was bent on havin' him. I was gittin purty tard by the time me and Ned had run five or six mile, but at last here he come, lickety-split, jist a-lopin' right toward us. I was plumb excited. I shore was. But I grabbed me a club and lit into him and Ned right with me. You jist orter a seen us. Heap of the time I couldn't hardly see which was dawg and which was fox, him and Ned was so mixed up in the fight, but at last we got the best of him and I drug him back to camp jist as Evart and Frank was a-bringin' in their first load of fish. There was shore some carryin' on over me killin' the fox.

"'Ain't that jist like a woman, to blunder into a thing like that?' says Evart at last. 'I didn't 'low that fox could be caught no ways soon—and here he is. Sometimes it shore looks like women ain't sense enough to know a thing cain't be done and so they jist go ahead and do it.' They were plumb whipped out. Didn't have much to say as they started back to the river. I was purty nigh sorry it wasn't them that got the fox, they was so beat, but it give 'em a lesson, maybe. They heerd that you had been seen in the swamps and last night they was a-talkin' about women votin'. Us girls had our sleepin' tent up close to the fire and I heered ever' word they said.

"Frank, that's my man, he 'lowed that women wasn't thorough-goin' enough; said he didn't believe they'd take the trouble to go ahead with a thing once they got it started. I grinned to myself, layin' there, rememberin' how many things round home I have to finish up after he starts 'em. Evart, he 'lowed they'd fool away all their time a-talkin' on a subject and never git fur enough along to vote on it, and Jim, he said that he reckoned so; too, jist to have somethin' to say.

"'Jist see how them girls is a-sleepin' right through all this hunt,' Frank says. 'Don't that prove it? If anything is done about that fox, us fellers'll shore have to do it. Ain't it a plumb sight how women jist sleeps along through life, a-leavin' all the shore-'nough work fer the men to do?'

"Then they'd settle a few more big questions, throw some more chunks on the fire and go to bed agin.

"I thought about it when me and Ned was in the thickest of the fight and got to laughin' so hard at the way I knowed they'd look when they seen my fox, that I like to a-give out."

"You shore could a-knocked their eyes off with a club, the way they bugged out when they seen Emmie a-draggin' in that fox, with the hounds a-trottin' along after her. It was plumb funny," laughed Berthie.

"You see, a heap of the disposition of men and of women jist in everyday livin'," said Emmie. "Now they ain't nobody likes blackberry preserves better than men, but did you ever see a man that would let a blackberry briar grow on his farm? And they like hazelnuts and black walnuts and butternuts, but they go right on clearin' up the patches and cuttin' down ever' tree they can find. And they ain't nobody that likes plenty of butter more than men, but you cain't trust 'em to do the milkin' because they won't take the trouble to save strippin's. And I ain't running men down, nuther. I shore ain't. But I can see their ways same as I can see women's."

"The fact is jist this," said Berthie. "It takes the jedgment of both the men and the women to make things right. They've jist natcherly got to stand up side by side and work together. Why, the men cain't no more git along without us, and git along right, than—than—than nothin'. And we cain't no more git along without them than — than — than"——

"We shore cain't, the big, aggervatin' things," said Emmie. "I reckon I'd hate the whole caboodle of 'em if I didn't love some of 'em so good."

"Here comes Jim, ag'in," said Berthie. "Ask him what he thinks of woman suffrage."

But Jim didn't "zackly" believe in it. Seemed to him that women didn't think enough about politics. Now there was Annie, for instance: "Annie," he said to that yellow-haired, blue-eyed young woman, "Annie how much air you a-thinkin' about politics these days? Huh?"

"How much air you a-thinkin' about 'em yourself, Mr. Jim?" said Annie pertly. "I'll own that I ain't a-thinkin' about nothin' much but gittin' ready to be married, but neither air you. I'll own that I cain't keep my mind on my work long enough to wash the dishes, but I notice that you cain't help the boys fish, nuther. So we're jist even."

"I reckon that's so," grinned Jim. Then to me: "We come along on this here trip jist because the other four planned it. Emmie and Evert is Annie's married brother and sister. Us six has a right smart of good times together. But me and Annie would be jist as satisfied anywheres else as here. Fishin' don't cut no figure with us."

"Say, you jist must stay with us today," said Berthie. "Stay till tomorrow. We'll be plumb proud to have you, boys and all. I'll bet you can have fun same as anybody, if you jist turn yourself loose. Women speakers and suffrage workers and sich ain't no different, I reckon, from other people. You can sleep in that wagon out by the big tree. Lots of hay in it. La Belle can eat on it while you're asleep."

"It shore is some fun to keep house on a fishin' trip," said Emmie. "When the grass gits wore off under one tree, we jist move to another, drive a few nails into it, hang up our fryin' pans and are right at home agin."

I shall never be able to describe that day in this river swamp fish camp. I carried water and scaled fish and fried them, and ate them, as they came out of the river, and realized just how much I had missed all my life from not ever having done it before. They never had tasted just the same.

And I had my picture taken, Emmie, Berthie, Annie and I, with fishes that we—well, what's the difference whether we caught them or not? Anyhow, we had our pictures taken with them—the little ones, of course—for everybodys knows that the biggest ones always get away.

And when the darkness came on! All sort of a sudden, it was, without any twilight to speak of, down among the big trees. The river commenced to seem very big and it was night in the swamps.

And the evening around the camp fire, when the supper things had been put away! The lovers, married and unmarried, made love openly as we exchanged stories. Each and every one of them had seen or heard a "hant" at some time or other, and I had to rack my brains for ghostly experiences, real or imaginary, to keep up my end of the entertainment.

Other camp fires were burning up and down the river bank, some of them so near we could hear the voices of the campers, mostly men, and the stamping of their horses, mostly mules.

"The singin' will commence purty soon," remarked Emmie. "There's the same voice we heerd last night a-commencin' to tune up. Hear him?"

"The wolves will likely howl a heap after awhile and be a-prowlin' around a right smart, maybe," remarked Frank, casually. "Hope they won't none of 'em git into the trees," looking anxiously out beyond the firelight. "I shore wouldn't want to sleep fur from the fire."

"The dawgs might help to keep 'em away some," said Evart cautiously. "What I'd be most skeered of is snakes. This is the all-overest place fer 'em in the country, and they're shore bad this time of the year about climbin' trees and drappin' down on a feller while he's asleep."

"Don't you let 'em skeer you," said Annie, soothingly. "I'll go out with you and show you how to make your bed. They ain't no danger of snakes climbin' trees in the fall of the year. They're too busy huntin' holes fer winter. And they won't no wolves come anyways clost to all these camp fires. Shet up, boys."

Annie dextrously smoothed out the hay, leaving an extra amount at La Belle's end of the wagon. A quilt was spread over my part of it. I had a blanket for covering and my saddle for a pillow.

"Better tie your veil over your ye'rs to keep the bugs out," cautioned Annie. "They ain't no danger, I reckon, but it's jist as well to be keerful.

"Jist listen, will you, to that man sing. Don't it sound mournful and purty?"

A strong, carrying voice was ringing out the words:

"Bow, mourners, bow; we'll embrace religion now.
Let this war-fare be ended. hal-le-lu-yer.
Bow, mourners, bow; we'll embrace religion now.
Let this war-fare be ended. hal-le-lu-yer.

CHORUS:

"Hal-le-lu-yer, hal-le-lu-yer,
Let this war-fare be ended, hal-le-lu-yer!"

"Sounds kinder like a prayer, don't it?" whispered Annie. "Reckon he means this awful war that's goin' on now? Anyways, it sounds like a prayer for a-endin', a fair endin', and I'm a-sayin' 'amen' as hard as I can."

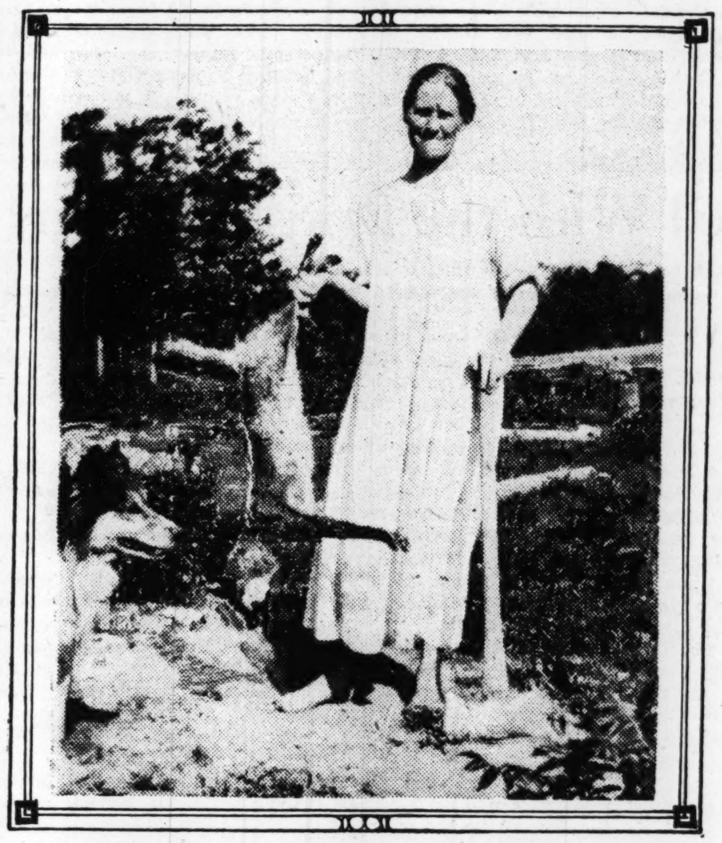
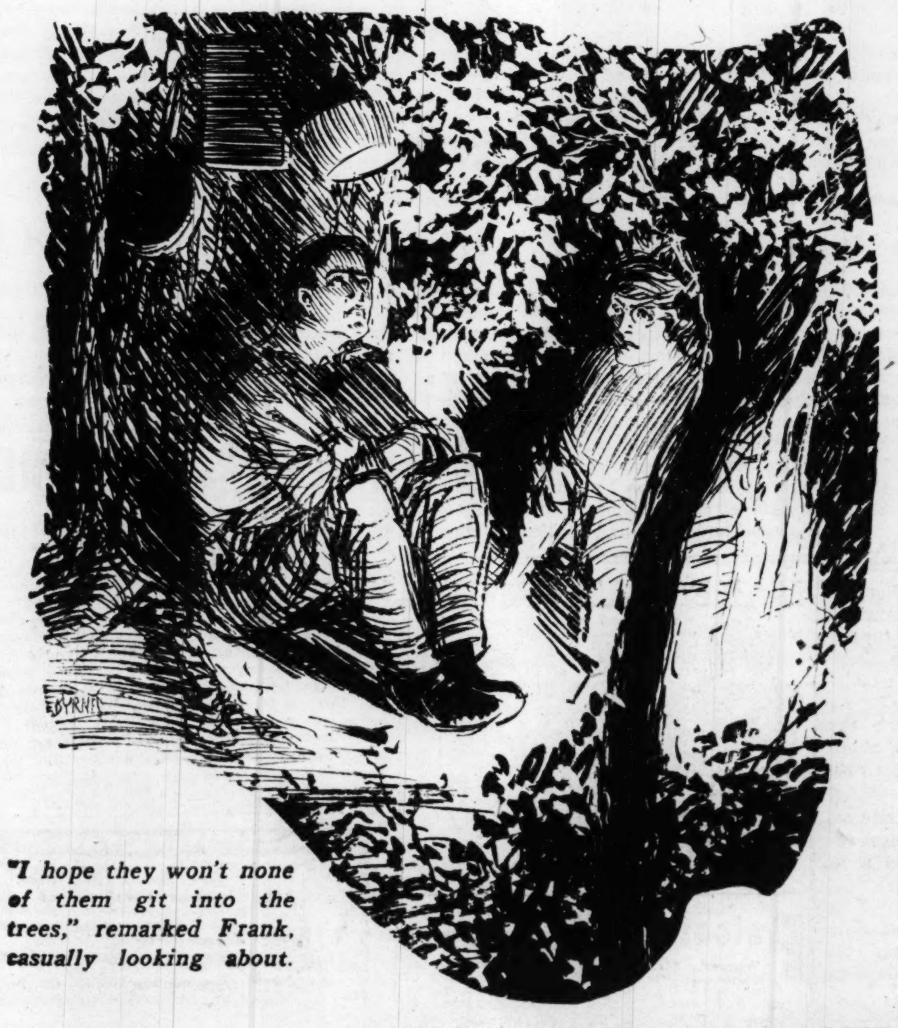
"I jest grabbed a club and lit into him."



Emmie and her fox—and Ned.



"I hope they won't none of them git into the trees," remarked Frank, casually looking about.

Americans, Civil and Military, in Paris

By PAUL FARISH, Formerly of St. Louis.

BOULEVARD DE LA MADELEINE, 10 a. m.—The cafes are filled with a heterogeneous display of varicolored uniforms. On the sidewalk more varieties pass; Russians, with their red epaulettes; Serbians with the funny little caps peculiar to this country; Italians, in their green uniforms; British, swinging the ever-present cane; and, of course, the latest arrivals, the Americans, with their neat khaki uniforms and their high collars.

As to the other varieties of Civis Americanus, the civil, it is only now that he can hold his head up in the street. The new era began at the moment of the rupture with Germany; on that fateful day the species sallied forth with miniature American flags on their coat lapels for the first time. Previously it had been content, yea, pleased, to be mistaken for the common everyday Parisian, although the usual absence of facial growth betrayed the unhappy American.

Yet it must not be imagined that the life of the American civilian is particularly an easy one. While it is true that now Americans are on a plane with the other allied citizens, yet their lot is not too easy. A few months ago the Chief of Police ordered a complete revision of all the permits that had been delivered by the police to foreigners; the city was divided into 10 districts, each including two municipal arrondisements. The 16th and 17th arrondissements, being what might be called the west end of Paris, and being particularly infested with Americans, were grouped together, and a passport office installed on the Boulevard Pereire. Thither all the foreigners of the district were requested to call. However, somone had miscalculatd and underrated the foreign population of the district. They came, thousands strong; they swamped the over-worked clerks, and finally, in desperation, the authorities extended the time limit three months and numbers were issued to applicants. These tickets bore, in addition to a number, the date on which the bearer was to present himslf. To give an idea of the rush it will suffice to say that the tickets that were being issued on the 25th of July bore the date of August 23rd, so that the authorities were about three thousand passports behind. Finally, on the appointed day when the victim presented himself, armed with his American or other passport, birth certificate, Paris police permit, etc., he was confronted with a clerk who made it his business to inquire what he was in Paris for, was he a native or naturalized citizen, his birthplace, age, father's birthplace and age, etc. All this was noted on a little card. The victim gave the name of two French references, a half dozen photos were taken from him, and finally he was allowed to depart after being given a little slip stamped by the bureau stating that So-and-so had undergone the formalities for the delivery of the "Identity card." The cards themselves have not yet been distributd.

Yet all this was nothing compared to the heaven moving efforts required to leave France. Let some poor American attempt to go to England, say for important business. You go to the police station in the Cite, where you are ushered into a large room where some fifty clerks are busy. You go up to the desk, where a patient and willing Frenchman listens to your tale of woe and your reasons for wanting to go to England. You produce letters, etc., showing that it is imperative for you to proceed to England. Finally the Frenchman turns to a small card index at his side and looks up your record. If it is good he asks you if you have been in the "zone des armees," or war zone, which includes all the country within a certain distance of the lines. Unless your "no" is categoric enough to convince, he turns to another card index. If you say "yes" your goose is cooked and it takes almost the personal intervention of a General to get you out. But as most American civils have not been to this dangerous place your name is not on the list, and therefore you are permitttd to fill out a blank giving all the information you have just repeated for the four hundredth time since you have been in France: Name, address, nationality, reason for taking the trip, etc. The blank asks your residence in England, how long you will stay there, and various other bothersome details. A half a dozen photos are then extorted and you are freed with the promise that in eight or ten days you will hear if your sauf-conduit to go to England has been granted. During these eight days the news of your going to England seems to have spread in some mysterious fashion; your janitor in bringing up the morning paper says with a smile, "I understand Monsieur is going away?" This indicates that the secret service has been busy and has found out if your declarations are true.

Finally you receive a little paper from the police, asking you to call and have your passport stamped so that you can leave. If you have had no experience in the matter you might think your troubles are over. Far from it; they have just started. You now go to the British permit office, stopping on the way at the American Embassy to have your passport stamped and a $1 fee collected; at the permit office you are greeted at the door by a fellow in khaki, who gives you a number and asks you to step into the waiting room and wait until your number is called. In due time (about half an hour) a man comes in and pronounces your number in a loud voice. You follow him into the next room where you seat yourself at a desk from behind which a gray-haired Britisher glowers at you over his glasses. Again the same routine: Name, age. Finally he condescends to allow you to go and stamps your passport, after having previously extorted three or four photos and five shillings. Now you are ready to go to England; your passport will only be examined and stamped about four times before you get to London.

per. "Has it ever occurred to you, my mannie, what would happen tae the English—if Scotland was tae make a separate peace?"

And Mr. Bogle retired, not before it was time, within the sheltering portals of the estaminet, where not less than seven inarticulate but appreciative fellow-countrymen offered him refreshment.

The Buzzer (member of the Signal Corps) is a humorist of the sardonic variety. One black night Bobby Little felt constrained to send a message to Battalion Headquarters. He plunged into the noisome cavern where his Company Signallers kept everlasting vigil. The place was in total darkness, except for the illumination supplied by a strip of rifle-rag burning in a tin of rifle-oil. The air, what there was of it, was thick with large, fat, floating particles of free carbon. The telephone was buzzing plaintively to itself, in unsuccessful competition with a well-modulated quartette for four nasal organs, contributed by Bobby's entire signal staff, who, locked in the inextricable embrace peculiar to Thomas Atkins in search of warmth, were snoring harmoniously upon the earthen floor.

The signaller "on duty"—one M'Gurk—was extracted from the heap and put under arrest for sleeping at his post. The enormity of his crime was heightened by the fact that two undelivered messages were found upon his person.

Divers pains and penalties followed. Bobby supplemented the sentence with a homily on the importance of vigilance and despatch. M'Gurk, deeply aggrieved at forfeiting seven days' pay, said nothing, but bided his time. Two nights later the Battalion came out of trenches for a week's rest, and Bobby, weary and thankful, retired to bed in his hut at 9 p. m., in comfortable anticipation of a full night's repose.

He was roused from slumber—not without difficulty—by Signaller M'Gurk, who appeared standing by his bedside with a fluttering candle-end in one hand and a pink dispatch-form in the other. The message said:

"Prevailing wind for next 24 hours probably S. W., with some rain."

Mindful of his own recent admonitions, Bobby thanked M'Gurk politely and went to sleep again.

M'Gurk called again at 2:30 in the morning with another message, which announced:

"Baths will be available for your company from 2 to 3 p. m. tomorrow."

Bobby stuffed the message under his air-pillow and roled over without a word. M'Gurk withdrew, leaving the door of the hut open.

His next visit was about 4 o'clock. This time the message said:

"A Zeppelin is reported to have passed over Dunkirk at 5 p. m. yesterday, proceeding in a northerly direction."

Bobby informed M'Gurk that he was a fool and a dotard, and cast him forth.

M'Gurk returned at 5:30, bearing written evidence that the Zeppelin had been traced as far as Ostend.

This time his Company Commander promised him that if he appeared again that night he would be awarded 14 days' Field Punishment, No. 1.

* * * But Bobby scored the final and winning trick. Sending for M'Gurk and Sergt. M'Micking, he said:

"This man, Sergeant, appears to be unable to decide when a message is urgent and when it is not. In future, whenever M'Gurk is on night duty, and is in doubt as to whether a message should be delivered at once or put aside until morning, he will come to you and ask for your guidance in the matter. Do you understand?"

"Perfectly, sirr!" replied the Sergeant, outwardly calm.

"M'Gurk, do YOU understand?"

M'Gurk looked at Bobby and then round at Sergt. M'Micking. He received a glance which shriveled his marrow. The game was up. He grinned sheepishly and answered: "Yis, sirr!"

A New Wood, the Lightest Known

A NEW wood, apparently little known and called balso wood, is exceedingly light and promises to have an extended field of usefulness in connection with cold storage structures when heat insulation is important. It is a tropical wood growing principally in the states of South and Central America.

The wood is remarkable, first, as to its lightness; second, as to its microscopical structure; third, for its absence of woody fiber; fourth, for its elasticity; and fifth, for its heat-insulating qualities. So far as the investigation has disclosed, it is the lightest commercially useful wood known. It has also considerable structural strength, which makes it suitable for many uses. In general appearance balso wood resembles basswood. Until recently, Missouri cork wood, weighing 18.1 pounds per cubic foot, was believed to be the lighest, but recent investigations indicate that balso wood is much lighter, having a net weight of 7.3 pounds per cubic foot. The ordinary commercial balso wood is seldom perfectly dry, and, because of the moisture content, its weight has been found to be between eight and thirteen pounds per cubic foot.

The extreme lightness of this wood suggests its application as a buoyancy material in life-preservers and lifeboats. When, however, it was attempted to apply the wood practically, it was found to be of little value, because it absorbed water in great quantities and also because it soon rotted and also warped and checked when worked. After testing nearly every method that had been suggested, Col. Marr's method of treating woods which had been recently patented was finally successful. In this method the wood is treated in a bath, of which the principal ingredient is paraffin, by a process which coats the interior cells without clogging up the porous system. The paraffin remains as a coating or varnish over the interior cell walls, preventing the absorption of moisture and the ill-effects as to change of volume and decay which would otherwise take place; it also prevents the bad effects of dry rot which follow the application of any surface treatment for preserving wood of the same type. The Marr process tends to drive out all water and make the wood water-proof.

boy of fifteen years, was not less grotesque, at first glance, than Barnard has figured him. Nor was he less noble than the statue, considered carefully, represents him to have been. He had a primal look—that of one who disregarded clothing, thought not of his habiliments, pitched them on, and grabbed the first old umbrella that chanced to his hand. He appeared ugly and great at once.

"Five seconds after fixing one's eyes on him his queer clothes were forgotten. Then his apparent hand-me-downs ceased to impress the gazer. You remember the old woman who, having been told the President was very homely, came forth from him, after he had granted her request on behalf of her soldier son, declaring indignantly, 'Mr. Lincoln is the handsomest man I ever saw.' So he was. And the greatest-looking. The most benign. His countenance awed me while yet I loved him. Often I have pondered, trying to analyze the causes of his effect.

"Now it seems to me that his presence gave one, at first, a shocked sense, not so much that he was grotesquely clad as that he was wrongly clad. It was as if the long limbs should have been in the fringed deer-skin hunting shirt and leggings and moccasins of the Indian-fighter and pioneer. Were I a sculptor, I should try to get that curious effect of his countenance and garb and motions. He appears to my memory as at once Deerslayer and the greatest of statesmen and Presidents. He really did personify all preceding American worth, that of the woodland and prairie pioneers, as well as that of the legislators and intellectuals."

Continued

We sat together, listening. "Maybe you don't know it, but one of my brothers is in trainin' at Camp Funston," Annie whispered again.

I said I did know it. Emmie had told me.

"Oh, listen! Americy! All the campers up and down the river is a-helpin'. Let's jine in."

We stood up in the wagon box of hay, out in the darkness, and sang, "My country * * * Sweet land of liberty."

The words were weirdly beautiful. And solemn. From our point of vantage we could see our neighbor campers, standing as they sang, and by the firelight of our own log heap, the emotion of the other five of us was discernible. At the closing lines of the last verse, Emmie and Berthie openly dried their tears on the hems of their aprons, and the boys hastily turned their backs to the firelight, and there was a tremble in Annie's voice as she said good-night.

A great solemn hush fell upon the camps. La Belle nozzled the hay about my feet, telling me her feeling in her own expressive language.

Then, again, the voice that was mournful and "purty": "Let this warfare be ended, hal-le-lu-yer!" I construed it as Annie had understood it, with a reverent "Amen."

The next thing I knew, the soft light of another morning was waking the camps along the river and it was daytime again in the swamps.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 233D Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a [illegible] or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.—ADV.

She turned as though she had heard, and looked straight at him. Her face was bright with color; never had he seen such fresh beauty in a human face.

Her eyes wandered from him upward to the serene blue sky; then she stepped back, glanced into the mirror, touched her hair with the tips of her gloved fingers, and walked away, disappearing into the gloom of the room.

An astonishing sense of loneliness came over him—a perfectly unreasonable feeling, because every day for months he had seen her disappear from the window, always viewing the phenomenon with disinterested equanimity.

"Now, I don't for a moment suppose she's going to the wistaria arbor," he said, mournfully, walking towards his door.

But all the way down in the elevator and out on the street he was comforting himself with stories of strange coincidences; of how, sometimes, walking alone and thinking of a person he had not seen or thought of for years, raising his eyes he had met that person face to face. And a presentiment that he should meet his neighbor under the wistaria arbor grew stronger and stronger, until, as he turned in the broad, southeastern entrance to the park, his heart began beating an uneasy, expectant tattoo under his starched white waistcoat.

"I've been smoking too many cigarettes," he muttered. "Things like that don't happen. It would be too silly"——

And it was rather silly; but she was there. He saw her the moment he entered the wistaria arbor, seated in a rustic recess. It may be that she was reading the book she held so unsteadily in her small, gloved fingers, but the book was upside down. And when his footstep echoed on the asphalt, she raised a pair of thoroughly frightened eyes.

His expression verged on the idiotic; they were a scared pair, and it was only when the bright flush of guilt flooded her face that he recovered his senses in a measure and took off his hat.

"I—I hadn't the slightest notion that you would come," he stammered. "This is the—the most amazing example of telepathy I ever heard of!"

"Telepathy?" she repeated, faintly.

"Telepathy! Thought persuasion! It's incredible! It's—it's a—it was a dreadful thing to do. I don't know what to say."

"Is it necessary for you to say anything to—me?"

"Can you ever pardon me?"

"I don't think I understand," she said, slowly. "Are you asking pardon for your rudeness in speaking to me?"

"No," he almost groaned; "I'll do that later. There is something much worse"——

Her cool self-possession unnerved him. Composure is sometimes the culmination of fright; but he did not know that, because he did not know the subtler sex. His fluency left him; all he could repeat was, "I'm sorry I'm speaking to you—but there's something much worse."

"I cannot imagine anything worse," she said.

"Won't you grant me a moment to explain?" he urged.

"How can I?" she replied calmly. "How can a woman permit a man to speak to her without shadow of excuse? You know perfectly well what convention requires."

Hot, uncomfortable, he looked at her so appealingly that her eyes softened a little.

"I don't suppose you mean to be impertinent to me," she said, coldly.

He said that he didn't with so much fervor that something perilously close to a smile touched her lips. He told her who he was, and the information appeared to surprise her, so it is safe to assume she knew it already. He pleaded in extenuation that they had been neighbors for a year; but she had not, apparently been aware of this either; and the snub completed his discomfiture.

"I—I was so anxious to know you," he said, miserably. "That was the beginning"——

"It is a perfectly horrid thing to say," she said, indignantly. "Do you suppose, because you are a public character, you are privileged to speak to anybody?"

He attempted to say he didn't, but she went on: "Of course, that is not a palliation of your offense. It is a dreadful condition of affairs if a woman cannot go out alone"——

"Please don't say that!" he cried.

"I must. It is a terrible comment on modern social conditions," she repeated, shaking her pretty head. "A woman who permits it—especially a woman who is obliged to support herself—for if I were not poor I should be driving here in my brougham, and you know it!—oh, it is a hideously common thing for a girl to do!" Opening her book, she appeared to be deeply interested in it. But the book was upside down.

Glancing at him a moment later, she was apparently surprised to find him still standing beside her. However, he had noted two things in that moment of respite: she held the book upside down, and on the title page was written a signature that he knew—"Marlitt."

"Under the circumstances," she said, coldly, "do you think it decent to continue this conversation?"

"Yes, I do," he said. "I'm a decent sort of fellow, or you would have divined the contrary long ago; and there is a humiliating explanation that I owe you."

"You owe me every explanation," she said, "but I am generous enough to spare you the humiliation."

"I know what you mean," he admitted. "I hypnotized you into coming here, and you are aware of it."

Pink to the ears with resentment and confusion, she sat up very straight and stared at him. From a pretty girl defiant, she became an angry beauty. And he quailed.

"Did you imagine that you hypnotized me?" she asked, incredulously.

"What was it, then?" he muttered. "You did everything I wished for"——

"What did you wish for?"

"I—I thought you needed the sun, and as soon as I said that you ought to go out you—you put on that big, black hat. And then I wished I knew you—I wished you would come here to the wistaria arbor, and—you came."

"In other words," she said, disdainfully, "you deliberately planned to control my mind and induce me to meet you in a clandestine and horrid manner."

"I never looked at it in that way. I only knew I admired you a lot, and—and you were tremendously charming—more so than my sketch"——

"What sketch?"

"I—you see, I made a little sketch," he admitted—"a little picture of you"——

Her silence scared him.

"Do you mind?" he ventured.

"Of course, you will send that portrait to me at once," she said.

"Oh, yes, of course I will; I had meant to send it anyway"——

"That," she observed, "would have been the very height of impertinence."

Opening her book again, she indulged him with a view of the most exquisite profile he had ever dreamed of.

She despised him; there seemed to be no doubt about that. He despised himself; his offense, stripped by her of all extenuation, appeared to him in its own naked hideousness; and it appalled him.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "there is nothing criminal in me. I never imagined that a man could appear to such disadvantage as I appear. I'll go. There's no use in hoping for pardon. I'll go."

Studying her book, she said, without raising her eyes, "I am offended—deeply hurt—but"——

He waited anxiously.

"But I am sorry to say that I am not as deeply offended as I ought to be."

"That is very, very kind of you," he said, warmly.

"It is very depraved of me," she retorted, turning a page.

After a silence, he said, "Then I suppose I must go."

It is possible she did not hear him; she seemed engrossed, bending a little closer over the book on her knee, for the shadows of blossoms and foliage above had crept across the printed page.

All the silence was in tremulous vibration with the hum of bees; the perfume of the flowers grew sweeter as the sun sank towards the west, flinging long, blue shadows over the grass and asphalt.

A gray squirrel came hopping along, tail twitching, and deliberately climbed up the seat where she was sitting, squatting beside her, paws drooping in dumb appeal.

"You dear little thing!" said the girl, impulsively. "I wish I had a bonbon for you! Have you anything in the world to give this half-starved squirrel, Mr. Tennant?"

"Nothing but a cigarette," muttered Tennant. "I'll go out to the gate if you"—— He hesitated. "They generally sell peanuts out there," he added, vaguely.

"Squirrels adore peanuts," she murmured, caressing the squirrel, who had begun fearlessly snooping into her lap.

Tennant, enchanted at the tacit commission, started off at a pace that brought him to the gate and back again before he could arrange his own disordered thoughts.

She was reading when he returned, and she cooled his enthusiasm with a stare of surprise.

"The squirrel? Oh, I'm sure I don't know where that squirrel has gone. Did you really go all the way to the gate for peanuts to stuff that overfed squirrel?"

He looked at the four paper bags, opened one of them, and stirred the nuts with his hand.

"What shall I do with them?" he asked.

Then, and neither ever knew exactly why, she began to laugh. The first laugh was brief; an oppressive silence followed—then she laughed again; and as he grew redder and redder, she laughed the most deliciously fresh peal of laughter he had ever heard.

"This is dreadful!" she said. "I should never have come alone to the park! You should never have dared to speak to me. All we need to do now is to eat those peanuts, and you have all the material for a picture of courtship below stairs! Oh, dear, and the worst part of it all is that I laugh!"

"If you'd let me sit down," he said, "I'd complete the picture and eat peanuts."

"You dare not!"

He seated himself, opened a paper bag, and deliberately cracked and ate a nut.

"Horrors! and disillusion! The idol of the public—munching peanuts!"

"You ought to try one," he said.

She stood it for a while; but the saving grace of humor warned her of her peril, and she ate a peanut.

"To save my face," she explained. "But I didn't suppose you were capable of it."

"As a matter of fact," he said, tranquilly, "a man can do anything in this world if he only does it thoroughly and appears to enjoy himself. I've seen the Prince Regent of Boznovia sitting at the window of the Crown Regiment Barracks arrayed in his shirtsleeves and absorbing beer and pretzels."

"But he was the Prince Regent!"

"And I'm Tennant."

"According to that philosophy you are at liberty to eat fish with your knife."

"But I don't want to."

"But suppose you did want to?"

"That is neither philosophy nor logic," he insisted; "that is speculation. May I offer you a stick of old-fashioned circus candy, flavored with wintergreen?"

"You may," she said, accepting it. "If there is any lower depth I may attain, I'm sure you will suggest it."

"I'll try," he said. Their eyes met for an instant; then hers were lowered.

Squirrels came in troops; she fed the little, fat scamps to repletion, and the green lawn was dotted with squirrels all busily burying peanuts for future consumption. A brilliant peacock appeared, picking his way towards them, followed by a covey of imbecile peafowl. She fed them until their crops protruded.

The sun glittered on the upper windows of the clubs and hotels along Fifth avenue; the west turned gold, then pink. Clouds of tiny moths came hovering among the wistaria blossoms; and high in the sky the metallic note of a nighthawk rang, repeating in querulous cadence the cries of water fowl on the lake, where mallard and widgeon were restlessly preparing for an evening flight.

"You know," she said, gravely, "a woman who oversteps convention always suffers; a man, never. I have done something I never expected to do—never supposed was in me to do. And now that I have gone so far, it is perhaps better for me to go farther." She looked at him steadily. "Your studio is a perfect sounding board. You have an astonishingly frank habit of talking to yourself; and every word is perfectly audible to me when my window is raised. When you chose to apostrophize me as a 'white-faced, dark-eyed little thing,' and when you remarked to yourself that there were 'thousands like me in New York,' I was perfectly indignant."

He sat staring at her, utterly incapable of uttering a sound.

"It costs a great deal for me to say this," she went on. "But I am obliged to because it is not fair to let you go on communing aloud with yourself—and I cannot close my window in warm weather. It costs more than you know for me to say this; for it is an admission that I heard you say that you were coming to the wistaria arbor"——

She bent her crimsoned face; the silence of evening fell over the arbor.

"I don't know why I came," she said; "whether with a vague idea of giving you the chance to speak and so seizing the opportunity to warn you that your soliloquies were audible to me—whether to tempt you to speak and make it plain to you that I am not one of the thousand shopgirls you have observed after the shops close"——

"Don't," he said, hoarsely. "I am miserable enough."

"I don't wish you to feel miserable," she said. "I have a very exalted idea of you. I—I understand artists."

He rose in his humiliation.

"I can ask no privileges," he said, "but I must say one thing before I go. You have a book there which bears the signature of an artist named Marlitt. I am very anxious for his address; I think I have important news for him—good news. That is why I ask it."

The girl looked at him quietly.

"What news have you for him?"

"I suppose you have a right to ask," he said, "or you would not ask. I do not know Marlitt. I liked his work. Mr. Calvert suggested that Marlitt should return to resume work"——

"No," said the girl, "you suggested it."

He was staggered. "Did you even hear that!" he gasped.

"You were standing by your window," she said. "Mr. Tennant, I think that was the real reason why I came to the wistaria arbor—to thank you for what you have done. You see—you see, I am Marlitt."

He sank down on the seat opposite.

"Everything has gone wrong," she said. "I came to thank you—and everything turned out so differently—and I was dreadfully rude to you"——

She covered her face with her hands.

"Then you wrote me that letter," he said, slowly. In the silence of the gathering dusk the electric lamps snapped alight, flooding the arbor with silvery radiance. He said:

"If a man had written me that letter I should have desired his friendship and offered mine."

She dropped her hands and looked at him. "Thank you for speaking to Calvert," she said, rising hastily; "I have been desperately in need of work. My pride is quite dead, you see—one or the other of us had to die."

She looked down with a gay little smile. "If it wouldn't spoil you I should tell you what I think of you. Meanwhile, as servitude becomes a man, you may tie my shoe for me—Marlitt's shoe that pinched you. * * * Tie it tightly, so that I shall not lose it again. * * * Thank you."

As he rose, their eyes met once more; and the perilous sweetness in hers fascinated him.

She drew a deep, unsteady breath. "Will you take me home?" she asked.

A Fortune in Motion-Picture Film Cans.

OWING to the shortage of tin cans through war conditions, the largest producers of motion-picture film stock in the United States have recently notified their customers that the prompt shipment of this raw material cannot be guaranteed in the future. They have also urged all producing plants to return the empty containers they have on hand, for which a liberal price will be paid. Following the call of the film manufacturers, one producing organization searched its premises and found 8142 cans, each with a capacity of 2000 feet of film. When crated, the cans made 12 truck loads, and it is said that when they were converted into money they represented a small fortune.

How to Avoid Rice Powder Pimples, Blackheads and Enlarged Pores

A specialist has at last perfected a pure face powder that really stays on; that stays on until you wash it off. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder to make it stick. This improved formula contains a medicinal powder doctors use to heal the skin. White lead poisons the skin, and rice powder, Poudre de Riz, turns into a gluey paste that encourages enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder pimples. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crow's feet and wrinkles. To get this unusual powder, learn to pronounce the name correctly. It is called La-may (French Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and because it stays on better than any other, it is already sold by thousands of the best dealers everywhere. You are sure to find it at any big store. There are two sizes. The large size is only fifty cents and the half size is twenty-five cents. When you use this delightful La-may and you see how wonderfully it beautifies your complexion, you will understand why it so quickly became the most popular complexion powder sold in New York. You can now get it in St. Louis at Nugents. One thousand dollars is offered to anybody who can buy a better face powder anywhere at any price. Remember, La-may is guaranteed absolutely pure, and it stays on better than any other face powder. When you use La-may and, if it is possible, you are not delighted, your dealer is authorized to return your money without question. Caution: Refuse substitutes when you are offered a substitute, it is sure to be a demonstrator trying to sell an old-fashioned powder that pays a big commission. If you live out of town and your best dealer does not sell La-may, he can easily get it for you, or you can order by mail from the American Agent, Herbert Roystone, 106 E. 19th Street, New York.

So fascinatingly French

France! mot magique! Certes je suis fier de mon pays ces jours-ci! Ils sont vraiment ses jours glorieux!

—Kerkoff, Paris.

Translation: France! the word of magic. Proud, indeed, am I of my country today. These truly are her greatest days.

À la Gentillesse Amèricaine! Djer-Kiss is a remarkable Face Powder. Made in Paris, it has all the charme dèlicat parisien of Paris, inimitable, found in things French only. And why not? It is the creation of the master Kerkoff himself!

Vraiment! This poudre de riz, expressing as it does an exquisite daintiness, a captivating delicacy, blending softly, lasting long, inevitably distinctions the woman who uses it.

You'll love it too—of that there is never a doubt.

GENE CARR
UNCLE DUDLEY, I WISH YOU WOULD GO AND TELL MRS. BROWN TO COME AND WASH FOR US ON MONDAY
AW, HAVE A HEART! THATS A TWO MILE WALK.
WHAT KIND OF A PUZZLE IS THAT, BOYS? LET ME TRY IT.
GEE, THATS HARD TO DO
I ALMOST HAD IT THAT TIME!
PST, FELLERS! COME ON.
TRYING TO SNEAK AWAY ON ME, EH? I'LL JUST FOLLOW 'EM UP-
CHOICE CANDIES PASTRY
I SEE THEY'RE GOING TO HAVE A PARTY AND LEAVE ME OUT
WHAT DO I CARE FOR THEIR OLD PARTY. I CAN HAVE MORE FUN WITH THE PUZZLE.
HEY, UNCLE DUD! LADY BOUNTIFUL WANTS YOU.
I BET SHE WANTS TO KNOW IF I DELIVERED HER MESSAGE. I'LL HAVE TO MAKE SOME EXCUSE
HAPPY BIRTHDAY, UNCLE DUDLEY
HE DIDNT EVEN KNOW IT WAS HIS BIRTHDAY

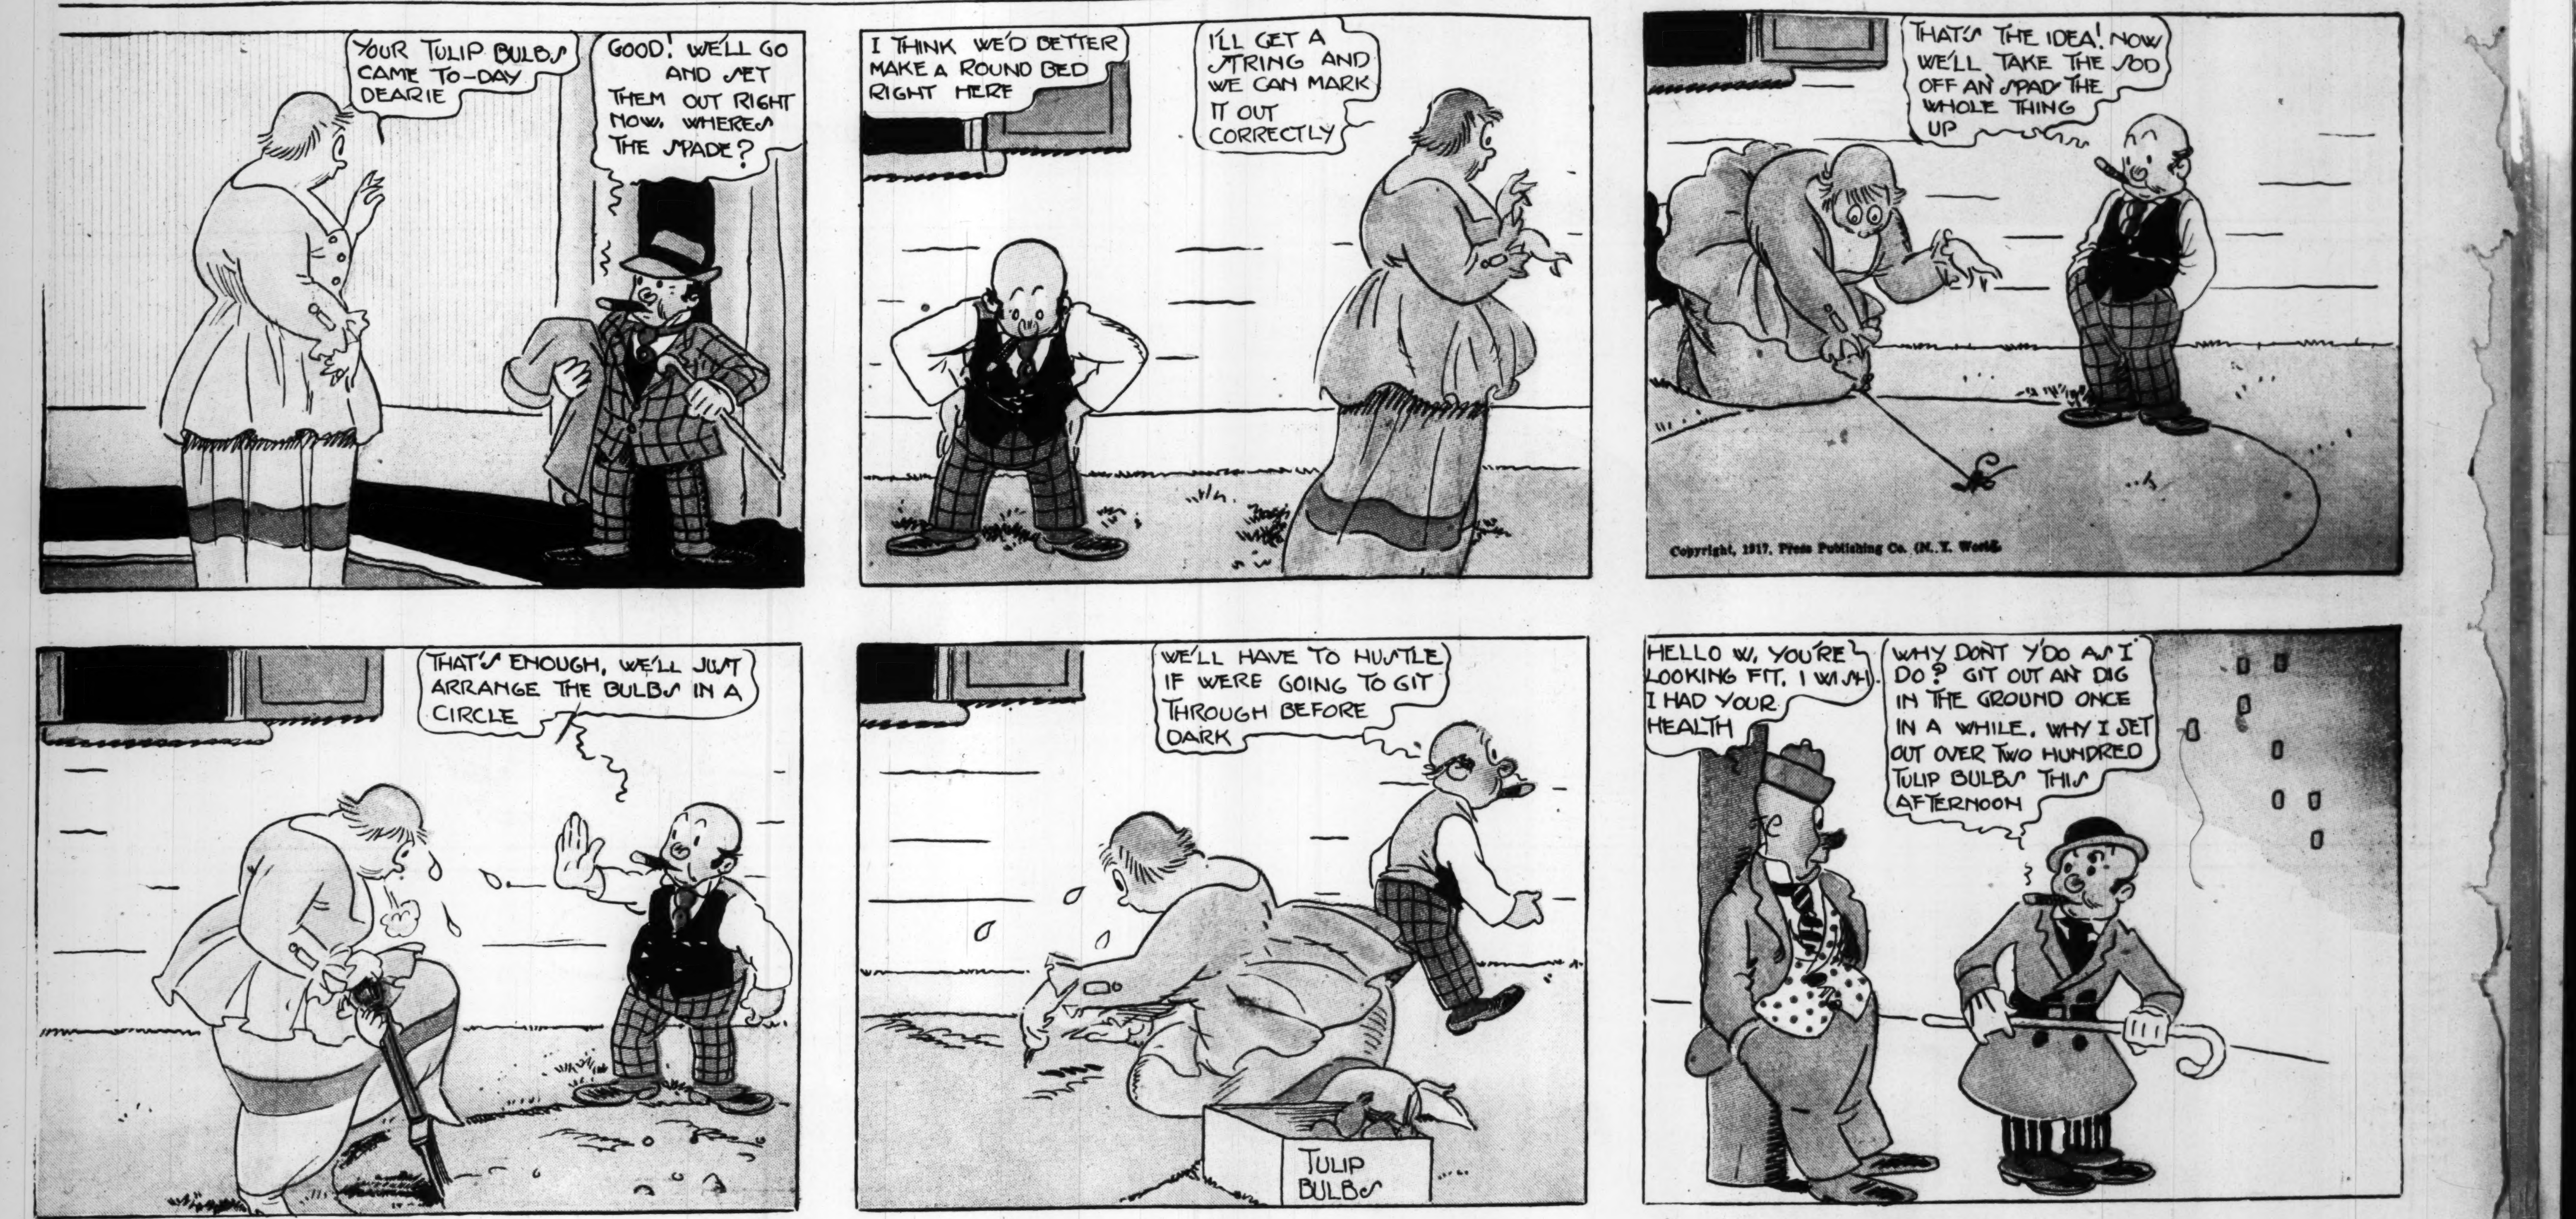
Poor Mr. W.—He Believes in Getting Back to Nature



YOUR TULIP BULBS CAME TO-DAY DEARIE
GOOD! WE'LL GO AND SET THEM OUT RIGHT NOW. WHERE'S THE SPADE?
I THINK WE'D BETTER MAKE A ROUND BED RIGHT HERE
I'LL GET A STRING AND WE CAN MARK IT OUT CORRECTLY
THAT'S THE IDEA! NOW WE'LL TAKE THE SOD OFF AN' SPADE THE WHOLE THING UP
THAT'S ENOUGH, WE'LL JUST ARRANGE THE BULBS IN A CIRCLE
WE'LL HAVE TO HUSTLE IF WERE GOING TO GIT THROUGH BEFORE DARK
TULIP BULBS
HELLO W, YOU'RE LOOKING FIT. I WISH I HAD YOUR HEALTH
WHY DON'T Y'DO AS I DO? GIT OUT AN' DIG IN THE GROUND ONCE IN A WHILE. WHY I SET OUT OVER TWO HUNDRED TULIP BULBS THIS AFTERNOON
